Crime Does Not Pay.
One Baby, Two Wet Nurses.
When Russia Grows Rich.
New Idea for Ladies.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 20.

CRIME does not pay. Two young men in California kidnaped a youth, 22 years old, and confessed that they murdered him.

After the murder, seeking to extort $40,000, they telephoned the parents:

"The easiest thing would be to kill your son, with little danger to us."

They did kill him, but not with "little danger." Both are in jail, soon to learn from California justice how dangerous their kidnaping was.

Thanks to the Department of Justice and secret service, which cannot be too highly praised, kidnaping has become a dangerous industry.

TWO YOUNG men obtained six thousand dollars from a bank burglary in Pennsylvania, and concluded that a life of crime is an easy life.

They spent most of their stolen dollars traveling, "tipping liberally, living high" as one of them puts it. They made a mistake when they went to Miami. Florida discourages criminals.

One of them is dead, killed by a policeman, the other with bullets in his legs, will probably be executed, presently.

Crime does not pay.

JAPAN'S EMPRESS expects another baby. Four thus far born, three still alive, are all girls. Japan is praying for a boy to carry on the imperial "dynasty for ages eternal."

A female mikado-ess might be useful, remembering Catherine the Second of Russia, Queen Victoria, Queen Elizabeth and some others.

But Japan does not think so. Failing a boy, the Mikado's oldest brother, Chichibu, would inherit the throne.

MORE INTERESTING than the boy question to American mothers is the fact that governors of seven prefectures are ordered to send each one young woman "of the best physical condition and unimpeachable moral character" to Tokio as a candidate for wet nurse to the unborn royal baby.

The empress, doubtless, would like to nurse her own baby, but royal etiquet perhaps forbids.

Particularly interesting is the fact that the little baby will have, selected from the seven candidates, two wet nurses, and plenty to eat. Not a bad idea. If one gets a cold, the other will do all the work, until her assistant recovers.

RUSSIA, according to American engineers and travelers is on the road to prosperity and wealth. American recognition will hasten that prosperity and ours.

With the czars the people never had any money, except a few that should not have had it, and the masses could not read or write.

Stalin gives them education.

Trade, modern industry and Russia's resources will give them wealth.

History will tell what effect wealth and luxury will have on the nation now devoted to Marx, Lenin and Communism.

WHEN VICTOR BERGER, sincere Socialist, was asked "If 50,000 of your Socialists, should each inherit $100,000, how many would remain Socialists?" He replied:

"Perhaps 500, but that has nothing to do with the truth of Socialism."

With wealth, and universal education that produces thinking, Russia's opinions and desires will change.

Human nature cannot be changed suddenly, and the mainspring of human nature, at this stage of civilization, is selfishness.

WOMAN "in her hours of ease" with little to think about except her beautiful face and how to make it prettier, drifts back to methods of ancient barbarism, according to a Universal Service dispatch from London.

Instead of painting a new complexion on the cheeks every day, women are having "rose leaf" complexions tattooed on their faces, to stay there forever.

ALSO WITH tattooing, "the shape of the mouth and the formation of eyebrows" can be changed, and "tattooed eyeshadows are popular."

Westermack tells you that tattooing and similar decorations came before clothing. Darwin's Patagonian lady would not leave her hut or be seen, until properly painted, her just right. Then she would appear well pleased with herself, and without a stitch of clothing.

THE DEATH of H. H. Westinghouse, 80-year-old manufacturer of air brakes, reminds you that as men become successful they find it difficult to recognize the value of new ideas.

The original Vanderbilt, rowing his little boat from Staten Island to New York, recognized the value of the railroad idea, and with it established a great fortune. His son, William H., also a good railroad man, laughed heartily at the suggestion that "you could ever stop railroad trains with air."

He thought the engineer must always whistle "down brakes" and the brakeman rush out and set the brakes by hand. Air brakes are on the Vanderbilt New York Central and all other railroad trains now.

Many, powerful and prosperous, including the government of the United States, are unable, as inventors know to their sorrow, to recognize a new idea and unwilling to hear about it.

4,000 ACCLAIM SUNDAY MUSIC

J. Fred Lissfelt's review of last night's concert appears on Page 8.

More than 4,000 Pittsburghers enthusiastically acclaimed another thrust at the century-old Pennsylvania blue law as the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra conducted its first legal Sunday concert in Syria Mosque.

The crowd—the largest to ever hear a symphonic concert in Pittsburgh—packed every available nook of the spacious auditorium.

Presiding at the brief ceremonies, George Gershwin, guest soloist and noted composer of "Rhapsody in Blue," handed a small blue pasteboard ticket to Leo Lehman in return for $50 and thereby became the first man ever to sell legally a ticket for a Sunday concert in Pennsylvania.

The concert was given under the new Sunday music act passed by the Pennsylvania legislature at its last session. The act permits concerts with an admission charge to cover expenses if application is made to and approved by the State Department of Public Instruction.

Navy Dismisses Marrying Middy

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Midshipman Harold Leonard Emmons, Jr., of Saco, Me., was dismissed from the Naval Academy today for breaking academic regulations by marrying and for being absent without leave.

Emmons, a second-year student at the academy, was married to Miss Helen Rhodes, of Reading, Pa., in Elkton, Md., on November 4, the day the midshipman regiment went to Baltimore to attend the Navy-Notre Dame football game.

Garbo Out Hunting New Secret Home

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Greta Garbo, say some in Hollywood, is out looking for another secret home.

The famous Swedish star has been irked by the publication of the address of her home recently when a man made bold efforts to get in touch with her and ran afoul of authorities. The public, having learned where she lived, has taken to sight-seeing her home in hopes of catching a glimpse of her.

COSMIC RAY BAG SOARS OVER CITY

Settle Reaches 62,000 Feet, 4,000 Higher Than Expected

BULLETIN.

The Settle balloon reached an altitude of 62,000 feet 40 miles southeast of Pittsburgh, it was learned by direct radio contact established by the County Airport at 2:15 this afternoon. This is 4,000 feet higher than the altitude limit expected.

A dot in the sky cut a segment across Allegheny County shortly after noon.

It was the stratasphere balloon, traveling over Allegheny County's airport at 49,000 feet, headed towards Greensburg, where, according to radio reports, it reached 53,000 feet—nearly 10 miles.

Commander T. G. W. Settle reported that he was throwing off ballast and ascending rapidly. The goal of the balloonist, who is studying the cosmic ray, was set at 58,000 feet.

HIDDEN BY HAZE

Except for residents of the suburbs, the city's haze and smoke prevented a view of the balloon.

The balloon was traveling between 30 and 40 miles an hour.

The balloon, which started out from Akron, was sailing along at 14,000 feet when it passed over East Liverpool and crossed the line into Pennsylvania.

It was visible by residents of Bridgeville at 1:12, and Charleroi reported its presence high above, and traveling about 30 miles an hour, at 1:30.

OVER CONNELLSVILLE

Connellsville reported it at 1:35 p. m.

The silver glint of its basket was perceptible as it headed northeast.

The wind was twisting it, now north, now south by east.

Commander Settle was flying over familiar territory. The National Balloon races, which started here in 1929, ended with Settle the winner.

From Akron, where the flight started, it was expected that the balloon, when it reaches its ceiling at 58,000 feet, would begin to drop. That is, after Commander Settle and Maj. Chester L. Forney, Marine Corps mathematician,

DISTILLERS FIGHT RUM TAX BILL

Pinchot's $1-a-Gallon Plan Attacked in House Hearing

BULLETIN.

HARRISBURG, Nov. 20.—The House Ways and Means Committee tonight will introduce a resolution for an investigation of charges made this afternoon by A. Leo Weil, representing the Schenley distillery, that already representations had been made to his company that five-sixths of the purchases by state liquor stores and the Alcohol Permit Board could be diverted to the Schenley people in return for a a consideration which was not explained.

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Nov. 20.—Representatives of Pennsylvania distilleries, who have had no business, comparatively, this afternoon before the House Ways and Means Committee fought the $1-a-gallon liquor tax, proposed by Gov. Pinchot, on a plea which simmered down to a fear that they would loce what they haven't had.

The committee seemed little impressed by the array of witnesses which appeared to protest the tax. Distillers' representatives professed a fear that if the tax was imposed on liquor manufactured in Pennsylvania, instead of liquor consumed here, they would be re-ruined by competition. In the same breath they said that Pennsylvania was at least the second largest distilling state.

Committee members insisted that if distilleries tried to move they would find the same taxes in other states. Spokesmen for the manufacturers developed that only about 10 per cent of their product is sold in Pennsylvania.

$1,000,000 DAILY LOSS

Earlier today Gov. Pinchot declared the state is losing $1,000,000 a day in possible revenue every day passage is delayed on the Pinchot bill imposing $2-a-gallon floor tax on liquor already in storage.

One of the highlights of the House committee hearing was the

We Need More Schools And Fewer Politicians

PUBLIC EDUCATION is in jeopardy all over the United States today because it is denied adequate support under an outworn system of state and local government which is eating up the taxes taken from the earnings of the people.

This system, as President Roosevelt recently said, was "built up in the days of the oxcart" and, in a majority of the states of the Union, remains "unchanged in the days of the automobile."

Because the people of New York are taxed to support more than 13,000 LOCAL UNITS OF GOVERNMENT, they have yet to make adequate provision for THE SUPPORT OF A PUBLIC SCHOOL SYSTEM that will enable every child in the Empire State to get a good schooling.

In the state of Michigan, according to Thomas H. Reed, professor of political science in the University of Michigan, there are 43,000 LOCAL PUBLIC OFFICIALS to serve a population of 4,482,000, while in England today there are 2,000 serving a population of 37,354,000.

THE CURTAILMENT of the educational program in Michigan has precipitated an educational crisis, but the country has yet to hear of any drastic curtailment in the number of local public officials in that state.

"Our situation in Georgia is really serious," writes the state superintendent of education, because Georgia "owes public school systems more than $2,500,000."

But the people of Georgia are still taxed to support 159 COUNTY GOVERNMENTS THAT ARE NO LONGER NEEDED and should have been consolidated or abolished long ago.

Taxpayers in metropolitan areas today are maintaining a hundred governments with the power to tax and borrow where one government, honestly and efficiently manned, would suffice.

TAXPAYERS in rural sections see their public schools closing down for lack of funds and their teachers either unpaid or paid less than a living wage because SHERIFFS, CLERKS, TREASURERS AND OTHER COUNTY AND TOWNSHIP OFFICIALS NO LONGER NEEDED are living off of the people.

Simplification of state and local governments is an imperative necessity if the "new deal" in American political life is to include a fair deal for American education.

To give the children of this country the public education they deserve, the American people must get rid of an outworn system of state and local government that taxes them to support local public officials no longer needed.

MRS. SMITH PICKED ON BUDGET

League Head to Sit At Sessions for Mayor-Elect

Mayor-elect William N. McNair has asked Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, chairman of the League of Women Voters, to act as his representative at the city budget sessions, and Mrs. Smith has agreed to do so.

Her decision was announced following a conference this morning with McNair at the offices of the league.

The Mayor-elect had a pleased expression today, but had discarded some of the robes of dignity which he assumed last week. The derby was missing, but there was still a flower on his lapel.

DEFICIT SOLUTION

Besieged by citizens in his Bakewell Building office, McNair found time to discuss the reported $3,000,000 city deficit. He said:

"I have a way of getting the money to meet it, I feel sure, but I don't care to reveal it now."

He recalled that the levy of city taxes should be fixed by December 1, and declared that work on the city budget should be speeded. He said he had asked for a complete list of city jobs along with a record of duties and compensation.

He hinted he will not attend the budget sessions in person, saying:

"My representative will be there."

Mrs. Smith stated in her letter of acceptance that she will have as technical advisor M. C. Conick, of Main & Co., accountants, who have audited the departments of both city and county government, and were particularly prominent in the city supplies probe.

McNAIR DELIGHTED

McNair, in a letter accepting her services, states that he is "delighted" and will request Mayor John S. Herron, City Controller James P. Kerr and City Council to extend to Mrs. Smith and her representative full access to all city records.

Mrs. Smith states that some of the particular things to be investigated will be the city's cash position, the services performed by the city payroll and the rate of pay, the necessity for each city job, city delinquent taxes and the status of the city treasury at the end of the year.

McNair clings to the idea of an office in the lobby of the City-County building. He said:

"It was the little man that elected me and not the corporations. I must see the people at least for an hour a day."

And then with a sparkle in his eye:

The carpenters today are at work building an outer door to reduce the drafts in the lobby.

Tomorrow and Thursday, McNair has promised to address the economics classes of Dr. Marion McKay at the University of Pittsburgh on tax matters.

Police Search in Vain For 'Suicide Victim'

Central and South Side police early today made an unsuccessful search for a man who was reported to have walked into the Mongahela river.

Reports to both police districts were that the man's wife, who would be found in a taxicab on the Smithfield street bridge made the complaint. Neither the woman, the man nor the cab could be located.

'Kidnaped' Heiress Dies of Old Age

SAO PAULO, Brazil, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Senhora Josina Do Amaral, 78, the multi-millionaire who vanished from her home in 1932 and was found in October locked in a wardrobe closet in Rio de Janeiro, died today of old age.

Her death complicated the family dispute over the huge Do Amaral estate, for which a host of relatives are contesting.

ROBBERS LOOT SCHOOL SAFE

The robbers who opened a safe in Oliver High School, North Side, some time between Friday and today certainly knew their way about.

They had not only keys to the outside door and the office door, but in the office of Principal J. F. Bailey they twirled the safe lock around to the proper numbers, took $206.34, and departed.

Miss Mary McArdle, assistant principal, said the money represented Friday's receipts from the school cafeteria.

NAZIS TO SEIZE EINSTEIN CASH

BERLIN, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Secret police today ordered the seizure of all property of Dr. Albert Einstein, famous physicist, and Mrs. Einstein, by virtue of the law for confiscation of Communist property.

Legal notice of this seizure was served in the official gazette Reichsanzeiger which listed "all mobile and immobile goods, particularly bank accounts and other deposits" to be confiscated in favor of the Prussian state.

Prof. Einstein, now associated with the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton, N. J., fled to Belgium with his wife following the advent of the Nazi regime in Germany. He was accused by the Nazis of being a Communist and his books were seized by storm-troopers to be burned May 5.

Balk McDade Marriage So Girl May Testify

When detectives objected to his proposed marriage, Edward J. McDade, 24, of 2136 Charles street, today pleaded no defense before Judge James H. Gray on charges brought in behalf of Miss Mary Catherine Danahey, 16, of Hope Hollow road, near Carnegie.

Judge Gray postponed sentence for two weeks.

McDade's attorney, Jacob Frank, told the court the defendant was willing to marry Miss Danahey. Supt. Sam Wheeler, of the Homicide Squad, however, entered an objection on the ground that if McDade and the girl marry, Miss Danahey cannot be used as a witness against McDade, who is on bond pending an inquest into the death of his wife, Grace.

Mrs. McDade died October 17 as a result of a fall from McDade's car near their home. McDade maintains his wife jumped from the car.

McCready 'Unbalanced,' Lawyer Says in Court

'Playboy' Needed Straitjacket, Court Hears

Harrison R. McCready, the Fox Chapel playboy, is mentally unbalanced, his attorney told the court today, and witnesses will be presented to prove it.

And while McCready moved in and out of the court room, his attorney, Charles J. Margiotti, added that he was a drunkard, requiring a straight jacket, according to the belief of his first wife, her mother and father; that he needed a guardian; that he had dissipated over $200,000 of his $750,000 estate in two years.

In the corridor, waiting for the trial, McCready said he was "cold" sober.

The charges were put in the record as the suit to upset the $150,000 trust fund created by McCready for his first wife, Margaret McCready Welfer and their daughter, 4-year-old Margaret Luella, opened before Judge Frank P. Patterson.

FIRST SUIT DELAYED

Prior to this hearing, Judge Samuel H. Gardner had postponed for three weeks the hearing of testimony on a parallel suit, in which Raymond M. Worley, a cousin of McCready's asked that a guardian be appointed to prevent him from further dissipating his estate.

Attorney Oliver K. Eaton, representing Mrs. Welfer, declared

DEFENSE OPENS IN VOTE CASE

The second congressional vote fraud trial was drawing to a close in Federal Court today on the heels of a disagreement in the first case.

The government rested in its prosecution of five election board members of the Nineteenth District, Fourth Ward, shortly before noon today.

This afternoon the defense was calling the defendants and other witnesses in its effort to disprove charges of conspiracy to violate the ballot laws at the election last year.

Attorney A. M. Oliver told the jury he would show that the ballot box had been handled by the Bar Association congressional investigators and others since the election.

The defendants are Joseph Tortorelli, judge; Malachi Tierman and Irvin Braun, inspectors, and John F. McNally and Bernard Grossman, clerks.

Special Prosecutor Earl F. Reed and First Assistant United States Attorney James I. Marsh said the first fraud case in which the jury disagreed would be retried.

City Unable to Pay Note, Council Told

The city will not be able to meet a note for $750,000 which falls due November 27, Council was told today by City Controller James P. Kerr.

In a letter presented in person at the meeting Kerr said he had presented a similar letter on the same subject when Council met last Monday, but for some reason, Kerr added, the letter never became a matter of record.

U. S. AND RUSSIA DISCUSS DEBTS AND DAMAGE CLAIMS

CAPITAL SEES BARGAINING BY LITVINOFF

Soviet Ace Diplomat Remains During Negotiations

By KINSBURY SMITH
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—With hopes running high that an understanding on the difficult question of debts and damage claims will be reached within the next few days, the Russo-American discussions were resumed at the State Department today.

Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet Foreign Commissar, conferred with Acting Secretary of State Phillips. William C. Bullitt, newly-appointed Ambassador to Moscow, was expected to join them later.

Litvinoff probably will sail for home Saturday.

Litvinoff said on his arrival at the department that no definite plans had been made for his departure at that time, but he probably would leave if the conversations were concluded. He hopes to spend a day in New York sightseeing before his departure.

BARGAINING DUE

The extreme diplomatic suavity practiced by both sides in the 10-day discussion which led to recognition is expected to give way to a sharper spirit of bargaining.

Litvinoff expects to have completed the negotiations before the arrival of Alexander Antonovitch Troyanovski, who was accepted by the United States Department as the first Soviet Ambassador to the United States. Until his arrival, Boris Skvirsky, unofficial Soviet representative for the past 12 years, will be in charge.

It is believed there will be considerable bartering over the question of claims. The American claims for confiscated property in Russia are estimated to run as high as $400,000,000 and little doubt is held that Litvinoff will seek to off-set this figure by Soviet counter-claims.

He hinted at this last week when he said the Soviet's abandonment of claims for alleged damage caused by American participation in the allied military expedition into Siberia did not cover claims for a similar expedition through Archangel.

TRADE PROGRAM

The general impression that important understandings on the extension of American credit to Soviet Russia and the expansion of trade would be reached in this week's conversations with Litvinoff were discounted in well-informed circles.

In fact, it was said the question of credit and trade expansion is not likely to figure to any great extent in the discussions with Litvinoff. The trade question probably will be left to officials of Amtorg, the official Soviet trading organization in this country, and to the new Soviet ambassador.

Litvinoff's principal reason for remaining over is to discuss a settlement of the debt and damage claims question rather than trade, it was said.

Russia Takes Slap At Recognition Foes

MOSCOW, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Karl Radek, foremost publicist of Soviet Russia, praised newly-appointed Ambassador William C. Bullitt in the newspaper Pravda, and included other Americans who favored the recognition of Russia.

In an article called "America Discovers the U. S. S. R.," Radek at the same time took a slap at the "Hardings, Coolidges, Hoovers, Colbys and Hughes," who, he said, "thought to dictate their own laws to the world, persuaded that our new country would expire because the world could not exist save on a basis of capitalism."

The Pravda, official Communist party organ, was the only newspaper out today and represented the only published reaction to United States recognition that has reached the Russian people.

In an editorial the paper said "it should now be clear to everybody that the Soviet Union has overthrown all obstacles to its peaceful construction," and described recognition as "the greatest victory in the Soviet policy of peace."

Radek in his article wrote that the principles of capitalism "have been shaken by developments in the United States. They no longer have the right to assume such an ironical attitude toward the question whether our way is the right one."

Expecting a Little Service -:- -:- By QUIN HALL

JAPANESE JAIL U. S. MUSICIANS

International News Service.

TOKIO, Nov. 20.—Ten American dance orchestra members appealed to the American consul today to recover their instruments, allegedly seized by the management of a local dance hall, and protesting alleged mistreatment by Tokio police.

The Americans, from Seattle, Wash., and Portland, Ore., charged police seized all their passports following a legal dispute with the dance hall managers, held them at police headquarters incommunicado for six hours, and, under threat of violence and incarceration, forced them to sign certain papers.

Jerry Wood, leader of the orchestra, said a policeman struck one of the members of his band, J. A. Brook.

He said his orchestra received a warning that 30 Japanese gangsters, armed with knives and clubs, would beat them up if they left the city.

In holding the Americans at headquarters, Wood said, police refused to let them communicate either with lawyers or with the American consul.

Lutheran Head Raps Russian Recognition

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 20.—(AP.)—United States recognition of the Soviet government was condemned by Dr. C. C. Hein, president of the American Lutheran Church, at a union service in Buffalo last night commemorating the four hundred fiftieth anniversary of Martin Luther's birth. He said:

"It saddens my heart to hear that the Soviet government has been recognized by our country; the Soviet government which has murdered thousands upon thousands of our Lutheran brethren."

Borah En Route To Greet Litvinoff

BOISE, Idaho, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Senator William E. Borah (Rep.), Idaho, is on his way East, still hoarse from a cold he contracted last week, but preparing an address for presentation in New York Thursday night at a banquet in honor of Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet commissar of foreign affairs.

Borah said he was pleased with the prospect of meeting Litvinoff whose plan to extend his stay a few days permitted the Senator to arrange to see him in New York.

Troy - an - ov - ski Correct Name Of Russ Envoy

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—(INS.)—The correct spelling and pronunciation of Russia's new ambassador to this country is Alexander Troy-an-ov-ski, according to Harold Kelloc, publicity director for the Soviet information bureau here.

The name is pronounced in Russian as it is spelled with the emphasis on the next to the last syllable.

A graduate of Czarist Military Academy and Kiev University, Troyanovski speaks fluent French and a little English. He studied the latter while living in Paris from 1910 to 1917 following his escape from exile in Siberia.

CHURCH PICKS PASTOR, 32

The Bellefield Presbyterian Church today has a new pastor—only 32—the Rev. C. Marshall Muir. As a college student here, he attended that church.

He was accepted as a member of the Pittsburgh Presbytery at a meeting this morning.

Three weeks ago he was offered the pulpit by the congregation, who chose him after listening to a score or more candidates since the Rev. Dr. Robert MacGowan left last March for Irvington, N. Y.

Mr. Muir is from Van Wert, O., where he has been pastor five years. He will preach his first sermon December 3.

Born in Washington, D. C., he became a student at Carnegie Institute of Technology here, studying mechanical engineering. He remained there two years before he decided that the ministry had a greater interest for him. He finished his college course at Washington and Jefferson, and prepared for the ministry at Western Theological Seminary.

Pittsburgh Slayer Granted Death Stay

Detective Sergt. Sam Wheeler today received a letter from Gov. Rolph, of California, notifying him that an indefinite stay had been granted Leo D. Murphy, former Pittsburgher, sentenced to hang for the murder of his second wife in Long Beach, Cal.

The Governor said a psychiatrist is examining Murphy alias Callahan. Murphy, arrested in Pittsburgh, where he was living with his third wife, had asked Wheeler to intercede with Gov. Rolph.

MOSCOW, Nov. 20.—(INS.)—An American President was officially toasted for the first time in Soviet Russia at a dinner given last night to American newspaper correspondents in Moscow.

ITALY MAY QUIT LEAGUE

ROME, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Belief that Italy would withdraw from the League of Nations unless France consents to a four-power disarmament conference in Rome was expressed in well-informed circles today.

The possibility became the subject of unofficial discussion after it became known that the Fascist Grand Council will be convoked December 5 to discuss the continuance of Italy's membership in the league.

GENEVA, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Authoritative sources said today that efforts by the United States delegates to the Disarmament Conference to have other nations, particularly Russia and Japan, added to the present four power arms conversations have failed.

Hugh R. Wilson, American Minister to Switzerland and acting chief of the American arms delegation, undertook the addition of the other nations to the parley in an effort to make the negotiations more universal and more representative.

Weather Conditions.

The high that was centered over the plateau section Saturday morning, barometer, 30.60 at Boise, Idaho, had diminished to 30.36 by Sunday morning, and to 30.18 this morning. Centers of low pressure, however, continue to travel along the Canadian border. There was one centered over Lake Superior yesterday morning, and caused the light snowfall over this section yesterday afternoon. It is now off the north Atlantic Coast, and another one is centered over Southern Saskatchewan, 29.54 at Swift Current, and extends down over the plains states. The skies are clear this morning over practically the entire country, there being only small areas of cloudiness. Precipitation for the last 24 hours was limited to the North, except for a thunderstorm over Abilene, Tex., during last night, which produced 1.88 inches of rain. Temperature changes since yesterday are unimportant. The weather is mild over the entire country.

River Conditions.

The rivers are rising slowly due to melting snow. Stage at Franklin is 1.9 feet. Lock No. 7, Mon., 14.0; Pittsburgh, 11.4; Dam No. 4, 8.9; No. 8, 8.2; No. 10, 8.7 and No. 12, 8.7. The dams are up. The Ohio will continue to rise slowly. A 12 foot stage is indicated at Pittsburgh by Tuesday morning.

CITY OFFICIALS MEET TO PLAN RELIEF JOBS

Herron, Lang Attend Harrisburg Parley To Map Program

Mayor John S. Herron and Director Edward G. Lang, of the Department of Public Works, are in Harrisburg today attending a meeting of representatives of municipalities from all parts of the state planning the creation of 360,000 jobs in Pennsylvania as part of the new federal recovery program.

The two Pittsburghers will present Pittsburgh's program calling for an expenditure of $3,407,000 of public works funds and will put 9,445 men back to work here by December 15. The city program includes $1,000,000 for improving dirt streets; $900,000 for pipe lines; $936,000 for park and playground improvements and $571,000 for sewers.

At the same time it was announced by Congressman Henry Ellenbogen that funds to complete the Cathedral of Learning and erection of a new dormitory adjacent to it would be made available. The Public Works Administrator will be asked to appropriate $2,800,000 for the two projects. Formal announcement of the projects is expected within 10 days, Congressman Ellebogen said.

Representatives from McKeesport were Mayor George H. Lysle, City Controller William V. Campbell and City Engineer Luke Savage. Proposed projects in McKeesport include the improvement of Jerome street and the construction of two new bridges, one at Fifth avenue and the other connecting McKeesport and Dravosburg.

First Lady Heads Drive to Re-Employ 250,000 Women

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Work for 250,000 women in the next 30 days was the goal set today before the conference on emergency needs of women by Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator.

Introduced by Mrs. Roosevelt to the Conference of Women Leaders, which met in the east room of the White House, he estimated between 300,000 and 400,000 women are in need of work projects, such as those that will assimilate the male unemployed under the Civil Works Administration.

Hopkins explained that the $400,000,000 available to the Civil Works Administration could be used only on projects that are legal under the Public Works Act.

As illustrations of some such projects available to women he mentioned the United States Employment Service's branches in between 2,500 and 3,000 counties and estimated between 3,000 and 4,000 women could be given employment therein.

BAN ON TIPPING URGED IN CODE

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Abolition of tipping in restaurants and cafes was advocated today by Grover Whalen, NRA administrator in New York.

Revocation of the unwritten law governing the greasing of the waiter's palm was declared by him to be the best solution of a problem that has harried code makers, compliance boards and employes.

Discussing the hearings on the proposed restaurant codes to begin in Washington this week, Whalen said:

"I am firmly convinced the vast majority of waiters throughout the country would welcome being placed on a straight wage basis instead of being compelled to rely upon the fluctuating generosity of the public for their living."

Cupid's Adviser Airs Own Love Problem

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Mrs. Elita Wilson Sheasby, 33, editor of a New York newspaper column of love problem advice, brought one of her own problems to Municipal Court today. She asked that her former husband, Louis Edward Sheasby be forced to pay up $10,000 back alimony.

Sheasby is an orchestra conductor, residing here but now in Detroit. They were divorced at New York nine years ago.

Rammed Liner Taken To Dock for Repairs

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—The liner Munargo, which was rammed Friday by the Deutschland in the upper bay, was shoved off the mud flats near Bedloe's Island yesterday and taken to a Brooklyn drydock for repairs. The Munargo had been beached after the collision tore a big gap in her side.

Chicago Gun Toters Not All 'Natives'

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Chicago police say they feel Chicago really is not such a bad place. Checking up they said they found that in the last year, two-thirds of all the persons they questioned about carrying pistols were not natives of the "Windy City."

MOB ATTACKS TRUCK IN MEAT STRIKE HERE

East Liberty Street Strewn With Beef; Windows Stoned

someone shattered the windshield with a brick, bringing the truck to a halt. The crowd swarmed around the truck and pushed it over, strewing meat over the street.

The driver, one of a group brought here to combat the strike, leaped fro the truck and struck at several of the crowd. The meat was gathered up and placed in an empty storeroom nearby. A second truck drove away from the scene unmolested. The two had been making deliveries in the neighborhood.

WINDOWS BROKEN

Trucks, under escort of police and deputy sheriffs, carried meat supplies from the plant of Oswald & Hess Company, Spring Garden avenue, to retailers in the North Side, Belleveu and West View. George Hess, president, accompanied the trucks in his private car.

The Denholm Jacking Company also made deliveries. All were using outside drivers, according to reliable reports.

Windows in the Stewart Market, 600 East Ohio street, and Selkar's Market, 536 East Ohio street, were broken when two men in an automobile hurled bricks, police reported.

MORE BACK ON JOBS

A special two-coach train conveyed 35 girls and seven men from the Pennsylvania station to the Herr's Island plant of the Pittsburgh Provision and Packing Company. Fifteen city detectives and a detail of Pennsylvania Railroad police escorted the employes to the train. A report had been received that an attempt would be made to interfere. The train arrived at Herr's Island without incident.

Additional drivers and other employes returned to work at the South Side branch houses of Armour & Co. and Swift & Co.

Joseph Zodder, 22, of Bellevue, was arrested after he is alleged to have threatened Walter G. Lohrey, president of the Henry G. Lohrey Packing Company, 2234 East street, and several employes.

He was discharged in North Side Police Court by Magistrate Ray E. Schneider to permit Lohrey to make information against Zodder charging surety of the peace.

U. S. SAVINGS SYSTEM OPENS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—The newest of the government's banking systems took form yesterday with the announcement that 20 charters had been granted to federal savings and loan associations to provide new funds for home financing.

John H. Fahey, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, said these associations were being formed in seven states, and that preliminary approval had been given to 86 more in 26 states.

The Home Loan Board, established to provide funds for home building, is modeled after the Federal Reserve System. Each of the savings and loan associations will be members of the home loan system much as commercial banks are members of the reserve systems.

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Co-operation with the government's temporary deposit insurance plan and with the R. F. C.'s proposal to strengthen the banking structure through the injection of new capital was urged upon the nation's bankers today in a report by the Association of Reserve City Bankers.

The report, described as "the first comprehensive analysis" of the deposit insurance law, expressed opposition, however, to the permanent plan scheduled to go into effect on July 1, 1934, contending it would be "un-American, unfair and unsound."

Shoe Rebuilders Name Pittsburghers

HARRISBURG, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Shoe rebuilders of Pennsylvania met yesterday, formed a permanent association, elected officers and appointed a delegation to represent them in federal hearings on a proposed code for the industry. Officers elected:

Compulsory Drill Suit Not Decided

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—The Supreme Court declined today to review a controversy arising at the University of Maryland over the refusal of a student to take military training because he claimed he was a conscientious and religious objector.

Holding that the case presented no substantial federal question, the court dismissed the appeal.

Whose Is Sylvia?

SYLVIA SIDNEY

WHO IS SYLVIA? BEFORE COURT

"Who is Sylvia?"

And it will be the Supreme Court of the State of New York that will write the answer.

The question before the court today was not so much who Sylvia Sidney is, but rather what her legal status as a daughter is.

The screen actress' father, Victor Kosow, has taken action to void her adoption by Dr. Sigmund Sidney, who is the husband of Sylvia Sidney's mother. Kosow and the present Mrs. Sidney were divorced in 1915, five years after Sylvia's birth.

Miss Sidney's side of the story, as told in correspondence with her counsel, is that until May, 1932, she had not seen her father since she was a little girl.

Miss Sidney's letter said:

"He said then that he intended to seek to set aside my adoption by Dr. Sidney and to make public the fact that Dr. Sidney is not my real father.

"I asked him to say exactly what he wanted of me, and he asked me to buy him a house. I declined, but offered to give him substantial sums of money from time to time. This offer he refused."

WAGNER CLAIMS STRIKE CURB

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Success in changing labor psychology from insistence upon strikes toward a readiness for arbitration of disputes was claimed today by Senator Wagner, chairman of NRA'S Labor Board in a survey of results obtained by his conciliation agency.

Wagner said the national board alone already had settled more than half of the disputes affecting 300,000 workers, and that the number was being greatly increased by the work of 17 regional boards thus far established. Particularly significant, he said, was a volume of requests, coming principally from labor, for establishment of new regional boards.

States Get Relief Grants From U. S.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—(INS.)—Unemployment relief grants were announced by the Federal Relief Administration today as follows:

New Hampshire, $118,240; California, $996,674; Idaho, $113,343; Hawaii, $50,000; West Virginia, $350,000; Wyoming, $18,609.

U. S. PREPARING BALLOTS FOR MINE VOTE

Unionism Not Issue At Polls This Week, Say Operators

Employes of Western Pennsylvania's captive mines today submitted their lists of candidates to be placed on the ballots for the election of their representatives Wednesday and Thursday.

And the operators issued a joint statement, asserting that the question of union recognition would not enter the elections.

The last of the candidates were being submitted, as today was set as the deadline by National Labor Board mediators, stationed here to conduct the elections. The names will be printed on the ballots. Room will be left for miners to write in any candidate not printed.

BOARD CRITICIZED

After pointing out that the Labor Board would have done a better job if they had taken operators suggestions and set up secret primaries for nominating candidates and allowing time to elapse between them and the final selection day, the "joint" statement said:

"The mine owners will continue their long-established policy not to discriminate against any of the employes on account of their membership or non-membership in any labor organization. The individuals chosen to represent the employes will be recognized as the representatives of the employes selecting them, irrespective of their membership or non-membership in any labor organization.

"The operators desire that their employes clearly understand that the election to be held pursuant to the above mentioned notice is not for the purpose of voting for or against labor union recognition; it is for the sole purpose of selecting individuals to represent for collective bargaining the employes who shall select them. No employe is required to belong to any labor organization in order to obtain the benefits of collective bargaining. The desire for co-operation and mutual helpfulness is uppermost in the minds of the officials of the mine owners and in their opinion there is no reason why with mutual forbearance conditions satisfactory to all concerned should not prevail in the mines."

WORKERS' STAND

In a statement today Philip Murray, international vice president of the United Mine Workers of America, said:

"It is the purpose of the United Mine Workers of America to co-operate with the President and the National Labor Board in the conduct of the election. We will not follow the course of the captive mine owners by either posting notices or issuing circulars. We consider it to be the height of folly for either the United Mine Workers or the captive mine owners to indulge in ex parte statements, posting notices, or issuing circulars on either the matter of regulations governing the election or upon issues that may ensue as a result of negotiations."

COAL PRICE CUT FOR NEEDY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Only a few details remain to be worked out before the Federal Relief Administration starts buying millions of tons of anthracite and bituminous coal to warm impoverished homes this winter.

Coal men here were informed today that the Appalachian low volatile bituminous operators, as well as the anthracite industry, had agreed to sell relief coal at 10 per cent less than code or list price. They also heard that most other fields expected to agree to the same cut.

The railroads have agreed to haul the fuel for 20 per cent less than established rates.

Arrangements are being made with retailers to distribute relief coal at cost or slightly more.

Preliminary estimates called for purchase of 10,000,000 tons of soft coal and 2,000,000 tons of anthracite. Those figures, however, are subject to revision.

Anthracite Miners Again Back at Work

TAMAQUA, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Seven thousand hard coal miners employed by the Lehigh Navigation Coal Company who struck for a second time last week in a dispute over wages, returned to work today.

Seven collieries resumed operations. There were no demonstrations and the men were orderly.

Russ President Radios Greetings to America

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—President Michael Kalinin, of Soviet Russia, spoke today from Moscow to the United States, sending "a hearty greeting" to Americans.

President Kalinin's speech was received here and rebroadcast by the National Broadcasting Company. The speech was considerably marred by atmospheric conditions.

The Soviet President spoke in Russian and was followed on the air by an interpreter speaking in English. The President said:

"At this moment when normal relations between our two countries have been established, I am glad to send, in the name of the people of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, a hearty greeting to the people of the United States of America.

"I am convinced that now, when all the artificial obstacles to contact between the people of our two great countries are removed, it will greatly benefit our mutual interest and will further the economic and social progress of mankind and the strengthening of universal peace.

"I firmly believe that now will begin a new era of fruitful and manifold co-operation between the U. S. A. and the U. S. S. R."

Bar Group Would Ban Aldermen and Squires

The abolition of alderman and justice of the peace as fee offices and their replacement by a salaried minor judiciary apportioned according to population was recommended today in a report of the special committee on unauthorized practice of law of the Allegheny County Bar Association.

The report, covering a two-year period, hit "scavenger" credit agencies, fee-hungry justices of the peace and aldermen, ambulance-chasing notaries public and the Pittsburgh system of police magistracy. The committee is headed by William S. Doty, and includes Thomas P. Trimble, Jr., Thomas N. Griggs, William B. Paul and Jacob Shulgold.

The committee also recommended that police magistrates be attorneys selected on the basis of their knowledge of the scientific aspect of delinquency and not politicians as at present, a system which was described as "productive of as much, if not more, crime as is actually restrained or abated."

CHILDBIRTH DEATHS HELD FAULT OF MEDICAL PROFESSION

DOCTOR'S GROUP PLACES BLAME AFTER SURVEY

Mortality Rate Higher In Hospitals Than Homes, Report Says

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—The New York Academy of Medicine, in an exhaustive report made public today, held the medical profession itself responsible for 61.1 per cent of the avoidable deaths of mothers during childbirth in New York during the years 1930-31-32.

The report is based upon a study of "all puerperal deaths" in New York City during the three-year period—a total of 2,041. In arriving at its conclusions the committee of doctors, who made the study, investigated the circumstances of 341,879 births.

Of the 2,041 total of maternal deaths, the committee estimated that 1,343, or 65.8 per cent, could have been prevented "if the care of the woman had been proper in all respects."

PLACING THE BLAME

Blame for these preventable deaths was apportioned by the committee as follows:

Midwives ..... 2.2 per cent
Patients ..... 36.7 per cent
Medical group.... 61.1 per cent

The report of 290 pages said in part:

"Sixty per cent of all the deaths which could have been avoided have been brought about by some incapacity in the attendant: Lack of judgment, lack of skill, or careless inattention to the demands in the case. Some of these situations have arisen out of the fact that internes have been given too wide a field of independent activity. Most are plainly the results of incompetence."

The report, criticizing over-use of anaesthesia and instrumentation in child birth, noted that not more than 5 per cent of all delivery cases require operative interference. The investigation showed, however, that operative interference was practically in 24.3 per cent of the cases recorded at 67 New York hospitals.

MORE HOSPITAL DEATHS

The committee estimated that one out of every five deliveries in New York City is an operative delivery. The maternal death rate was five times as high among operative deliveries as among spontaneous ones. Said the report:

"It is not contended that the rates can be equal, but any such disparity as that shown in these figures is a certain indictment of those undertaking the interference."

The committee found the death rate of mothers in hospitals to be 4.5 per 1,000 live births. The death rate of mothers at home was 1.9. The committee pointed out:

"The maternal mortality rate for home deliveries is therefore substantially less than half of that in the hospital deliveries."

In summation the committee said:

"The hazards of childbirth in New York City are greater than they need be. Responsibility for reducing them rests with the medical profession."

The committee, which made its survey under a grant from the commonwealth fund, made numerous concrete recommendations to the medical profession. It said there is necessity for change in certain of the methods now employed: That hospitals must have qualified obstetricians as directors of their staffs; and that "the medical profession is obligated to inform the lay public that operative delivery undertaken merely to alleviate pain or shorten labor involves increased risk for both mother and baby."

Kresel's Sentence Delayed by Illness

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Sentencing of Isidor J. Kresel, former counsel and a director of the defunct Bank of United States, convicted last week of aiding and abetting in the misapplication of funds of an affiliate of the bank, was postponed today until next Monday because of Kresel's illness.

GUARD LAWYER IN ATTACK CASE

DECATUR, Ala., Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Judge W. W. Callahan, presiding over the "Scottsboro case," today instructed Sheriff Bud Davis to provide a guard for Samuel S. Leibowitz, chief counselor for the seven Negro defendants at "all places and all hours." The guard was immediately detailed.

A maze of legal points were rapidly cleared today as Judge Callahan arraigned the seven oldest defendants and set the third trial of Heywood Patterson for Monday, November 27. The defendants are accused of attacks on two white girls.

There were no national guardsmen present but immediately after court opened Judge Callahan swore in a score of special deputies to assist in maintaing order.

A plea of "not guilty" was entered for the seven Negroes by Leibowitz.

Hearing of arguments for a change of venue was set for late today. Hearing on the motion to quash the indictment was set for Thursday.

Wedell Sets Record For N. Y.-Miami Hop

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 20.—(INS.)—James Wedell, noted speed flier, today held a new record for a New York-Miami flight. Piloting a low-wing Wedell-Williams monoplane, Wedell set his craft down on the local field 5 hours 1 minute and 39 2-5 seconds after hopping off from Floyd Bennett Field, New York.

Wedell's flight broke the former mark of 6 hours and 10 minutes, held by Lou Reicher, by more than an hour.

MYSTERY GIRL'S INQUEST SET

A coroner's inquest into the death of Margaret C. Schwickrath, 24-year-old mystery girl whose body was viewed by 50,000 before she was identified, has been set for Thursday afternoon at 1:15 o'clock, Coroner W. J. McGregor said today.

A special order will be secured, McGregor added, to bring Roy and Grace Mull, and their son Elmer, from the county jail, where they are being held on a charge of murder.

They will be given an opportunity to tell their story.

Margaret Schwickrath, whose body was found in a sewer on the Allegheny river boulevard at the Sandy Creek road, October 30, lived in Haydensville, and for a time at 816 East Ohio street. She worked in a packing house.

Her body, when found, had been pierced by two bullets. The Mulls are represented by Attorney Robert B. Ivory, Jr., who said he will not permit his clinets to testify until they appear in court.

BALLOON SOARS 11 MILES IN AIR

took their records and tested the nature of the mystifying cosmic ray—to clarify if possible a problem at which the greatest of scientists are at odds.

SEEK BAROGRAPHS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Two officials of the National Aeronautic Association today took off from Bolling Field for Pittsburgh to obtain the barograph and records of Lieut. Commander T. G. W. Settle as soon as he alights from his flight toward the stratosphere.

Maj. Ray Cooper, manager of the N. A. A., and William Enyart, secretary of its contest committee, were the two assigned to check on Settle's records. They intend to shift the position to be as nearly on the landing spot of the balloon as possible.

SAFE TAKEOFF

AKRON, O., Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Seeking to penetrate further the mystery of the cosmic ray, Lieut. Commander T. G. W. Settle, of the Navy, and Maj. Chester L. Forney, Marine Corps mathematician, sailed away today for the stratosphere, at least 36,000 feet above the earth's surface.

The two men were aboard a seven-foot gondola, which swung beneath a huge hydrogen-filled bag, expected to carry them into the third layer of atmosphere above the earth.

The 600,000 cubic-feet gas bag was filled with 120,000 cubic feet of hydrogen, which swelled beneath the heat of the sun's rays in a three-hour wait after night had lifted at the air dock here.

The naval aeronaut sat atop the gondola as the lines were cast away. The ballast held the balloon close to the ground for several minutes.

Then the commander cast off eight 35-pound bags of sand and one 40-pound bag of lead dust, whereupon the huge craft shot upward 1,000 feet.

Waving farewell to three or four hundred spectators on the field below, the commander slid feet first through the porthole into the light metal gondola when the balloon was about 150 feet in the air.

Commander Settle instructed Perkins to drive to Pittsburgh to await the balloon's descent. He said that if no further instructions by wireless were received, to head east along the Lincoln highway out of Pittsburgh, since he expects the craft to drift in that general direction.

Balked in his first attempt to reach the stratosphere last summer when his gas valve stuck at an altitude of 5,000 feet in Chicago, Commander Settle has waited several days for favorable weather.

For food the men are carrying chocolate bars, coffee, hot chocolate, bananas, apples and grapes.

Commander Settle and Maj. Fordney, disdaining the cold which made spectators shiver in the vast airdock, wore only leather jackets and trousers, although the major did have a light topcoat which he alternately wore and discarded, during the wait for the takeoff.

'PLAYBOY' HELD UNBALANCED

he had not seen the petition until this morning.

He needed time to study the application which would declare McCready incompetent to handle his own estate, Eaton said.

Margiotti, refused a postponement by Judge Patterson, opened the hearing of testimony in the trust fund suit by explaining that he would present witnesses to prove McCready was unbalanced.

Eaton shot back at him:

"But he was sane enough to reopen in the courts last week, through his counsel, a judgment against him for $750. In your own pleadings you admit that sometimes he is rational."

Margiotti then read into the record a bill of complaint, which he declared was never filed, but was sworn to by Mrs. Margaret Welfer when she was Mrs. McCready No. 1 in 1930.

The complaint, as Margiotti read it into the record, asked for a receiver for McCready to prevent him from dissipating his $750,000 fortune. It explained that he spent, within two years, $160,000 for a home in the Fox Chapel district, and an additional $80,000 for furniture and draperies for the home.

Once, on a cruise in the Mediterranean, Margiotti read, the playboy was taken to the hold of the ship in a straitjacket because of excessive drinking.

Similar claims were made by Mrs. Welfer's father, James M. Long, while her mother, Mrs. Lottie R. Long, declared he was a habitual drunkard, Margiotti read.

Following Judge Gardner's postponement of the one application, at the request of Eaton, Margiotti asked Judge Patterson to postpone the hearing of the trust-breaking suit until the Worley application for a guardian had been disposed of. Judge Patterson refused, explaining that if a guardian were appointed later, he could join in the suit.

McCready's first wife has since married Frank H. Welfer.

DIVER INJURED HERE SEEKS $250,000

Jeffers Blinded, He Testifies in U. S. Court

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Art Jeffers, Pittsburgh diver, testified today in his suit for $250,000 against the Foundation Company of New York.

The case is being tried before Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe and a jury. Jeffers alleged that he was injured in an accident o nthe Ohio River at Pittsburgh July 25, 1930.

Jeffers testified he was ordered to place a charge of four sticks of dynamite under a stone in the river near a caisson in the construction of the West End Bridge. After placing the charge, he said, he was hauled back to his float, resting with his face plate removed, and waiting for the "O. K." before climbing completely out of the water to seek shelter from the explosion.

In his suit, Jeffers claimed that an inexperienced "shooter," whose name he gave as Roy Soward, of Pittsburgh, discharged the dynamite prematurely and caused Jeffers to be thrown 15 feet in the air, fracturing his leg and rendering him nearly totally blind. The diver alleged his right leg was shortened three and one-half inches and he has been under constant medical care since the accident.

Several physicians already have testified in person or by deposition. Among them was Dr. Charles W. Jennings, of Pittsburgh, who said the diver is totally blind except that he is able to tell the difference between day and night with the right eye. Others were Dr. Voight Mooney, of Pittsburgh, and Dr. William T. Powers, New York.

NURSE TO FACE NEW GRILLING

Universal Service.

SANTA CRUZ, Cal., Nov. 20.—Frieda Wilhelmina Weltz, war nurse on trial here for the murder of Francis J. M. Grace, wealthy shipping man, will face more cross-examination by prosecuting attorneys when her trial is resumed here today.

The cross-examination, District Attorney Frank J. Murphy said, will be directed at breaking down Miss Weltz's story that Grace drugged and attacked her while she was acting as his nurse two years ago. Several hours of prosecution grilling, so far have failed to shake her story of the asserted attack.

Defense testimony today and tomorrow is expected to bring several San Francisco nurses to the stand in an effort to prove that Grace frequently had to be treated for acute alcoholism. Attorney John Duggan, Jr., of Pittsburgh, indicated.

WOMAN SCALDS 3 IN SLEEP

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—The police arrested a woman today on a charge of pouring boiling oil on her husband and two daughters while they slept.

She first mixed it with sugar "to make it stick," detectives asserted.

The police said the woman, Mrs. Sara Faden, 50, gave no reason for her act. She was arrested in the kitchen of her home by a patrolman, who heard the screams of Harry Faden, 48, her husband, and the girls, Elizabeth, 16, and Yetta, 13.

DICK POWELL NOT KISSABLE, SAYS ARTIST

Universal Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 20.—Taking up the cudgel in defense of Hollywood's motion picture beauties whose alleged shortcomings were pointed out this week by Penrhyn Stanlaws, noted artist, Cris Marie Meeker, attractive portrait painter of the film capital, today gave her ideas concerning 12 male stars.

And here, Mr. Stanlaws, they are:

John Barrymore: He's the Katharine Hepburn of the males, says Miss Meeker, sensitive nostrils denote an artistic, but not a perfect face.

James Cagney: A perfect example of a face composed of heterogeneous parts. A jumble of features, made attractive by a vital personality.

Richard Barthelmess: A well-moulded face of the pugilistic type. Dogged expression rather than esthetic.

Clark Gable: A type whose features do not appeal to the tender woman. Eyes, ears and nose all too prominent for perfection.

NOT KISSABLE

Robert Montgomery: Eyes a little too close together, but it's their devilishness that lends him an appeal to women just a little bit bored.

William Powell: Piercing eyes. Practiced suaveness, but not strictly balanced features.

Fredric March: Chin and forehead construction balance face into one of masterful business executive type. Eyes, nose and mouth commonplace, however, and of secondary importance to chin and forehead.

THE BARRYMORE TYPE

Maurice Chevalier: That lower lip. Need more be said?

Warren William: The Barrymore type, but with stronger facial characteristics. The type that smashes his way through, rather than employ subtlety.

Ronald Colman: Only the eyes prevent a classically sculptured face from being symmetrical. Face of a student, rather than playboy.

And, men, that is Chris Marie Meeker's opinion of the outstanding male ambassadors of Hollywood. But she probably wouldn't have been provoked to this if Mr. Stanlaws hadn't swapped a palette for a portable to mildly roast Hollywood's most beautiful ladies.

BAY YIELDS HAT IN KIDNAPING

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Except for a hat, identified as Brooke L. Hart's, authorities today had found no important clue in their search for the body of the San Jose kidnaping victim.

Shortly after the hat was picked up by the searchers in the mudflats of San Francisco Bay last night, four oil company coupon books were discovered in the mud nearby. The cover of one of the books bore a signature, but it had been smeared by the water into ineligibility.

Authorities said they believed the books may have been dropped by Hart or by one of the two men accused of kidnaping him and throwing him into the bay from the San Mateo Bridge.

John M. Holmes and Thomas H. Thurmond, who police say confessed to abducting the 22-year-old store executive and slaying him in a $40,000 ramson plot, remained in the San Francisco City Prison.

WELLES' CUBAN POLICY BACKED BY ROOSEVELT

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Nov. 20, (AP.) — President Roosevelt is sending Ambassador Sumner Welles back to Havana to carry on the United States policy calling for establishment of definite stability in the troubled island.

A brief announcement by the President last night, after a five-hour talk with Welles, that the Ambassador would return to his post, was accepted here as meaning there would be no immediate change in the American attitude of non-recognition of the Grau San Martin government and of non-intervention in the island.

In other words, Mr. Roosevelt is waiting to see what the San Martin group can do to maintain peace and stability. The views of Ambassador Welles in this regard were kept confidential.

After devoting his first day at Warm Springs to the Cuban situation, Mr. Roosevelt cast aside official calls today to enter into the relaxation he intends to have here on the quiet hills of his "other state." Warm, sunny weather again lured the President for a ride about the town.

It is the first visit here by him as President of the United States. A secret service car trailing him when he is on the dusty road is the only open evidence of his change in office.

Later this week and throughout his two weeks' stay here, the President will confer with government officers. The industrial administrator, Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, in all probability will be among the first to come.

Henry Morgenthau, Jr., who as newly appointed acting secretary of the Treasury is directing the gold control monetary program, also is expected here about Thanksgiving time.

Mrs. James Roosevelt, his mother, is with the President at the "Little White House."

Grau San Martin Waits Washington Decision

HAVANA, Nov. 20.—President Grau San Martin was keenly interested today in reports from Warm Springs, Ga., of the conference between President Roosevelt and Ambassador Welles, but he declined to make a statement.

He listened intently as correspondents told him Welles would go to Washington before returning to Cuba.

Havana was an armed camp as government troops hurried about putting the finishing touches upon a gigantic defensive preparation for a new revolution.

Machine gun nests were placed at vantage points throughout the capital; all guards, on alarm footing, were doubled; sand bags were placed about every important public building, including the presidential palace, and anti-aircraft guns were mounted on the roof of the palace.

Bombs exploded sporadically throughout the city all night, and scattered shootings occurred, but it was believed the counter-revolutionaries were not yet ready to launch their real attack.

Machado's Cold Delays Journey to New York

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Nov. 20.—(INS.)—Suffering from a slight cold, Gerardo Machado, former president of Cuba, today was confined to his hotel room here, but hoped to motor to New York City later in the day to visit his wife and two daughters.

Machado motored here from Montreal, where he fled for refuge after he was swept from power in the island republic.

He kept strictly in seclusion, declining to make any comment on Cuban affairs or his future plans. He said:

"I like this restful countryside very much. I would like to live in this country. I am looking forward to my visit to New York.

7 DIE IN SPANISH ELECTION RIOTS

MADRID, Nov. 20. — (AP.) — With seven already known dead and 300 injured further outbreaks were feared today as a result of Spain's first constitutional election. Incomplete returns from yesterday's balloting indicated a sweeping Rightist triumph.

Far fewer disorders than had been anticipated developed, but extreme vigilance was continued because of fears that there might be some dissension on the part of troops headed by Leftist officers.

Troops in Madrid, Barcelona and Seville were ordered held in readiness for any emergency, it was learned on reliable authority.

In the first national election in which women ever had participated, approximately 12,500,000 voters were qualified to ballot to select 473 deputies for the first regular Congress of the second republic. It will convene December 8. The first Congress merely drew up a constitution.

33 NATIONS JOIN SEAL SALE

Thirty-three nations will sell Christmas Seals this year in the world-wide effort to check tuberculosis, John F. Casey, chairman of the sale which begins here November 28, said today.

The movement began in 1904 in Denmark when it occurred to a postal clerk to affix a special stamp to Christmas packages and letters as a means of raising funds to combat the disease, whose mortality was alarming. Practically all the 33 countries use a new design each year, excepting Scotland.

Christmas Seal letters will be mailed to thousands of Pittsburgers next Monday, it was announced by the league. Later, in December, booth sales in charge of women's groups will begin. These two methods are the only ones used in the sale of seals, although in various parts of the county different methods are sometimes used.

PINCHOT OUSTS PRISON BOARD CHAIRMAN

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Nov. 20.—Henry N. Woolman, chairman of the Prison Board of Trustees at Eastern Penitentiary, was dismissed from office by Gov. Gifford Pinchot today. Dismissal is immediate and no successor was named.

In announcing the dismissal, Gov. Pinchot said yesterday's attempted outbreak at the jail had no influence on his decision.

The Governor's action was a fulfillment of his pledge to remove Woolman unless he tendered his resignation as demanded by the Chief Executive Saturday. Gov. Pinchot blamed Woolman for overcrowded conditions at the Cherry Hill institution in Philadelphia, where riots have occurred recently.

Woolman had refused to resign and branded the Governor's demand as "political expedient to fasten the blame for the occurrence on some one." He claimed Pinchot was "personally responsible" for the disorders.

Wholesale Jail Delivery At Eastern Pen Foiled

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Several hundred convicts who failed in a wholesale jail delivery were under lock and key today, their plot a grim reminder that unrest still seethes behind the century-old walls of the Eastern State Penitentiary, scene of recent serious riots.

Massed in one of the prison's small exercise yards, a group of the convicts produced a makeshift ladder from a carefully concealed hiding place yesterday and made a dash for the wall.

Before the guards were aware what was happening, some of the leaders were clambering to the top, one of them with a roll of plaited binding twine. The rickety ladder wouldn't hold more than four or five but these almost gained the outside before being observed.

A tower guard glimpsed them—shots rang out, fired into the ground as a warning—and ot' guards rushed to the scene. Th on the wall kicked the ladder away and confiscated the "rope."

With drawn pistols, guards in the yard herded the prisoners back into their cells and another episode of "The Big House" was ended.

Mrs. Garavini, who saw her husband shot in a battle with "Iggy" Swartz, gambler, who was her first husband, collapsed. Since, she has been under the care of a physician and nurse in the Mt. Lebanon home which Garavini bought for her.

Lieut. Frank Ferris, of the Homicide Squad, said he would visit the Garavini home today to learn whether the red-haired widow is able to visit detective headquarters.

Swartz is under arrest for the killing of the William Penn way hacker, who had a bootlegging record.

DELAY M'CLURE TRIAL DEFENSE

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 20.—At the request of counsel for State Senator John J. McClure and 75 co-defendants charged with operating a huge rum graft ring in Delaware County, Federal Judge George A. Welsh today postponed until tomorrow morning the opening of the defendants' case.

The government closed its case in the United States District Court Saturday after calling 141 witnesses during the 41 days the trial has been in progress. The testimony offered by the government covers 8,000 pages, or 2,000,000 words.

Defense attorneys spent Sunday in conference. Except for admitting they had requested to disponement, they refused to disclose any conclusions reached at the conference.

Observers, however, pointed out that only two courses are open to the defense. It must either attempt to discredit testimony of government witnesses or charge that five Delaware County constables, sent to prison for extortion, conspired to "frame" McClure for refusing to aid them.

CRIPPLE TRIED IN SLAYING

The case is being tried before Judge Norman T. Boose, of Somerset County.

LIQUOR MAKERS FIGHT PINCHOT TAX MEASURE

testimony of Richard A. Woolsey, representing the Continental Distilling Company, of Philadelphia, who under questioning said that the cost of making a quart of whisky is 35 cents. His plant, he said, was the largest in the country.

Representatives of drug manufacturers asked that they be excluded from the whisky tax provision, which seemed to find favor with the committee.

Distillers' agents said they did not object to a tax, but feared discrimination in the bill under consideration, which is a manufacturers' tax.

A. Leo Weil, of Pittsburgh, spoke for the Pennsylvania Distillers' Association and especially for the Schenley Distillery.

CRUSADER BACKS BILL

Joseph S. Clarke, Jr., of Philadelphia, head of the Crusaders, defended the tax bill, and said it had been carefully drawn with a consideration of the rights of distillers, the public and a desire to obliterate the bootlegger through making whisky available at a low price.

REVENUE LOSS CITED

The Governor's statement concerning the $2-a-gallon floor tax bill was made after a conference with Republican State Chairman Edward Martin and Grover Talbot, Speaker of the House, in which the bill passed last week.

Mr. Pinchot said:

"Delay in passing House bill No. 9, which provides for a floor tax on alcoholic liquor, will cost the people of Pennsylvania about a million dollars a day. One distillery alone, I am informed, has been shipping 200,000 gallons a day out of the state. Consequently, it is of the utmost importance that the floor tax bill should pass without a single day's unnecessary postponement."

HEARING SLATED

Fate of the entire Pinchot liquor control program hangs on the result of the hearing being held this afternoon on tax and license measures, and a later Republican caucus to discuss a party attitude toward the Governor's bill creating state liquor stores and placing the state in charge of liquor sales even to hotels and restaurants.

Distillers and wholesalers were in Harrisburg in force fighting the bill imposing a tax of $1 a gallon on whisky made after repeal, as well as license fees. Both measures were held up in the House last week after they appeared to have clear sailing.

STORES FIGHT GROWING

The stores bill, which is only on second reading in the House, is in for a hard fight. Thirty-two Philadelphia Republican members of the House have agreed to oppose it, and Representative Joseph G. Steedle, of McKees Rocks, has picked up an undetermined number of opposing votes from Allegheny County.

Democrats are at sea on the question, but some of them are known to oppose the state stores bill, which was introduced by Representative James H. McClure, of Allegheny County.

The picture has changed completely since last Tuesday, when Steedle in a Republican caucus blocked approval of the bill at a time when sentiment against it had not developed. Republican State Chairman Martin at that time was reported to be for the bill, but since then has lost control of a substantial number of his organization.

Amendments to the bill are certain when it comes up on the floor tonight. So varied may be these demanded changes that it may be sent back to committee and become the subject of a hearing which means delay and the possibility that there will be no control legislation December 5.

The bill imposing a $2 floor tax on liquor already in storage or manufactured before December 5 has passed the House and is in the Senate's committee.

BLOW AT PINCHOT

Distillers contend they would be taxed for goods before sale and would further be taxed immediately for liquor which has recently been manufactured and which under federal law they cannot sell for at least four years. The plan of Gov. Pinchot is to sweep up an immediate $25,000,000 from this liquor, and his special legislative call program is predicated on financing many enterprises through this source.

Distillers have said they will fight the bill in the courts, even if it eventually passes, thus tieing up the money, and so dislocating the whole Pinchot program.

If this is done the Governor either must abandon many of the measures of social legislation he proposes or find new revenue, and either alternative presages a long and bitter fight.

Du Pont Warns Liquor Bans Will Defeat Aims

Urges Unrestricted Traffic, Low Tax After Repeal

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—A policy of giving the American liquor drinker "what he wants when he wants it, where he wants it," was advocated today by Pierre S. Du Pont, Delaware state liquor commissioner and chairman of E. I. Dupont De Nemours & Company.

The Wilmington industrialist, who has long been associated with the repeal movement as chairman of the executive committee of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, laid down his suggestions at a hearing before a liquor committee of the Federal Bar Association today.

Du Pont centered much of his discussion about the need of a post prohibition policy of liberality.

APPROVES BARS

He approved selling over the bar, low excises on liquor, a general principle of "common sense" in dealing with liquor distribution; and made the prediction that liquor consumption in the United States in a year or so would dwindle to about one-half that of the consumption in 1914. He said:

"The worst feature of the post prohibition problem is the one of which least mention has been made. Namely, there must be a decided move to show people that they can have what they want, when they want it and where they want it, or we will never rid ourselves of bootlegging and law evasion."

A warning against enactment of ill-advised liquor control laws and under-estimation of "the power and influence of professional drys," was sounded by Henry Ward Beer, president of the Federal Bar Association. He said:

"I warn the fighters for repeal to awaken to renewed and greater action against permitting the common public enemy to write laws which will be in their nature and effect worse than prohibition itself.

COERCION CHARGED

"At this moment, the professional drys have scared Legislatures, committees and newly appointed commissions out of their wits by repeating arguments definitely destroyed by the will of the people.

"Frankly, it would be a criminal mistake to underestimate the force of the power and influence over liquor law making that the drys have arrayed against the wets.

"The drys have the staying power and it is not the time for such great fighters as President Roosevelt, Alfred E. Smith, James A. Farley, Mrs. Sabin and Henry Curran to quit. It would be foolish and indefensible for them to turn their backs on the people's need for their help. These men and women who have given us this great victory should have the most to say about the new liquor making."

Definition of Saloon Stumps Assembly

HARRISBURG, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—All bound around with liquor law problems and talk of barring the barrooms forever, the Legislature finds itself stumped by a question a lot of folks feel qualified to answer:

What is a saloon?

Lawyers explain that there is no legal definition nor judicial interpretation of the word.

So they're asking the question in the Senate and the House and the cloakrooms and the corridors:

What is a saloon?

Webster says a saloon is a grog shop, a room or place where intoxicating liquors are sold and consumed. He adds that it is used to designate that room in a hotel, inn or tavern where drinks are sold for drinking on the spot.

Some lawyers assert it is a room containing a stand-up bar, over which intoxicating liquor is sold, and in which food is sold along with the liquor or given free to stimulate the sale of liquor.

Friends of the administration point out that Gov. Pinchot's liquor bills would bar the saloon. Liquor could be sold only in dining rooms. Food could not be given away to stimulate sale of liquor—that means no "free lunch," one of the outstanding features of the old bar-room.

So, it is likely the Pennsylvania drinking parlor of tomorrow will have few of the old saloon features, no bar, no "free lunch" and probably—no swinging doors.

MANAGER BILL TO BE OFFERED BY DEMOCRAT

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Nov. 20.—Representative John J. Kane, Democrat, Pittsburgh, tonight will introduce in the House the same city manager bill for Pittsburgh he presented last session, and which did not get out of committee.

Decision by a Democrat to introduce the measure came after Republicans who blocked it in the regular session had discussed pushing the proposal now that a Democratic Mayor has been elected in Pittsburgh. Republican organization leaders talked it over, and there was some discussion that the bill would be put in by Representative Leonard Kane, of the Fourth District.

John Kane was elected to Pittsburgh City Council November 7.

By tonight's action John Kane dissipates any charge of insincerity on his part, any allegation that he changed his principles because of the change in party control in the city. It is doubtful, however, whether the bill will have any better fate than it did before. Mayor-elect William N. McNair has said he is against it, and other Democrats have declared themselves of the same opinion.

The Kane bill is a permissive measure which allows Pittsburgh to vote on whether it will adopt the city manager form of government.

Kane also will introduce tonight the so-called party-raiding bill which he sponsored in the regular session, and which was passed and vetoed by the Governor. It prevents a candidate becoming the aspirant for the nomination in more than one office, and is designed to protect the Democratic primary from raiding.

The bill as passed was vetoed by Mr. Pinchot on grounds of unconstitutionality, but it is known to have been unsatisfactory to Judge John Fine, of Luzerne County, a Pinchot supporter. It had Republican support, being voted against in the Senate only by Senator Frank J. Harris, of the Allegheny County membership.

SHELTON HITS SENATOR REED

John M. Huston, city councilman-elect, and Albert D. Brandon, former city magistrate, spoke last night at a mass meeting in the Second Presbyterian Church.

Huston, promising that the payroll is coming out of Pittsburgh politics, declared that the invitation to sit in on the city butget making did not mean that the new councilmen would take responsibility for it.

The Rev. Dr. George W. Shelton, pastor of the church, also spoke, asserting that if Senator David A. Reed keeps on talking the way he has, he will make many new Democrats, including Dr. Shelton.

Marriage Opposed

MARY CATHERINE DANAHEY

BREWERS SEEK 5-CENT BEER

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—What this country needs—and will eventually get—is the old-time foaming 5-cent glass of beer.

So declared the nation's brewers today as they threw their weight behind a proposal to reduce the 3.2 per cent beer tax from $5 to $3 a barrel and impose a tax of $7 a barrel on beer of higher alcoholic content.

The executive committee of the United States Brewers' Association and the American Brewers' Association proposed presentation of the new tax plan to Congress as their "contribution to the temperance movement in the United States."

The brewers contended the plan would promote consumption of a non-intoxicating beverage and bring the greatest amount of revenue to the Treasury.

At the same time the brewers conceded a demand would exist for beer of a higher alcoholic content, but said the consumers from whom the demand would come would not be averse to paying the $7 a barrel tax.

RENEW COUNT FOR SHERIFF

With the canvass of the vote cast in the city wards, completed in the unsettled contest for sheriff between Sheriff Frank I. Gollmar and John Heinz, Democratic candidate, members of the return board, resuming their duties today, were checking the vote polled in the third class cities, boroughs and townships.

Sheriff Gollmar had a lead of 611 votes in the official returns from the 32 wards of the city over the unofficial total for him reported from the same districts on election night.

Hawaii Policeman Accused by Woman

HONOLULU, T. H., Nov. 20.—(INS.)—Manual Andrade, police officer, was arrested today following charges made by a 26-year-old Hawaiian woman that he beat and attacked her.

The woman declared Andrade showed her his badge and offered to escort her home from a party. On arrival at her home, she said, the attack occurred. Andrade denied the charge.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 20.—(INS.)—Mrs. Nina Benson Cooke, widow of Jay Cooke, who died in England a year ago, succumbed today at her home here to an illness of eight weeks.

Under the will of her husband, Mrs. Cooke received the income from the bulk of his estate of $2,162,452. The estate now passes to a son, Jay Cooke II.

Drinking Capacity Of U. S. Puzzles Distillers

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—The "unknown habits of Americans in the mass" as concerns liquor drinking are making it difficult for distillers and wine men to estimate just what demand they will be called upon to meet under repeal.

The only possible measuring rod, according to G. M. Vanderbeek, managing director of the national wines and spirits show to be held here next month, is the report of consumption during 1913. In that year, he said, 147,445,628 gallons of spirits and 55,327,461 gallons of wine were consumed.

The present whisky capacity of the United States as represented by the eight operating distillers is 31,500,000 gallons a year, Vanderbeek said.

URGE BEER TAX ON POWER BASIS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—To congressional committees considering the liquor tax situation there went today a recommendation that federal beer taxes scale upward with the alcoholic content of the brew.

Brewers decided at a meeting that the tax, from a temperance as well as a fiscal standpoint, should be $3 a barrel on 3.2 beer and $7 a barrel on brew containing more alcohol.

Attending were the executive committee of the United States Brewers' Association and representatives of the American Brewers' Association.

C. D. Williams, New York, said: "By lowering the tax to $3 (it is now $5 a barrel) on the present legalized beverage, we will undoubtedly greatly increase the consumption of the lower alcoholic content beer which has been scientifically shown to be nonintoxicating beverage."

Quits His Supper To Become Champ Pancake-Eater

GARRETSVILLE, O., Nov. 20, (AP.)—Maybe if he hadn't started to eat his supper before entering the contest, thinks Edward Ziska, he might have made a better record in becoming the best buckwheat pancake eater in Portage County.

Ziska, a farmer who weighs 210 pounds, entered after two of the leading prospects were forced out, and went directly from his half-finished supper to the contest.

Orville E. Hissom, of Ravenna, who weighs 405 pounds, couldn't get to the hall because of icy roads, and Lewis Templin, Garretsville florist, became ill at the last moment.

Harold E. Reed pushed back his plate after finishing eight seven-inch cakes.

But Ziska consumed six more than Reed.

BOY MURDERED, NOTE SAYS

BALTIMORE, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—A note slipped under the doorway before dawn today informed the parents of Carroll Andrews, 13, who has been missing since Friday, that he had been murdered and that his body is secreted in a nearby woods.

Police immediately began a search in the vicinity, but after several hours no trace of the boy's body had been found.

The father of the boy, George Andrews, discovered the crudely written note when he opened the door to take in the milk and the morning paper. It read:

"We killed Friday. He is in the woods. We killed boy."

In one corner was a roughly drawn representation of a heart pierced by a dagger.

Mrs. Andrews, who became hysterical after seeing the note, said she was convinced her son had been the victim of violence.

GERSHWIN GIVES SYMPHONY GALA NIGHT

Opening of Season Proves Triumph For Orchestra

PROGRAM

Overture "Egmont" ..... Beethoven
Symphony No. 4 ..... Tschaikowsky
Concerto in F ..... Gershwin
Symphonic Poem "An American in Paris" ..... Gershwin
Rhapsody in Blue ..... Gershwin

Last night was gala night for the Pittsburgh Symphony Society, when our players gave their first concert of the season in Syria Mosque.

It marked a triumph for their efforts at music as well as for their courage in combatting the ancient blue laws. There was a sold-out house with many standees and overflowing enthusiasm.

Mr. Lissfelt

The program ranged from the grandest classics to George Gershwin's Americanisms, contrast aplenty, with feverish arguments among the musicians and the laymen. It was a healthy contest, everyone spoke his mind freely, and we all learned marvelous things about music.

In the excitement for the guest soloist perhaps some forgot to recognize that Antonio Modarelli, our own conductor, is personally responsible for whatever improvement we find in his orchestra, for the rousing response of his men to his own beat as well as to that of the visitors.

With the opening sweep of his violins in the "Egmont" Overture we knew at once that he was in good form. Could he have seen with what joy his audience listened to the symphony, quite especially to the sprightly scherzo, he must have been repaid for his toil.

That we have at last heard authoriative readings of George Gershwin's music with the composer himself at the piano is most important.

Gershwin's piano playing we may dismiss from the picture. There are thousands of players in this land who do better. His playing has nothing to do with the art of piano playing, that is, as he gives it to us in his works.

He says they should not be played as Chopin, but as Liszt played. Did he ever hear Liszt play? From those who have heard Liszt, and were at his elbow in Villa Wahnfried when he played night after night, and who told me of how he played, I should judge that Gershwin does not play li' Liszt.

He uses the piano merely as percussion instrument in his works. If he means it to be a solo instrument then his writing for it is feeble indeed. Trite tricks, not wonderful themes with equisite nor bold modeling, are there in abundance.

His music, it seems to me, is neither good jazz nor does it bear the earmarks of other excellent music—I speak of memorable themes, of continuity in the idea, of consistent development. It is like photography as compared to a Rembrandt. And there is where Gershwin has done music and America a real service.

Gershwin has photographically recorded forever the music of America at a given period in our development. It is a picture of our emotion in the after-war epoch, memorable enough for all of us who passed through it, memorable for all composers since this music permeated the consciousness of all the greatest writers.

If Gershwin is not the genius to have written the greatest music in this style, at least he has kept it for another. And that is why we should have heard this music.

We may be grateful to our orchestra, and they played it as if they enjoyed it.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

"WILL AUTOMOBILE PRICES REALLY GO UP, POP?"

"That's why I bought our New Plymouth Now, Sonny!"

BUTTER—EGGS—SHIRTS—SHOES. They're all on the up. Will motor car prices rise too? Figure it out for yourself. Everything that goes into a car costs more today than it did a few months ago. Steel, for example. And ore. And glass. All are higher in price.

But these increased costs are not yet reflected in Plymouth's price to you. The price of the big, roomy, much-for-your-money Plymouth Six is still $445 and up F. O. B. at the factory. That's the base price of the biggest value it's been Plymouth's privilege to offer.

What do these dollars buy? A beautiful big car. A car you'll be proud to own—that "has everything" you'd expect in a higher-priced automobile.

What else do Plymouth-dollars buy? Hydraulic brakes that let you stop in a snap but without a jerk. A husky 70-horsepower motor. Floating Power engine mountings that give you a smooth ride—that add life to your engine.

And ... a safety-steel body of steel reinforced with steel solidly placed upon Plymouth's sturdy rigid-X double-drop frame.

It's the Bargain of the Decade!

Even at today's tempting price, it's not what you pay that makes Plymouth a bargain. It's what you get for what you pay! That's why Plymouth is a best-seller, in the lowest-price group, in more than a few cities. That's why it will pay you to see a Dodge, De Soto or Chrysler dealer—and ask for a Plymouth demonstration!

RIPLEY FREAKS COMING HERE FROM FAIR

Here you are, folks, here you are!

A conglomeration of the greatest array of oddities and curiosities is coming to Pittsburgh. Fifth avenue is going to have a midway of its own.

The entire show from Ripley's Odditorium, right off the midway of Chicago's Century of Progress Exposition, is to move into Pittsburgh. It will be a presentation of the Sun-Telegraph which features Robert L. Ripley's "Believe It or Not" cartoon daily and Sunday.

That the Sun-Telegraph is one of 300 daily newspapers that prints "Believe It or Not" accounts for Pittsburgh seeing this collossal collection of 25 human oddities and 300 inanimate curiosities, so soon after the close of the World's Fair.

NEW ATTRACTIONS

And if you saw it at Chicago, there will be even added attractions new for you when the show opens next Monday in the former Campbell department store, 333 Fifth avenue, midway between Smithfield and Wood streets. It will be there for one week. It will be open daily from 11 a. m. with continuous performences, except Thanksgiving Day and Saturday, when the doors will open one hour earlier.

There you will find John and Martha Martini, Filipino midgets, said to be the smallest persons in the world; there'll be the cartoonist who draws, simultaneously, the pictures of a man and woman in the audience, using both hands as he works; Lorello, said to be the only person in the world who can turn his head completely around. Then there is Medusa, "child of the sea," who has the body of an infant and the head of an adult; Greenleaf Greenwald, who makes music from the leaves of trees and shrubs; LaMont and his 20 acrobatic cockatoos and talkative parrots, and Mrs. W. P. Thomas, the length of whose hair eclipses even that of the woman whose tresses amazed visitors at the exposition. These are in addition to the features shown at Chicago.

CHARITY GIFTS

It will all be there to see, believe it or not. Your price of admission, the Sun-Telegraph's share of which will be given to Christmas Charity, will offer among other favorites of Ripley's Odditorium at the fair: Paul Whittaker, the boy who can pop out his right eye; John T. Bowers, he talks without vocal cords; "Lepo" Williams with the spotted skin of a leopard; Charles Romano, the premier dislocationist; the "Ossified Boy"; Agnes Schmidt, the girl with the rubber skin; Harry and Lillian McGregor, they lift weights and pull heavy loads with their eyelids. Many more curiosities await to thrill the visitor.

Hours of entertainment and educational features, gathered by Ripley from all points of the world, await the adult visitors for the small admission of 40 cents. Children will gather memories for a lifetime for their 15 cents for those aged 12 or under. A dime will gain the kiddies admittance between 10 a. m. and noon on Thanksgiving Day and Saturday.

OLD 'MET' STAR COMES BACK

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Twenty-five years ago tonight a tall, handsome baritone from Italy—in his American debut at the Metropolitan—brought cheers from the "Golden Horseshoe."

He was Pasquale Amato, one of the operatic stars of all time.

The opera was "Traviata," Verdi's tragedy of the Lady of the Camelias. With Amato that night sang Caruso and Marcella Sembrich.

Tonight—in the mammoth old Hippodrome on Sixth avenue—Amato sings "Traviata" again.

It will be a gala anniversary. Compeers of old will be there. Caruso is dead. Sembrich is ill; she's 75 now. But Geraldine Farrar has reserved half the front row.

It was with Farrar that Amato sang in the world premier at the "Met" of Puccini's "Girl of the Golden West."

Amato sings tonight and if the voice isn't what it once was, the artistry is still there—and the grandeur.

SLOVAK GROUP MEETS HERE

What Is an Unwed Mother's Duty to Her Child?

Has an unwed mother a right to keep her baby?

Will she be doing it a terrible injustice if she does keep it?

These are the agonizing questions that are facing Rose Marie. Holding her baby in her arms, she dreams of its future—of what happiness it will be to watch its toddling feet, its unfolding growth.

But—has she a right to be a part of that future? What is her duty to the child she idolizes?

Read her letter.

Dear Miss Robinson:

Won't you please help me to make a terribly important decision? I just can't decide what is right, myself.

I am an unwed mother. I am not complaining about that. I made a mistake. It was as much my fault as it was the man's. I am suffering for it, but I am not asking for sympathy. What I want to know is—

Have I a right to keep my baby?

I want to keep my darling, more than I want anything else in this world. I am willing to work for her, to suffer for her if need be.

But would I be selfish if I kept her for myself, and deprived her of a child's right to a normal upbringing in a regular family, by people who would adopt her and give her a father as well as a mother.

THINKS OF FUTURE

Or would I be selfish to give her up and deprive her of her own mother's love.

For myself, I would rather suffer hardship, disgrace, than to miss the experience of being a mother. I have learned many, many things from this mistake I have made.

But I want to do the best thing for this little baby girl of mine. Dare I keep her? Is there really any hope that people's ideas have changed, so that she would not have to suffer humiliation because of being born out of wedlock?

Oh, it breaks my heart to think of giving her up! She is so sweet, with her downy curls and her big blue eyes, and even now, when she is not quite a year old, she does love me. It would be like cutting off my right hand to part with her, but I will do even that rather than spoil her chances of growing up into a happy life.

WANTS OPINIONS

Badly as it would hurt me to part with her, it would hurt me far worse if my longing to keep her should lead me into doing what would cast a shadow on that life.

Please help me. I do so want to know what is the right thing for me to do. I know there must be many other girls in my position. I wonder what they have decided? And how it turned out.

And I wonder, too, what other people think about this. Maybe some of them will help me decide. Dare I keep her? Or if I do, will it ruin her life?

ROSE MARIE.

I know what I think, child. But you want to know what the world thinks, don't you? So I'll pass this on to the world.

What's your verdict, you who've read this? What would you do with this fatherless little mite?

If Rose Marie keeps her will the world brand her?

Or has the world moved enough—grown kind enough—to give her a chance—the chance that is any child's right?

Rose Marie is waiting for your answer.

Fay King Finds Alimony Isn't All It Would Seem to Be

By FAY KING

It seems that being awarded large alimony is one thing, but collecting it something else again!

No doubt many women are a little envious when they read the first announcements. Sometimes the divorce settlements and alimony payments are astounding considering the short duration of the marriage and the fact that there are no children.

But later on we read that the payments have been long deferred and in some cases the alimony jail is preferred to making these payments.

Remarriage is another way of getting out of alimony payments. One man married and divorced his wife three times, reducing the alimony in each instance until after the third divorce it was a comparative pittance.

Alimony "queens" make it difficult for the more deserving!

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Persistent Cough in a Child a Danger Signal

A mother recently wrote to ask whether it could be possible for a child to inherit a persistent cough from his father. Apparently the father was the victim of chronic bronchitis and the child is now suffering from frequent attacks of bronchitis, aggravated by sudden changes of weather.

Dr. Copeland

It is possible to inherit a weakness of the lungs and perhaps to have lowered resistance of the tissues against certain germs. In consequence there may be infection which leads to persistent cough. This is often a stumbling block to normal growth and development.

I advised that the child, as well as the father, be carefully examined and every effort be made to determine the exact nature of their coughs. The possibility of asthma or lung tuberculosis must never be overlooked with a history like this.

Persistent cough, loss of weight, night sweats, and general rundown condition, are signs that must be heeded. They usually indicate inflammation of the larynx or windpipe.

Croup is not so common as it used to be, but it sometimes afflicts children between the ages of 2 and 5. Some children seem to be more susceptible to it than others. As a rule, the affliction follows exposure to cold and dampness and is usually associated with adenoids or enlarged tonsils.

Repeated attacks of croup should never be neglected. Every effort should be made to improve the health of the child's breathing apparatus.

An acute attack of croup is alarming and frightens the mother who has never seen this affliction. The child may complain of hoarseness and nasal discharge for a few hours. Some time during the night he is awakened by a barking, urgent cough. The cough increases in severity. The attack may be so severe as to cause the child to have great difficulty in breathing.

It is always advisable to call a physician and, while waiting for him to arrive, several things may be done to give relief. First, place the child in a hot bath and keep him there for from 15 to 20 minutes. Then cover him well with blankets and await the arrival of the doctor.

If you have a "croup kettle" in your house, this may be called into service. The steam is conducted into a tent made of a sheet over the bed. This diminishes the spasms and relieves the difficulty in breathing.

Do not neglect any of the ailments of childhood and, above all, respect and heed all of Nature's warnings. Persistent cough, hoarseness, and other lung symptoms require expert medical attention and should never be neglected.

In many cases it is advisable to resort to an X-ray picture and other laboratory tests to determine accurately what is wrong. Your physician will advise these measures if they are necessary.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Safety Play

Bridge hands that interest the player, as Prof. George M. Bolling, of Ohio State University, points out in submitting the hand below, are those which in retrospect leave a question in the mind. A problem in the bidding or the play was perhaps not thoroughly thought out or, contrariwise, the partnership bidding, the attacking or defending play, as the case may be, was of such fine precision that its memory lingers long after the hand itself is only a dim memory.

The hand which caused this observation is a rather interesting one, and with a different Opening would present a real problem in play. As it was, the play should have been crystal clear, and would have been, I have no doubt, to Prof. Bolling—who, by the way, is not only the Contract Bridge champion of Ohio, but one of the few who can speak ancient Greek with eloquence and precision—had it not been for the fact that, as he explains, his opponent on the left was given to psychological Doubles and had doubled the contract for penalties.

North, Dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♡ (1)	Pass
3 N T (2)	Pass	4 ◇ (3)	Pass
4 ♡ (4)	Pass	4 ♠ (5)	Pass
4 N T (6)	Pass	5 ♡ (7)	Pass
6 ♡ (8)	Pass	Pass	Double (9)
Pass	Pass	Pass

1—With a splendid fit with partner's suit and 4 honor-tricks in the hand, the Forcing Takeout is a matter of course.

2—Save for the distributional values, North's hand is a bare minimum. However, I believe that a bid of four hearts would be better here, as there is a risk that the hand many play in three notrump.

3—South's hand is strong enough to show another biddable suit.

4—Merely indicating a preference. North must keep the bidding open until game is reached.

5—A mild Slam try.

6—In view of the splendid fit in hearts, the support for spades by South and North's honor in diamonds, this bid, even with a minimum hand, is probably justified.

7—Prof. Bolling might have bid six hearts here. He was fortunate to find his partner willing to bid again.

8—Unquestionably this is an overbid.

9—Prof. Bolling states that this Double was psychological. It certainly seems to have no other basis.

The Opening lead was the diamond Knave, and Prof. Bolling won this trick with the Ace and exhausted the adverse trumps in two rounds. In analyzing the Opening lead and the Double he decided that the diamond holding in the West hand must be something like four to the Knave-ten-eight! Therefore, after the trumps were exhausted he finessed the diamond and lost, after which, of course, he lost another trick to the Ace of clubs.

Actually, the hand can and should be made against any distribution with the diamond Opening. The play is simple. Winning the first diamond with the Ace, the trumps are drawn and the diamonds are led. If the suit breaks 3-3, the making of seven will depend upon guessing the spade finesse, and if it breaks in any other way all that is necessary to assure the making of six is to ruff South's remaining diamond in the Dummy and throw either opponent in with a club. If a spade is returned, the finesse is taken automatically. If a club is returned the Declarer can discard one of his spades and ruff in the Dummy.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

'Dates'

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

If you will please settle this argument for me, I will be very grateful. A says that the statement "I have a date tonight" is wrong and that date is slang. B says that the statement "I have an appointment tonight" is wrong, as appointment applies only to business. B argues that date is a new word and can be used. C.

Better than either date or appointment for social use, is the word engagement. Appointment does seem very business-like, and date does seem slangy, but engagement has a good social flavor.

Notes vs. Words

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a bride-elect has been entertained at a bridge tea and the hostess presents a wedding gift on the occasion, do you consider a verbal acknowledgment at the time sufficient appreciation? Do you not think a note of thanks should be sent following the party?

A READER.

To your first question . . . no. To your second question, an enthusiastic yes. Such generosity of hospitality and of thoughtfulness deserves a fine, articulate note of deep appreciation.

Lillian Asks Helena Brixton's Aid

I felt as if I had a box seat at a play, as I watched Lillian's face while she accomplished the feat of getting in touch with the Brixton home in Connecticut.

"She'll be driving down to Whitney Hall after Marion and Carolyn tomorrow, you know, picking up Ronald and Bob at New Haven on the way. That's a whale of a drive for anybody but a motor faddist like Helena, but even she will want to start at daylight, or even before. I believe the plan is to drop Sam at New York, from which point he will come out here by train. I don't think he has any yen to see the country around Whitney Hall, or to come in contact with Dr. and Mrs. Barnes."

"I shouldn't think he would," I commented warmly, for while Sam Brixton had been exonerated by his dastardly half-brother of any complicity in the kidnaping of Marion and Carolyn, and though he nearly had given up his life in an attempt to rescue them, I could not forget the trickery, the downright rascality of the man in his former attempt to rob Marion of her fortune.

"Hush!" Lillian warned, as her connection was made, and then I listened intently to a one-sided conversation.

"That you, Sam? Yes, Lil. No, nothing wrong. Just some unexpected details of this wedding that I want to talk over with Helena."

She turned back to me with a frown when Samuel Brixton evidently had departed to do her bidding.

"Ah! I hear somebody coming back. Not Helena, I wager. Oh, yes, Sam. She'll be here shortly? That's fine! Don't bother with me; go back to whatever you were doing. I'll wait for Helena, and thanks a lot for calling her."

She said nothing more to me, lounging negligently in her chair with the receiver of the telephone held to her ear. But suddenly I saw her straighten, and knew that Mrs. Brixton was on the other end of the wire.

"Hello, old girl!" she said, with the familiarity born of long friendship. "Terrible sorry and ashamed and all that to drag you out of bed, but it can't be helped. We're in a peck of trouble over the wedding plans. Old Phil threw a monkey wrench into the wheels at the last minute, so we're going around in circles, and only you can help us out."

She cocked a whimsical eye at me, as she listened to what I knew were characteristically feminine ejaculations from the woman at the other end of the wire.

"Here's the dope," Lillian said. "You know, as it's such a small wedding, Mary had planned for only a maid of honor, Marion. Now Phil Veritzen appeared tonight, and asked Mary to have Avis Arlen as a bridesmaid; says the child always had wished to be one. What's that? Yes, I agree with you, she'd take it out in wishing if I had anything to do with it. But that doesn't help us out, you know. Things are delicate enough around here anyway, without offending the man who holds both Mary's and Noel's careers in his hands. So we're bowing beneath the yoke, and all the rest of it. But Mary says if Avis has to be a bridesmaid, she wants Carolyn, too, so I've dragged you out of bed to ask you—"

She stopped short, a look of dismay on her face.

"Look here, Helena Brixton," she said, "do you mean to tell me that you'd throw me down for a thing like that?"

NOTED POTTERY EXHIBIT AT SEWICKLEY

By PENELOPE REDD

An exhibition of pottery this week in the Penguin Shop, Sewickley, presents Dorothy Mulloy, in charge of the department of ceramics at the College of Fine Arts, Carnegie Institute of Technology, where she took her preliminary training.

Miss Mulloy

Mrs. Mulloy did graduate work at Alfred, N. Y., the nation's school for ceramists, and then went to London where she continued study at the Polytechnic Institute. She also pursued original research in historic ceramics in such rich collections as that of the British Museum.

Her work is distinguished by rare quality. A background of geology, chemistry and mathematics is as essential to the potter as is his training as a craftsman, his aptitude for design, and his innate sense for color, texture and form. Mrs. Mulloy succeeds where so many potters who know either the scientific or the design side only fail, because she has mastered both.

Her range of form is as varied as the types of clay available for throwing on the potter's wheel. Ter examples embrace the difficult controlled craze that makes for the crackled pattern as the Chinese did it, through the Sgraffito style of the Italian, on to the modern syncopated capricious design that is analagous to Greek vase painting. Her color runs the gamut of the traditional celadon and powder blue, to the mysterious mutations of beige and brown, valued by the contemporary.

Her smallest bit of pottery as her most considered vases, conveys the lure of balance and of tactile appeal. Nothing she does is inept or inert. Everything she touches bears the impress of an intelligence communicating beauty through the humblest of mediums, the common earth.

Her exhibition should be shown officially in the city to let Pittsburgh folks know that they have one of the finest of contemporary American potters in their midst.

RECIPES SUGGEST SUPPER MENUS

Housewives Offer Dinner Problem Solutions

Instead of making company dinners an arduous task, why not vary from the more or less formal meal and agreeably surprise your guests with a wholesome supper-like menu?

Your guests will be sure to like it; you won't be tired from all-day preparations; and you'll create a friendly, jolly feeling at the dinner table. Believe it or not, foods are important "icebreakers."

When you invite the Jones family for dinner Wednesday night, Prudence Penny suggests you try Mrs. Kennedy's baked beans with sausages, or maybe the vegetable loaf which won a prize for Mrs. Middlehause.

If you're preparing a fruit salad—fruits in a bed of lettuce are always attractive—top it with Mrs. L. L. Knox's dressing which is sure to lift it from the class of prosaic salads. The dressing is a double boon in that it can be kept indefinitely and consequently is on hand for hurry-up calls.

Sour milk biscuits, as prepared by Mrs. St. Clair, will disappear magically from their plate if you serve them hot with plenty of butter. And for dessert, Blanche Hutton's chocolate pudding will fit in nicely.

Whether we "eat to live or live to eat," we all have very definite ideas as to what we like in food. You have your favorite recipes. Give them a chance to become many peoples' favorite recipes by sending them to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, who daily awards one $5 prize and 10 $1 prizes to the best of the hundreds of recipes she receives.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

(Owing to the illness of Walter Winchell, this column is being written by Paul Yawitz until Mr. Winchell's recovery.)

Look Here, P. Y.!

You were the thirteenth and last pall-bearer . . . And you stood alone, the others in double-file in front of you . . . A reverent hush bewildered you during that span of minutes—minutes required to fasten the blanket of orchids to her coffin and to wheel it down from the chapel on the floor above . . . The silent hysteria of the drama caused you to wipe unseen perspiration from your temples . . . You were cold . . . Did any one in that curious throng, walled from you by police lines, notice your uneasiness? . . . Certainly not? But you were nervous . . . A whole decade of New York was flashing through your mind, a decade punctuated by the scene of which you were not a part . . . No wonder you felt something as a drowning man . . . Isn't there much of death in the quiet passing of 10 years? . . . You heard the elevator click upward to bring her down . . . Texas Guinan was making her Last Exit!

The day the body arrived in New York, Johnny Stein came rushing into your office with eyes swollen in grief . . . He is a frail lad with an open, eager face, and he had given up a professorship in a Mid-Western university to be Tex's companion . . . There was a sturdy quality of reality in her that challenged the title of "Queen of the Night Clubs" and attracted people to the woman herself . . . "Tex knew she was dying even before the doctors did," he said, "and she made me promise to ask the Broadway columnists to be among her pall-bearers. You'll come, won't you?" . . . And when you arrived home that night, there was a message from Tommy. You got him on the phone, and he barely managed to mumble the same request . . . "Tex wants you boys to cary her." He was crying

Now, you were standing bareheaded in the grand-foyer of Campbell's . . . The other twelve were facing the open archway and over their shoulders you could see the battery of cameras, like winking Cyclopses that had no place there . . . Louis was directly in front of you . . . Louis, who had become a columnist overnight only a few short years ago when he least expected it! . . . "Walter is going to another paper," his managing editor told him. "Do you think you can fill the spot?" . . . He was scared and protested: "But I don't know New York. Why I've never even been in a night club in my life!" . . . But Louis took the job and worked feverishly. You remembered the night you led him into Texas' place for his first visit . . . "This is Sobol," you said in introduction. "He's the new columnist on the Graphic" . . . "Glad to know you, sucker," she laughed. "Let me congratulate you, and let me tell you, fella, you're going to make good because you're starting even. You've probably a few illusions about The Street because you're new on it. Stay that way! The only difference between Broadway and the other Main Stems is its size. Where there are more people, there are more things happening. Remember what I say, and you'll be happier" . . . Louis walked out into the early dawn and suddenly turning, said: "You know, Paul, she's right. Her slant is perfect. And I'm going to follow her advice"

Your eyes wandered to Mark who stood two rows ahead . . . His hands were clasped madly behind him and you could see his fingers torturing themselves . . . Mark was the first of the ace commentators on Broadway and had been more responsible for Tex's rise than any one else . . . You watched him shift from foot to foot and you knew the feeling . . . More than Tex had died: it was something of himself that would be no more . . . You remembered back to your earlier days in New York when first you met Mark . . . You had hoped some day to be up where he was . . . And the night he asked you to join him about town, you were flattered . . . You were doing the town with one of its idols, and it would make a stirring page for that letter home . . . The very first person you met that night was Tex. She was dressed in velvet of lacquer red, and white pearls seemed to stream from all parts of her shoulders . . . So this was Texas Guinan, you thought. "Well!!" . . . Tex shook your hand cordially and then turned away . . . You had seen her frequently before from a distance, but this time you were impressed. You had met the Queen, and now you were beginning to know Broadway . . . Months later, when you had to show some hometowners about the night spots, they asked to be taken to Tex's . . . "You said you know her, so take us over and let us meet her, too," they requested . . . You were embarrassed: you had been bragging and now you were called on to produce . . . But you determined to go through with it . . . And no more had you entered the brightly-ligted room than Tex came dashing over and shouted, "Hello, Paul, who are those suckers with you?" . . . What a memory, and what a relief! . . . Now, you could hear the elevator on its downward journey with the coffin . . . You swallowed several times; someone was whispering, "Here she comes!"

There would have been fourteen pall-bearers, but Odd was detained by illness . . . Had he been there, he would have stood beside you . . . It was when you were still a cub on the old St. Louis Times that you first read the name of Texas Guinan in print . . . Odd's column used to come poorly typed, and what is most strange, it came free . . . Odd had an idea, and he started by charging nothing for his column . . . Later when it became popular, he asked for money . . . But so bad was the mimeographing that the editor assigned you to re-type it each day so that the compositors could read it . . . Now you recalled those phrases of Odd's, "Texas Guinan has the most inviting smile in New York" . . . and "She is destined to become a leading figure in night life" . . . You imagined the glamour of New York through the stimulus of his descriptions . . . It was a lure stronger than the Lorelei's . . . Perhaps it was Odd who was more to blame for your coming to New York than any other influence . . . It was years after now, and out of the chaos of a million intervals, there beside you was Odd's empty place . . . Tex had become an identity to you through him long before you met her . . . Too bad he couldn't have been there to help you say goodby . . . You looked around suddenly, and there was the flower-covered coffin . . . The professional bearers, to whom Tex was just a newspaper headline, were wheeling her toward you . . . You resented them.

The pall-bearers were instructed to march out of the room to the sidewalk . . . Heywood was first in line and the sunlight struck him violently . . . He had spoken during the service a few minutes before. "The memory of Texas Guinan in our hearts will be her immortality," he had said. "You thought how expertly he had put it . . . His humble words became an irrevocable memory and you were satisfied with the souvenir he had given you . . . Too bad that those who robbed her grave of its flowers couldn't have heard him . . . The flowers they stole are already dead!

Tracy-Jewell Marriage Hinted

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 20.—Smiling denials by Isabel Jewell fail to check the reports that she and Lee Tracy are plotting an early marriage. The gossips want to know, for instance, why the blonde actress is planning to catch the first airplane for Mexico City as soon as she finishes in "The Comeback" at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Miss Jewell

She and Tracy did each other a lovers' farewell when he left with the "Viva Villa" company, and Lee has been keeping the telegraph wires hot ever since.

Unless she has to stay for added scenes, Isabel will complete her film in a few days. The next you hear of her she will be with Tracy, who is on location in a 250-year-old hacienda about 25 miles from the Mexican capital.

If you can believe Al Jolson, even columnists are backward compared to a reporter who approached him in New York.

"Mr. Jolson," said the news hound, "I understand your wife is having a baby."

"Why no," said Al, "that isn't so."

The reporter stuck out his chin, snapped:

"Yeah? Don't tell me!"

Hard to believe that the lovely Alice Joyce has a daughter old enough to go into pictures. Yet the first debutante to be signed by Jesse L. Lasky for his picture, "Coming Out Party," is Alice Moore, daughter of Alice and Tom Moore. The young lady will donate her entire salary to charity.

Several days ago, Gail Patrick caused a sensation when she donned a red bobbed wig to play a part in "Death Takes a Holiday." So loud were the praises that the one-time stately Gail has bobbed her own long dark hair and has had it curled at the ends to give an effect very similar to the wig.

The real lad with the girls is Dick Powell. The papers printed about his birthday last week and he got 14 proposals of marriage in the mail . . . Ben Lyon has decided not to rib Bebe Daniels any more. As a gag, he piled the sink full of dirty dishes for her return from New York. Bebe took one look, dismissed the maid and made Ben wash them . . . The auto-salesmen are all coming away from Stepin Fetchit with long faces this trip. The lazy colored boy isn't buying a thing . . . Desert-Inners report that Constance Bennett and Gilbert Roland have been playing much tennis at Palm Springs . . . Sister Joan, on the other hand, has been among the film crowd at La Quinta . . . Johnny Weissmuller airplanes it to Lupe over the weekend.

Clara Bow Reduces Before Each Film

When Clara Bow makes a picture her work begins months before the actual starting date. The cry of "Camera!" means that she has to have her weight down to a minimum and that, from one who is fond of souffles, who delights in creamy sauces and more than relishes rich desserts, is quite a job.

The formula is that she secludes herself on her Nevada ranch with a masseuse and for at least two months before her picture begins, goes through a rigorous course of reduction. Sometimes she drops as much as 20 pounds before she will permit her figure to be poured into an evening gown.

Baby Greta Garbo

Cora Sue Collins, aged 6, selected by Greta Garbo to play the child who later became Queen Cristina of Sweden. The grown-up role of "Queen Christina" is played by Miss Garbo. Cora Sue was selected because of resemblance to the actress.

Dick Powell Ducks Kissing Girls

Dick Powell suffered a very embarrassing moment while personal appearancing in a Hollywood movie palace. Part of Dick's act was to have a "planted" girl in the audience walk up to the stage and kiss him. But several high school girls in the audience took this as their cue to plant a kiss on Powell's lips, and they rushed pell-mell up to the stage. The star ducked behind the wings and the gals were disappointed. The kissing sequence is now definitely out of the act.

Fire, Not Ice, Menace In the Arctic

"Beware fire more than ice" is the cardinal rule of safety in the Arctic, though the public probably envisions cold as the greatest danger there. This is the odd fact reported by Col. W. S. Van Dyke, directing Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Eskimo" in the Far North.

"Fire," he says, "destroys shelter, but ice can be used to build one. Sudden destruction of shelter in so cold a climate means disaster."

Cable Carries Denial

Hollywood heard reports that Maurice Chevalier, before he left on vacation, had turned thumbs down on Ernst Lubitsch as director and on Jeanette MacDonald as leading woman in "The Merry Widow." As Lubitsch and Miss MacDonald were associated with him in two of his big hits, "The Love Parade," "One Hour With You," and as Miss MacDonald was his leading woman in "Love Me Tonight," the reports were a choice topic of conjecture in Hollywood.

Came the other day from Chevalier a cabled denial of any such attitude on his part, and a statement from Irving Thalberg, producer of the film, that he was considering Jeanette among several other players, for the feminine role.

Miss MacDonald, currently warbling opposite Ramon Novarro in "The Cat and the Fiddle," admitted only the other day before Chevalier's denial that the reports had surprised her considerably, especially, she said, as the French star had given her no reason to believe he felt unfriendly toward her. Perhaps the denial will make everything all right again.

Plays and Players :: By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Fortune Gallo, who claims to be the "inventor" of grand opera at popular prices, is with us again. That is, his San Carlo Grand Opera Company is here. It will begin an engagement in the Nixon tonight by singing "Aida," the Verdi opera said to have been written at the request of the Khedive of Egypt. When the curtain descends on "Il Trovatore" next Saturday night a total of nine classical musical dramas will have been sung, including two short ones usually sung as one bill, "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci." There is no doubt that music lovers will welcome the return of this worthy group that has been missing for several years. Until Mr. Gallo organized the San Carlo company opera was for the rich only, the "diamond horseshoe" of the Metropolitan being its traditional symbol. The late Oscar Hammerstein did something in the opera line for the masses, but still opera was confined to New York, largely, until the packer and utilities millions of Chicago established a company in that city. Yet, as a general proposition, it was mostly a recreation for the possessors of fat purses. Fortune Gallo long ago conceived the idea that the rich had no better appreciation of music than those of moderate incomes, so he sent the San Carlo out into the highways and byways, where there were no "diamond horseshoes," but where people of musical taste, who heard his younger and less-known singers as eagerly as the great stars were heard in New York and Chicago. Conditions have changed, and now Mr. Gallo is able to draw on the forces of greater companies, having no less than six of them in the company that will open here tonight.

Many attempts to dramatize "Alice in Wonderland" have been made, but the only one to achieve success is the one that was presented by the Eva Le Gallienne Civic Repertory Theater Company in New York last December. It immediately jumped into the "hit" class, and the newspapers began to sing the praises of Josephine Hutchinson, who portrayed Alice. It had a run of 127 performances, or 27 more than the number that New York sets as the minimum for what it calls a "success." Miss Hutchinson still plays the role and will be seen in it when Miss LeGallienne brings her company to the Nixon December 4. Miss LeGallienne, of course, will be in the play, too, and she also will play Juliet at the company's two performances of "Romeo and Juliet," as well as the title role in Ibsen's "Hedda Gabler."

"The Circle," by Somerset Maugham, will be the second production of the Pittsburgh Civic Playhouse, to be presented at three performances, Friday and Saturday, December 15 and 16, one a matinee, M. E. Fierst, general manager, announces. Its original presentation in America had a cast headed by John Drew.

All in a Day

Subway Episode

I ENTERED the subway at Forty-second street yesterday afternoon, and boarded an express for the Brooklyn Bridge. It was mid-afternoon, and the train was not too crowded. Accordingly I was able to sit down, which is something of a novelty in the subway.

The people in my car were the usual people in any subway car. A messenger boy who was biting his nails. Some eight or nine women of assorted sizes and shapes. A baby who insisted upon pulling its mother's nose. Two sailors. And some 10 or 12 other men of varying ages.

I like to study faces—and the subway is a swell spot in which to play the game. Human faces can always be compared with those of animals. That fat woman on my left, for example, looked for all the world like a kangaroo. That man with the bundle resembled an English bulldog to an uncanny degree. That messenger boy——

The door at the left end of the car was suddenly opened and a meek little man appeared. He couldn't have weighed more than 90 pounds, and his eyes were filled with an unholy sadness. He wore no overcoat, and he seemed to be trembling with the cold. All in all, he was a pitiful object.

He carried a little box, filled with assorted trinkets. "Charm pieces," he called them.

"Please buy a charm piece," he whined as he walked along. "I need money so bad. My wife and children are starving. Please buy a charm piece. They bring luck."

That it was a trifle incongruous for such an abject individual to be selling good luck pieces, seemingly never entered his mind at all. He continued slowly along.

"Charm pieces," he kept muttering. "Only five cents. Take one home and help a poor, sick man. Charm pieces. They bring good luck."

The train was flying along, and we were halfway to Fourteenth street by the time the little man reached the middle of the car. The door at the right end of the car was opened, and a tall man walked through. He had a box of pencils in his hand.

"Just tryin' to make a livin', folks," he announced. Just tryin' to get a meal an' a place to sleep. God'll bless you for bein' kind to the poor, an' my pencils will always come in handy. Who'll buy—"

He stopped abruptly, his mouth still open. His eyes had fallen upon the charm salesman in the center of the car. His face grew red with anger. He snapped shut the box of pencils, placed it in his pocket and stepped rapidly down the aisle to the other man.

He towered over the little man by at least ten inches. He was at least 100 pounds heavier. And he shook his fist in the little man's face.

"You're back again, eh?" he cried loudly. "Didn't I tell you to keep away from me? Didn't I tell you to keep on the west side? I oughta smack you right in the chin, that's what I oughta do."

The other mendicant seemed paralyzed with fear. He backed away.

"Don't hit me, Joe," he whined piteously. "I gotta make a livin', just like you. I'm sick—and my wife and kids are starvin'. Please, Joe. Don't hit me."

The argument was taking place now but a few steps from me. Several people in the car were standing up to see the outcome. The two sailors were standing right behind the big man.

He caught the charm salesman by the lapel and pulled him forward.

"You're a dirty liar," he shouted. "You was told to keep away, an' you ain't doin' it. I owe you a smack on the chin, and now you're gonna get it!"

He raised his fist, and took a half-slap, half-punch, at the little man. The train was roaring into the Fourteenth street station. I leaped to my feet, and the little man fell against me. The two sailors grabbed the big fellow.

The door opened, and the big mug was tossed out upon his ear. Several new passengers entered the car. The door closed. And the train rolled out of the station with the pencil salesman shaking his fist at the car.

Several of us gathered around the little man and helped to steady him. His eyes seemed sadder than ever. He rubbed his face where he had been hit.

"I didn't do anything to him," he murmured tearfully. "I'm sick, and I just want to make a livin' for my wife and children. I'm so poor—and I'm so sick. And nobody wants to buy my charm pieces."

You know what happened, don't you? There wasn't a person in that car who didn't take care of the pitiful little character. Nickels, dimes, quarters—and even two bills—were tossed into his basket before the train came to its next stop. But it was worth it. Because the man's gratitude was so real and so honest.

"God bless you," he kept crying fervently. "God bless you all." . . .

I finished my business at City Hall, and was on my way back uptown in the subway within an hour. At Fourteenth street, I was amazed to see the little man enter my car. I was still more amazed when the big man entered from the other door, exactly as he had done before. And I almost slid to the floor when I saw the two of them go through their act, precisely as they had done it on the first occasion.

The whole thing was a racket.

HEROIC CAPTAIN FOILS MUTINY

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Having broken by his heroism the mob spirit of 32 Chinese sailors who threatened his life in a mutinous uprising as the ship was about to leave for the Dutch West Indies, Capt. B. G. Protheroe, of the British oil tanker Clam, today went about the prosaic work of signing up a new crew.

The mutiny, brewing in the forecastle while the ship plowed toward Los Angeles harbor from South America, burst Saturday night in a wild melee on the steel decks of the vessel.

As Capt. Protheroe stepped from his cabin a Chinese fireman, Geong Boo, slashed at him with a meat cleaver. The captain reached his cabin, seized his revolver and forced the enraged Chinese to surrender his weapon.

Thirty-two of Boo's accomplices watched from below the bridge. With his surrender they rushed to the bridge.

A loyal little group of British crew members came to the captain's assistance, however; and the mutinous gang stopped, and fled toward the gangway. At the Wilmington dock the Chinese were taken to jail.

Mt. Oliver Women Hold Pipe 'Shower'

Court Consuelo No. 1032, Catholic Daughters of America, will hold a tobacco and corn cob pipe "shower" in the Veterans of Foreign Wars Building, Mt. Oliver, tomorrow night. The occasion is to benefit the men at the Little Sisters of the Poor.

WORLD'S FAIR EXHIBITS HERE

Atmosphere of Chicago's Century of Progress Exposition will predominate in McCreery's for two weeks beginning tomorrow night.

More than 100 exhibitions, the greater portions being from the World's Fair, will be arranged on the 11 floors of the store until December 2. Added to the vast array of the exhibitions that attracted the throngs at the Chicago exposition will be scores of special displays arranged by manufacturers. These added exhibits will reveal to the visitors what processes are used in the manufacture of dozens of standard commodities.

The McCreery exposition will open tomorrow night. Persons prominent in business and social life of the city will unveil 12 special windows at 8 o'clock. The doors will be opened to the public which will find special music and dancing a feature on the ninth floor.

A colorful array of flags from every state will greet the visitor upon entering the store through special portals that depict the architectural and color theme of a Century of Progress Exposition. The same special decorations will prevail throughout the store. Each floor will hold its host of interesting exhibitions.

Continuous motion pictures enhanced by hundreds of still photographs will portray the story of the World's Fair. Through these exhibits alone, the visitor will gain a pictorial knowledge of what the exposition offered the millions of persons who visited Chicago.

Enhancing this pictorial story will be display after display actually brought from the fair grounds. The 19-foot long model of the liner Rex, Italian ship holding the trans-Atlantic speed record, will be one of the interesting and educational exhibits.

URGES EXAMPLE OUT OF SCHOOL

Few people realize the effect on children of casual contacts, Dr. William T. Root, head of the department of psychology, University of Pittsburgh, said yesterday at the closing session of a two-day religious conference in the First Unitarian Church. He said in part:

"Since the home and neighborhood, as well as other factors outside the school play a part in the education of the child, high standards in these circles are required."

Miss Ella Ruth Boyce, director of kindergartens in the Pittsburgh public schools, spoke at a meeting of the Junior church at a forum in the church in the morning.

Gypsies, Bing Crosby, Rich On Radio

The big jamboree celebrating the opening of Radio City is over, and the networks return to normalcy and regular schedules tonight.

The Damon and Pythias of radio, Bing Crosby and Lennie Hayton, serenade the WJAS dialers at 8:30.

The Gypsies, on WCAE at 9, feature Frank Parker in a Victor Herbert favorite, "I'm Falling in Love With Someone," and play a George Gershwin Broadway hit, "It's Only a Paper Moon."

"Melody Moments," a KDKA program at 9:30, includes a symphonic arrangement of "Waters of Minnetonka," and several baritone solos by Phil Duey.

Wayne King, entertaining the WJAS listeners at 10, devotes most of his half-hour to captivating three-quarter rhythms.

Another edition of the "Big Show" brings the loquatious Lulu McConnell and Isham Jones' orchestra to a CBS-WJAS microphone at 9:30.

Freddie Rich conducts his group of Manhattan Serenaders in a program of new arrangements of old melodies, over WJAS at 9. Among them are "Sunny Disposish" and "Sweet Sue."

Radio in Rhyme

WCAE inaugurated something different in program presentation this morning.

The station has imported Ruth Fenton, formerly of WCAU, Philadelphia and Broadway, to write a rhyming introduction of all programs, local and network, between 9 a. m. and 1 p. m.

Thus Ford Miller, the morning announcer, becomes another David Ross.

The WCAE Troubadors, Howard Price, tenor, and Pittsburghers Quartet will be spotted here and there, mornings, to lend variety to the schedule.

Floyd Gibbons begins a new series of reports on NRA activities, under a new sponsor, tonight at 8:30, over NBC-WCAE.

Thrills

K-7 dramatizes a World War spy thriller—the flooding of a Russian mine where a spy has hidden himself—over NBC-WCAE at 10:30.

"Caught in the Act," is the mystery drama scheduled on KDKA at 10:30.

Dr. Stanley T. Brooks, curator of invertebrates at Carnegie Museum, tells an interesting story of "Locomotion Through the Ages," over WCAE tonight at 6.

Ham Dalton, Philadelphia radio "Town Crier," is in Pittsburgh today to address the KDKA audience on "Liquor Control in Pennsylvania."

He is heard tonight at 10.

Setting Trap for Program Despoiler

Some resident of the Regent Square district who has an ax to grind with the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, of Detroit, has obviously set up an interference with reception of Father Coughlin's broadcast the past three Sunday afternoons.

Dialers in the Regent Square neighborhood report that the squeals, of a siren-like nature, begin the minute the Coughlin broadcast comes on the air, and stops when the program ends. It is never heard at any other time during the week.

It is possible to cause such interference with a very simple home-made device. It is equally simple to trace the noise to its source. And plans are being laid to do so, the next time it occurs.

Globe-trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

It looks like the S. P. C. A. will get after me if I don't let up on the Wildcat. I can't in the face of all the letters complaining of havoc to the poor dumb animals.

The latest complaint comes from Miss Carole. She tells that when the Wildcat started the ye-owling her poor cat gave the radio one terrified glance, then made a dash for under the sofa. Pussy won't come into the room where the radio is at all now. When Miss Carole tried to coax her, but got only some painful scratches.

Mrs. Ruth V. says she can't listen any more. Her bull dog dove for the radio, upsetting it, smashing the tubes in her set, as well as the flower vase on top.

Henry C. Giuduci from Overbrook (where they must have hardy folk) liked the poems, even enjoyed the blood-curdling snarls. He sent in another poem.

Don't worry, people, we're going to spare you.

L. B., of Crafton, wants me to print the remedy for a frost-bitten heel. I'll ask the Trotters, but the best thing to do, I think, is to see a medico.

The Library reader who wants to know about books on birds could get the necessary information from the Humane Society or the Carnegie Library reference room.

Local Highlights on WJAS Tonight

A full quota of local talent is scheduled to sparkle tonight, starting with the early evening songs of Jimme DePalma.

Moyer's Hawaiians are heard next being billed at 6:15, followed by Paul Gannon at 6:45.

NBC Going in for Dramas On Bigger, Better Scale

By AIRCASTER

The excitement of opening new super super studios having subsided somewhat, NBC program makers, under the influence of John-Royal—are going on a dramatic spree.

John, impressed by the showing made by theater talent during last week's celebration programs, plans to bring some of the stage folk back for more.

He has lined up these dramas for the current week, and will strive to eliminate all scripts during the waftings: "Cottingham's Last Banshee," (a banshee is a female fairy of Irish legends, whose visit foretells death); "The Man Who Died Twice," "Midnight Sun" and "Irish Idol."

They'll be heard Tuesday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights, in the order named, via NBC-KDKA.

Overboard

For some unaccountable reason the Showboat has dropped Muriel Wilson (Mary Lou), overboard. The audience won't like that much.

John White, the Death Valley Days Cowboy warbler, is just back from a futile trip through the West, seeking new cowboy ballads He complains that all the punchers are singing nothing but the La-a-a-st Roundup.

Albert Spalding belongs to the sports goods manufacturing family, though it doesn't look so in print.

Leo Reisman and an orchestra of 25 are plotting a tour with George Gershwin. Their stuff will be picked up by the network wherever they go.

The Mills Brothers, faltering between the one and the other web, have definitely cast their lot with NBC.

New Moon

The good-looking miss who was working in the Department of Justice, secretly cherished an ambition to become a radio announcer, and answered a "help wanted" ad published by station WJSV, in Washington.

They gave her an audition last Tuesday, and she came out with better marks than all her competitors, and went to work Wednesday night.

At the end of her first program, the station officials summoned her and said:

"You seem to know a lot about radio! Have you had any previous radio connections?"

"Wel-l-l, yes!" she admitted reluctantly, "I have in a small way. You see, my sister has been doing a lot of radio work."

"What's her name?" they inquired.

Kate's bright moon, by the way, would seem to be on the wane.

New Show

Morton Downey's old sponsor is coming back to the CBS-WJAS network without Morton, late this month.

The program will include Glen Gray's orchestra, the Do Re Mi gals and other talent yet to be chosen, and will run a half-hour Tuesday and Thursday nights.

Children's Program On WCAE Today

The Sun-Telegraph Family Children's Program, directed by Jane A. White, is heard on WCAE this afternoon at 4:45.

Louis L. Kaufman, Globe Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, broadcasts the news over WCAE-WJAS at 12:15, 2:15 and 6:30 p. m.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at drug stores.

We have put

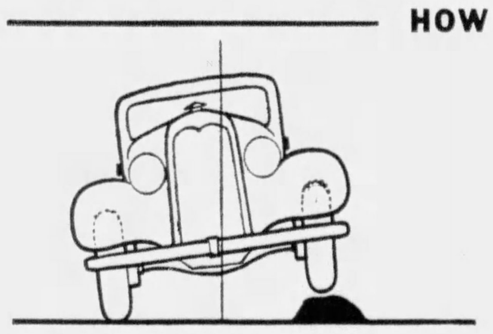
changing your ride to a glide

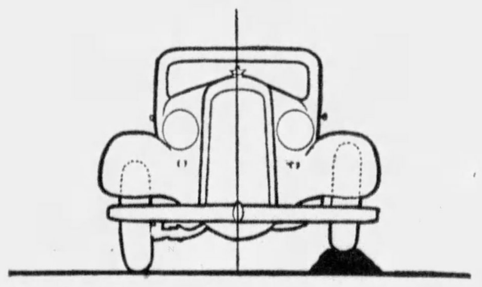
People have expected something spectacular to celebrate our 25th Anniversary, and they will not be disappointed. Our 1934 cars are not the 1933 cars improved; they are the result of a far-reaching change in automobile design. To explain this very technical advance in a thoroughly non-technical fashion, we invite you to glance at the pictures below.

HOW KNEE-ACTION WHEELS WORK



Your present car is stiff-legged. Stiff front springs are rigidly joined by an I-beam front axle. So when you hit a bump the front of the car bounces, the rear pitches, and you are jarred.

See how serenely a man meets a bump. One knee bends easily, lifting its leg. The other leg is not affected; equilibrium is undisturbed. The knee, not the body, takes the jar.



Now, 1934—no more I-beam axle, no stiff springs. The wheel, flexibly mounted on its own soft spring rises and falls like a knee to soak up the shocks, while the car glides on.

JUST WHY THEY GIVE YOU THE GLIDING RIDE

A NEW front wheel assembly, involving a separate soft spring attached to each wheel, abolishes the I-beam axle and the old front springs. Each wheel can step over a bump or a hole without communicating jar to the car or to the passengers in it.

For more than two years, in its Laboratories and on its Proving Ground, General Motors has been at work pioneering the principle of these Knee-Action Wheels. No motoring improvement has ever been more thoroughly tested and proved.

The difference in comfort produced by Knee-Action Wheels, especially on the back seat, is beyond description. There is smoothness at high speeds and a steadiness and clinging to the road almost unbelievable.

Safety is much increased—the life of the car extended. There is no tramp of wheels on the road, no jerk on the steering wheel. Shake and shimmy are banished. Except for setting the course, your hands are at rest.

Have you watched a bird glide smoothly through the calm of a summer day? You may now travel almost as smoothly. With the ups-and-downs absorbed by Knee-Action Wheels, with drafts abolished by Fisher No-Draft Ventilation, the motor ride of yesterday is gone. Our cars of 1934 will glide.

"I am so happy my skin is now clear"
● And it is all so simple.
It only seemed yesterday she felt discouraged and so conscious of a pimply skin . . . now to have it clear . . . why, of course she is very happy.
A friend had urged her to do as she had done . . . reasoned that the "trouble" probably came from within the body—the blood.
She followed her advice to take S.S.S. Tonic . . . what happened? First, she felt better. Pep replaced a tired-worn-out-let-down-feeling . . . she awoke every morning more cheerful and gradually her skin took on a clear, healthy tone. Then when she added powder and lipstick . . . what a difference! Do you wonder she is happy? No more open dates now.
You owe it to yourself and associates to try S.S.S. Tonic . . . a very old, acceptable, successful product. It will not interfere with any other medicine you may desire to take at the same time.
S.S.S. is obtainable in any drug store . . . it is liquid of course . . . never sold in tablet form.
We invite you to take a course of S.S.S. Tonic . . . its positive action, demonstrated by modern scientific methods, is your guarantee of satisfaction—its benefits will surprise you.

In that spick and span white New England house you see at your left as you near Sewickley when driving from Pittsburgh there was a most intriguing art exhibit Saturday. But before we talk about the exhibit, I must mention the beautiful colored stone fence enclosing this perfect small house. And there's a white picket gate.

Sewickley Auto Show

In this house, the home of Miss Catharine R. Miller, Beaver road, Glen Osborne, there was an exhibit of work of some young Sewickley artists, a whole roomful of pictures.

There was a most interesting canvas of a little pig-tailed Negro girl, done by Adele Lippincott. The little girl is the daughter of the Lippincott's cook.

Keen On Her Art

Other artists exhibiting were Nancy Craig, Elizabeth Craig, Eleanor Gilchrist, Isabel Adams, Mrs. Elizabeth Miller Gardner, and one boy, Neville C. Davidson, Jr.

While we're talking about art, I want to mention that on Friday evening one of the most amusing parties in Pittsburgh is going to be held in the Architectural Club in Charlotte way.

Cartoon Exhibit

[illegible] Artists are going [illegible] each member presents a cartoon of a painting in the International Art Exhibit. There's a jury and awards and all other international trappings.

By the way, Artists Anna Belle Craig and Louise Pershing are represented in the Philadelphia Water Color Exhibit in the Academy of Fine Arts, Philadelphia.

The altar was banked with ferns and white chrysanthemums and lighted with tapers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of green velgara with matching hat and carried an arm bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley. Miss Sara Alice Kennedy, the maid of honor, wore eel gray crepe and satin with a matching hat and carried pink rose buds and blue lace. Paul Riesmeyer was his brother's best man and ushers included Walter Riesmeyer of Pittsburgh, and E. V. Buckley, of Sharon.

Mrs. Paul Shatto played the wedding music, including a composition of the bridegroom's uncle, Albert Liefeldt, of Pittsburgh.

An informal reception was held after the ceremony in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel H. Hadley. [illegible] a brief wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Riesmeyer will be at home in New Kensington.

Girls' Friendly Society Giving Party Tonight

SOCIETY ATTENDS SUNDAY CONCERT

When Pittsburgh's smart set goes to Sunday night concerts, many wear formal afternoon costumes with "dress-up" hats. At the Pittsburgh Symphony's concert last night, which attracted enough people to fill huge Syria Mosque, there were many chapeaux of note.

With Mrs. Jacoby was her cousin, Mrs. Earl B. Barnes, of Indianapolis, and Mrs. Sidney Emmond.

Some of the fashionables came in street clothes; some, as I've already mentioned, in formal afternoon attire, and some in evening garb.

Arriving with her daughter, Mrs. Gordon Fisher, Jr., was Mrs. E. V. Babcock, regal in black velvet and pearls, and a cape of chinchilla. Mrs. Fisher chose a black crepe gown with an orange crystelle velvet bodice; Mrs. Raymond Ford Moreland, an unusual gown of orchid uncut velvet and her mother, Mrs. William Terrell Johnson chose red velvet. Both wore long mink coats.

Also wearing mink wraps were Mrs. T. A. McGinley and her daughter, Mary Elizabeth Floyd, and Mrs. William Lloyd Standish III, who came with Mr. Standish. Mary Elizabeth's long-sleeved black velvet gown had a deep cape of the velvet trimmed with rows of exquisite white lace. Mrs. Standish's gown of red velvet had an Ascot scarf of gold spangles.

Among those in street dress was debutante Antoinette Vilsack. Others there were Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., Mrs. George Pomeroy Bassett, the C. S. Wunders, Mrs. George S. Oliver in Eleanor blue chiffon, Mrs. F. C. Irish in an unusual gown of copper green faille with kolinsky, and Mrs. E. W. Mudge in black velvet.

Chatting in the lobby with Donald Thompson, Jr., and J. C. Macon, Jr., were Georgianna Collin and Lois Tack, post-debs. Mrs. W. Edgar Reed was with her daughters, Mrs. W. McCook Reed and Mrs. Leonard S. Mudge.

Mrs. Howard S. Evans chose a Nile green matelasse gown. The Clark Millers were there, as were Mrs. Enoch Rauh and her daughter, Miss Helen Rauh; Katharine Frazer and Harriet Fickes, Mrs. W. Eugene Gary, the B. F. Joneses III, Louise Reed, Mrs. Isaac Thomas and Mrs. John W. Lawrence, the John H. Ricketsons III, and Mrs. Thomas L. Orr.

Mrs. Alex Robinson, Mrs. Horace Forbes Baker, Miss Marjorie Gethoefer, Mrs. T. Clifton Jenkins, Mrs. Herbert DuPuy, Mrs. Herbert A. May, deb Katharine Ward, Nancy Byers, Mrs. Samuel Harden Church, the George C. Burgwins, the J. O. Burgwins and little Susan Burgwin were in the audience, too.

Benefit Planned For Children's Hospital

For the first time in its history, the social service committee of the Children's Hospital is going to give a benefit party to raise funds for the hospital, of course. Up to this time, the annual flower day was their only way of raising money.

The committee has planned a supper dance for December 8 in the convenient Hotel Schenley ballroom. Today there's to be a meeting of the group in the home of Mrs. Ewing La Porte, Darlington road.

The members of the social service committee of the hospital are Mrs. Ewing Laporte, president; Jane Sloan, vice president, who is in charge of the dispensary; Mrs. Wadsworth Doster, second vice president, in charge of the library; Mrs. James Chambers McKay, third vice president, in charge of the layette committee; Mrs. Edwin Rea, treasurer; Janet Hardie, recording secretary, and Mrs. Rowland Erving, corresponding secretary.

Jane Sloan is general chairman of the benefit committee, and her committee chairmen include Mrs. Allan K. Shenk, tickets; Margery Adams, reservations; Mrs. Joseph M. Scribner, patronesses; Mrs. Lyle Nelson, publicity, and in charge of cigaret sales are Peggy Robinson and Margery Hillman.

COIFFURES FOR OFF-THE-FACE HATS

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THERE are two ways to make one of the gay little off-the-face hats becoming. One is to buy a model that is equipped with a scrap of veiling over the forehead. The other is to have one's own curly locks made into becoming little scraps to do the same decorative, flattering stunt.

For not all of us who have stamped and pushed our way through the Great Depression have emerged with a smooth and tranquil brow, and how these new hats can show up a few honest lines etched into the forehead by toil and thought!

PERISH the thought, however, that this fact heralds the return of Carmen-like scallops of hair pie crusted on the face! It's tendrils and feathery little fringes that we are after now, coquettish little decorations to feminize the regal formality that seems to be the ideal of the couturiere just now.

IT IS done by controlling the main crown of glory into scarcely waved sectors which cling to the silhouette of the head, and breaking out shorter ends from it into tendrils, or into masses of tight little curls that fill up the space provided by a tip-tilted hat.

The sideways swirl of back hair to meet this bunch of curls is a good stunt, perfectly feasible for hair that is parted in the center, on the side, or pushed back straight.

Through the Spyglass Viewing the New

Heigh-ho! . . . a week-end behind us and now hot on the chase once more. And already a bundle of items is growing . . . . our pockets stuffed . . . and our spyglass warmed up to its chores! For information on where to get today's list of items . . . call Grant 6500 and ask for the Spyglass . . . or send a stamped self-addressed envelope!

Put your little heads on these pillows and thank your lucky stars that this store put on its thinking cap early in the season! Otherwise, they'd never have been able to give these to you now at this price of $1.00! For the living room . . . these . . . in rose, green, gold or rust rayon damask with Kapok fillings . . . and all of 2-feet square.

Never did these old eyes expect to see anything like this—hand-painted Tole for sums like 50c onwards! But times change . . . and so do prices . . . and now you can get beauties in this smart "ware" for very little ("Tole" is tin, you know).

WE have lost our heart to a ciggie box and tray . . . the former squatty and cylindrical like a drum, and painted like one in yellow, red and blue . . . with matching tray.

We were brought up on the theory that oatmeal was good for our little insides . . . and now, behold! we are told it's good for outsides, too! For faces . . . to be exact!

So here goes a store offering a special package of 6 Oatmeal Quips (so-called) and 100 cleansing Tissues combined, for 50c. Each "quip" is a fat little bagful of very fine oatmeal all ready to pop into a bowl of hot water and then go rubbitty-rub 'round over your face. After which, use your cleansing tissues . . . and what ho! Mrs. Beautiful steps forth in place of Mrs. Fair! (Silly, aren't we?)

Time was, when anyone who WAS anyone would never have thought of using red and white checked tablecloths or napkins! But witness every woman you know making mad dashes after anything of the kind. Then, witness these wildly checkered ones we have dug from a private stamping ground!

Of pure linen crash with fringed edges . . . violently red and white enough to suit the most bohemian of you . . . and 7½c apiece

But before relinquishing our grip on the linen question . . . one more buzz-buzz in your ear! To the effect that there is something worthy of excited twitterings in all feminine circles! Dainty handkerchief-linen cocktail napkins are wandering about in search of a home. These are pastel darlings with fringed edges and belligerent roosters going cock-a-doodle-doo in one corner! Hand-made . . . every one of them . . . at 9c each.

Next, little Spyglassers, list to the joyful words which resound from the direction of a beauty shop! A shop which is doing itself proud by the news of its wonderful special . . . a Shampoo, Fingerwave and Manicure for $1.00!

Recollect, if you will, that ANY good shop charges 50c for a manicure nowadays, and the least we knew about for a shampoo and wave up 'til now, was 70c! Hence SAVINGS are about to be yours due to this offer.

Too . . . they use a special waving fluid which . . . contrary to many . . . will not flake, cake or look "dusty." Especially good for dark hair! And if this isn't an eye-opener for you, then we don't know what to try next!

Now of course, you've seen those furry pussies and poodles which lie 'round in languid attitudes . . . and over which the smart world is going mad these days (more or less, anyway!). And we had always thought that the price on said boudoir pets, was far out of reach of the Just Us's of the universe! When eureka! someone rubbed a lamp or something and now a white puss or a black bow-wow can lie on your bed or chaise for as little as $1.25. These are the biggish ones . . . there are smaller editions of them for only 59c! A Christmas thought . . . how about it?

Woman, 78, Causes Stir at U. D. C. Convention

BALTIMORE.—A gray-haired, white-shawled, little Virginia woman—78-year-old Mrs. E. B. Wiggins, of Lynchburg—threw the recent annual convention of the United Daughters of the Confederacy into an uproar when she arose from her seat to exclaim:

"I'll never salute the flag of the United States until—"

"Boo! Sit down!

"Boo! Sit down! Boo! Boo!"

The calls came from all sections of the convention floor. Other members of the Virginia delegation pulled Mrs. Wiggins to her seat.

She explained later:

"They wouldn't let me finish what I had to say. I was going to say I'll never salute the flag of the United States until the confederate flag has been saluted first."

Mrs. Wiggins' hands fluttered with nervousness. But she held her ground.

She said:

"Why, I'd leave the room first."

Mrs. Wiggins' statement was made during the discussion of a resolution introduced by the New York chapter to have every U. D. C. convention open with a salute first to the stars and stripes and then a salute to the stars and bars of the Confederacy. It passed and the daughters turned to the defeated flag of their fathers to say in unison:

POLITICS

Boxing Board Job Just Football in Politics

By MARK SHIELDS

Mr. Shields

There has been growing evidence that the Governor has been leaning more and more on Judge Ralph H. Smith, Senator William D. Mansfield and a handful of others than upon the County Commissioner, the original and always zealous protagonist of his fortunes in campaigns.

The test is arising over nothing larger than the appointment of a boxing commissioner, a position which pays something like $5,000 a year, and which presumably should have no part in politics.

An appointee's integrity and common sense in handling a game which offers many opportunities for sharp cuts should be the ultimate index of capacity, rather than an ability to influence votes.

Havey Boyle, Pittsburgh newspaperman, for some years has been a member of the commission —except for a slight interval when he was removed while Mr. McGovern's head was turned, being reinstated when the Commissioner realized what had happened.

Only Two Nominated; Pinchot Ignores Boyle

But the term of Mr. Boyle has expired. When the Governor sent to the Senate last week a list of nominations, only two boxing commissioners were proposed, though the governing body of the mitt game consists of three. Mr. Boyle's name was not one of the three, the two named being Harry T. Farrell, of Wilkes-Barre, and Robert J. Nelson, Reading.

Mr. McGovern noted the omission, and intensified his drive for the reappointment of Mr. Boyle. In this endeavor he was joined by Senator Frank J. Harris, whose brother, the late John P. Harris, was originally responsible for the naming of Commissioner Boyle. So far, however, it is not noticeable that Mr. McGovern has made much headway.

Senator Mansfield is not friendly to the renaming of Mr. Boyle, though it is reported he has no alternative selection in mind.

Judge Smith was in Harrisburg today conferring with Gov. Pinchot, but neither would admit that the boxing commissioner subject came up. Mr. Pinchot last week intimated that nothing would be done immediately, though it is understood he then was under the impression that Mr. Boyle's term continued indefinitely. It does not.

County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern also is in Harrisburg and expected to see the Governor on the Boyle appointment.

Vote-Getting Value Apparently Only Issue

While there is nothing tangible on which to base an assumption, there are indications that, despite the insistence of Mr. McGovern, the star of Mr. Boyle is not shining brightly. There is no criticism whatever of his zeal in his work, but the political value of Mr. Boyle is considered doubtful.

Here in Harrisburg there are rumors in the air that Dr. William McClelland, of the South Hills, who was a commissioner for the few weeks Mr. Boyle was out once before, again is nearing the payroll.

Dr. McClelland is a former Pitt football star, and has alliances which can be valuable in a political connection. It is understood that in the recent Allegheny County primary and general election he was of assistance to Judge Smith in first attaining a Republican nomination to Common Pleas Court, and then winning in the general election.

Senator Mansfield is understood to be willing to go along with the McClelland suggestion.

Would Indicate Smith Outweighs McGovern

Should Dr. McClelland supplant Mr. Boyle it would be pretty definite notice that henceforth Judge Smith is emphatically in the ascendancy over Commissioner McGovern, their relative strengths heretofore having been a matter of uncertain political conjecture.

Such an outcome would be a strange and somewhat ironic situation.

It was in 1931 that Dr. McClelland was for a short time a boxing commissioner. He was named through the influence of James F. Malone, at the time secretary of property and supplies in the Pinchot cabinet.

Mr. McGovern claimed the shift had been made through deceitful representations by Mr. Malone that McGovern favored the exchange. That he did not was evident from the vigor with which he insisted that Dr. McClelland be counted out and that Mr. Boyle

SLEET-GLAZED ROADS PERIL AUTOISTS

Travel Hampered as Cold Wave Wanes In District

A layer of ice transformed highways to the north and east of Pittsburgh into glassy slides last night.

A number of motorists were hurt, many cars were damaged, and the danger of skidding kept drivers hugging the rim of the roads.

The slippery roads were attributed by W. S. Brotzman, United States meteorologist, to night temperatures freezing slight snowfalls in some places, and a residue of the rains or snows earlier in the day in others.

SKIES CLEAR

The skies are clear all over the country, Brotzman said, predicting temperatures today and tomorrow of between 35 and 40 degrees. At 8 o'clock this morning, the mercury stood at 38 degrees.

Workmen of the State Highways Department from McKeesport and in the northern part of the county cindered the turns and steeper hills from 10 o'clock until 1 a. m. today.

The new Perry highway leading into Pittsburgh by way of Mercer and Zelienople acquired a mirror-like glaze and reports of "a wreck-a-mile" were received from motorists. Cautious drivers, on grades, "crept" behind State Highway Department ash trucks, while others, more daring, resorted to tire deflation. Chains were useless. No serious injuries were reported.

75-FOOT PLUNGE

Plunging over a 75-foot embankment when their automobile skidded from the ice-covered highway near Kittanning, six persons narrowly escaped death, early today, police reported. The machine landed upright.

Losing control of his machine after skidding on a street car rail, Ted Kalakos, 32, of 7038 Bennet street, crashed into a pole in Penn avenue early today, police reported. He was treated at the St. Francis Hospital for lacerations of the head and face.

Mrs. Mary Simmeis, 34, of 971 Fifth avenue, Tarentum, and Mary Lendenski, 12, of 613 Third avenue, Tarentum, were treated at the Citizen's General Hospital at New Kensington, for injuries suffered in a triple automobile collision in Creighton, last night, according to a hospital report.

WOMAN KILLED

Mrs. Audzioga Szwlowski, 73, of Washington avenue extension, Carnegie, died of shock after she was struck by an automobile in Heidelberg, last night, according to a coroner's report. The automobile was driven by Alex Manan, of 412 East Main street, Carnegie, it was reported.

William L. White, 24, of 1531 Irwin avenue, died in Allegheny General Hospital last night of injuries suffered a short time before when the car which he was driving figured in a collision with one driven by Harry L. Burton, of 115 Downey street, Duquesne. The accident occurred at Western and Galveston avenues.

Six persons were injured when four automobiles collided on the Liberty Bridge last night. The injured, police reported, were William Helferich, of 130 Woodville street; Gerard Francis, of 147 Warden street; Cecil Schachley, Mrs. W. H. Jones, of 49 West Climax street; M. J. Achelbel, 32, of 2349 Whited street, and the latter's wife. Two others escaped injury.

Nab 15 Persons At Gambling Place

County detectives and Turtle Creek police raided an alleged gambling resort at Church street and Penn avenue, early yesterday, and arrested 15 visitors and the alleged proprietor, Milton Thompson. They will be given a hearing at Turtle Creek police station.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Nov. 20.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Been so warm and nice out here that it's knocked a lot of people out of work. Leaves Californians with nothing to do. They can't lie about the weather.

Will Rogers

Germany has got everybody all excited now. It sure seems good to have all the ills of the world blamed on somebody besides us. This country is gradually getting Democratic at that. See where J. P. Morgan had tea for the first time in the White House.

Of course he took his own tea, but it was nice of him to drop into the old frame hut at that. I tell you, big men are changing.

Yours, WILL.

'Sunset Dance,' Horrible Drama, Seen by Girl Spy

(Republished from Cosmopolitan Magazine and soon to appear on the screen as a Cosmopolitan production made for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and starring Marion Davies.)

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

It was warm in the rays of the western sun; Chancellor facing it, remained undazzled as an eagle; but Gailliard shaded his eyes with one hand while he ate with the other. And after a while the girl was aware that, in the shadow of his hand, the boy was stealthily watching her. When she realized it, to her consternation, she felt a faint glow invade her face; and instinctively fumbled at a gap in her ragged skirt.

She said to Chancellor: "Pray, sir, let me offer you some of this peach brandy. We all need a little, I think."

The grave, lanky chief of spies thanked her, poured out a cupful and offered it to her with a bow.

The girl declined, saying that she would take one mouthful after she had eaten. So he silently emptied the cup, rinsed and refilled it, and handed it, brimming, to Jack Gailliard.

The boy took the tin cup and looked the girl full in the face. "May I offer a sentiment, ma'am?" he asked, smilingly.

"If—you wish, sir," she replied, startled.

"Then, to her—whoever she may be, wherever she may be—who holds my heart—whatever she may do with it!" He emptied the tin cup, still smiling, set it aside, and resumed his meal as tranquilly as though a lifetime remained ahead of him instead of a few hours.

Chancellor's long, dark oblique eyes rested on him in quiet approval. Then, softly addressing Operator 13: "Ma'am, your life and ours is the kind of life that one lives to the full in a single day, I think. All that the human heart can experience of weal and woe, of pleasure and of dread, of hope and of despair, we sometimes experience between the rising and the setting of the sun."

"Yes," she said in a low voice.

Without Fear

"Well, ma'am, we are fortunate, I reckon, even in misfortune. We have lived completely—no matter how briefly—before we take that darkened path to which we are all destined. As for death, ma'am," he said tranquilly, "the only pity of it is the fear of it. Fear, ma'am, is a wicked thing. The mind cursed with it has looked on hell. Fear alone is cruel; death is kind . . . Leastways, I reckon it is thataway."

"Yes," said Operator 13.

He smiled at her. He said softly: "Thought of God awes but does not frighten such as we are, who have lived as we have lived, and tried to do our best. You know that, ma'am."

"Yes," she whispered.

Capt. Gailliard had finished his meal. He lay on his stomach in the ferns, listening and watching her.

Vespasian Chancellor also had finished. "Well, ma'am," he concluded, "you surely fooled us all. I reckon it might be right nice for you to feel that you have done your duty to your government."

"I have tried—I am trying—" her voice died out; she looked out over the sunny valley; watched a bluebird alight upon the haystack scaffolding and listened to its warbled melody.

"Pennsylvania is a right pretty country," said Chancellor. "I never saw fairer land than yon, ma'am."

Gailliard, lying in the ferns, said dryly: "A pretty country to be hanged in."

There was a painful silence. The girl knew what was the penalty for a spy taken out of uniform in enemy territory. And she had taken them in Pennsylvania. And was on her way to deliver them to the nearest federal pickets.

"Well, suh, Capt. Gailliard," drawled Chancellor, "we knew what we were about when we followed the young lady. An we knew what our folks would do to her if we caught her. An' she knew, too . . . Yuh did know, didn't you, ma'am?"

"Yes," said Operator 13.

Barbarous Law

"Not," said Chancellor gravely, "that it ain't a barbarous custom, I reckon it is. It always seems like to me that it would be both merciful an' safe to lock up spies until the bay'nets had argued it out." He sighed. "But military law is military law, an' hangin' is the verdict."

"No," said the girl, "the verdict of a military court is either guilty or not guilty. Courts-martial do not sentence."

"Quite true, ma'am," agreed Chancellor. "Yuh know your laws, ma'am."

Gailliard said to him: "Is there any doubt in your mind that they'll hang us?"

"None, suh."

After a silence Chancellor asked politely if he might find a quiet place in which to write a letter. "There is no harm in it, ma'am. It's just to say a pleasant word to those I am leaving. You may read it if you don't trust me."

She nodded, her velvet-dark young eyes fixed on the hayrick below.

So the tall, lanky fellow strode away and seated himself against a great tree where, with pencil and a scrap of butcher's paper, he began to write, carefully, slowly. After a long while the girl turned and looked at Gailliard, where he lay silent among the ferns with sunset light red on his bandaged face.

"Did you see me in the barn?" she asked coldly.

He gave her a surprised look. "Did you?" she repeated. Under his bandages, his sunburned skin reddened. "You did see me," she concluded.

Another silence. Then: "Why did you let me go, Capt. Gailliard?" No answer. "You disgarded your duty," she said coldly. "Why?"

If she had expected a passionate avowal she was disappointed. The boy merely shrugged and said, "If my government can't save itself without hanging a young girl, it can go to hell."

"Is that the reason?" she asked.

"One of the reasons."

"Was there another?"

What did this girl want him to say to her? Whatever it was, she remained disappointed again, for he merely folded his arms and laid his head on them.

Chancellor, intent on his letter, wrote slowly, resting the bit of discolored paper on his bony knee. Forest and clearing were very still in the sunset light.

Joyous Relief

As Operator 13 sat in the ferns staring down at the green fields and fringing woods below, out of the gold-and-scarlet foliage rode a lancer, his long lance garnished with a red pen-

Gail Loveless, at 20, became a spy in the Federal service and was designated as Operator 13. In the disguise of a quadroon laundress, she was sent to the headquarters of Gen. J. E. B. Stuart, Confederate cavalry leader, who was planning a daring raid into Pennsylvania.

Capt. Gailliard, leader of Stuart's spies, flirted with her, kissed her, fell half in love with her and was ashamed of himself. He and Belle Boyd, most famous Confederate woman spy, were convinced that "Lucille Lyndon," as she called herself, was a genuine colored girl, and harmless. But Vespasian Chancellor, Gailliard's colleague, suspected her. Eventually he exposed her as a spy. She stole Gailliard's horse, struck him in the face with his own pistol and fled.

Barred from flight in any other direction, she boldly joined Stuart's cavalry as it started north on its Pennsylvania raid. She cajoled Yellow Bob, Stuart's groom, into letting her ride one of the General's horses. She stole a farm boy's clothes to improve her disguise. Chancellor's "instinct" led him to a stable where Operator 13 had hidden in a hayloft. Gailliard, with Chancellor, persuaded the latter to go away.

Operator 13, taking Gen. Stuart's horses, rode away. Chancellor pursued and Gailliard followed him. The girl ambushed and trapped both, separately, and made them give her their parole, on pain of instant shooting.

Seeds of Gaiety Will Sprout in Guardia Gardens

-By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER-

Other cities may adopt Mayor La Guardia's idea of Viennese beer gardens.

Fiorello went all the way to Panama to sing the Maine stein song.

His idea is open-air gardens seating 10,000 people with music, pretzels and beer. That's great. All you need after that is to chalk off five-yard lines and throw in a football.

The gardens will be under municipal control. While trying to waltz home to the "Blue Danube" you will have your choice of the police band or a motorcycle escort.

That will make the Carolinas jealous. Under the new wet geography those states are bootlegged on the East by the Atlantic Ocean, hampered on the North by Virginia, hounded on the West by Tennessee and liquored on the South by Georgia.

They're surrounded by enemies who want to be friends.

And as the Governor of South Carolina said to the Governor of North Carolina:

"Don't bother to wind the clock."

Charges Pets Sold By Agent While She Was Ill

There are five blue-blooded Pomeranians and griffons in the home of Mrs. Annie O. Wilson at 5916 Rippey street.

But that's not enough: Mrs. Wilson wants two more—another Pomeranian and a Pekingese.

And, through the courts, Mrs. Wilson hopes to complete her kennel.

Mrs. Wilson complained to the courts that when she was sick a representative of hers sold four of her prized dogs without her knowledge. Two she has recovered.

She has already begun court proceedings to regain one, "Tiny," a Pomeranian, and she threatens similar action to recover the second.

Mrs. Wilson has taken action to recover "Tiny" from George F. Hackius, of Carnegie. But Mr. Hackius contends that he paid $50 for "Tiny" to Mrs. Wilson's representative, and he resents the suggestion that he return the dog.

Brewery Opening Solves Loss of Old Whistle

MONONGAHELA, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—The 25-year-old problem of "whistle, whistle, who's got the whistle"—the legendary whistle of the steamboat Boaz—has been solved with the return of the whistle-wetting era.

It was one of the first brass and silver whistles ever used on the old Monongahela-Ohio River packets, this ear-splitting siren heard up and down the Ohio Valley as far back as Civil War days.

It announced, in its own joyous fashion, the end of the Civil War for the people of Brownsville, Pa.; it was blown by no less a riverman than Mark Twain when he piloted the Boaz down the Ohio to Gallipolis in 1887; it aroused Horace Greeley in his midnight slumbers on a voyage to the West, and it heralded an up-the-Monongahela trip by President Benjamin Harrison.

But back in 1908 the whistle was sold at auction on the Pittsburgh wharf, was stolen a few days later from a blacksmith shop in Elizabeth—and then disappeared completely.

The ancient ear-splitter was found Saturday in a cob-webbed box in the attic of the soon-to-be-reopened Monongahela brewery.

7 GRID PLAYERS OVERCOME BY GAS

Four of seven sandlot football players who were overcome by carbon monoxide gas in a dressing room at the Sheraden swimming pool, Thornton street, yesterday, were reported recovering today in South Side Hospital.

Those taken to the hospital were Mike Bodnar, 21, of 102 Cherry street, Etna; Joseph Bigelow, 16, of 46 Chessman avenue, Etna; Albert Dellar, 14, of 3037 Zephyr avenue, and Earl Brooks, 19, of 2806 Chartiers avenue.

Two others, Floyd Keller, 19, of 3033 Zephyr avenue, and Joseph Quich, also of 46 Chessman avenue, were treated at the scene by firemen and removed to their homes. Police and firemen rushed to the scene, and inhalators were used on the victims.

Many others, players and spectators of a football game that had been played on a nearby field between the Sycamore Reserve and George A. Streib teams, reported they had been affected.

The fumes, police reported, came from a hot water heater that was burning in the dressing room. The caretaker, T. C. Kyle, reported that a pipe leading from the heater had been removed to make plastering repairs, police said.

Overcome by carbon monoxide gas while repairing an automobile in a closed garage, Floyd Phanton, 55, of 1852 Altaview street, was found unconscious by members of his family late yesterday. He was revived by a physician.

again hold the title. He was able to gain his point.

It was shortly after this that Mr. Malone retired from the Pinchot cabinet rather than support Mr. McGovern in the county commissioner primary fight, and the Boyle-McClelland incident was credited with some of the hard feelings expressed on both sides.

May Have Big Effect On County Politics

However, when Mr. Malone left the Pinchot circle, Judge Smith, who had entered it with Mr. Malone in the 1930 campaign for governor, remained.

He was a deputy attorney general, ultimately was named to a judgeship, and has steadily gained in authority with the Governor. It has been intimated for some time that he rather than McGovern had become the Pinchot okayer on patronage, but always with the approval of Mr. McGovern. In other words, they have never clashed.

There has been joint rather than single title to Pinchot leadership. But should Mr. Boyle be succeeded by Dr. McClelland, as is possible, there will be no other deduction than that Judge Smith is supreme, and that Commissioner McGovern is just a file closer.

It will be an odd situation, in view of the long association of McGovern with the Governor and the swift rise of Judge Smith.

Certainly Mr. McGovern has made the matter an issue, and the outcome may be portentous in Allegheny County politics.

JOB ENDS, BOSS THREATENED

Pietro Tamburri has a novel cure for unemployment—so novel that Pietro was locked up today.

A laborer, Pietro, who is 49 and lives in Rowan avenue, was disgusted when the street repair job in West End was finished and his job ended. So he wrote the contractor, Vincent Mannella, a letter:

"You did the work too soon, you should have stretched it along to last three or four months longer."

Then Pietro inserted a polite demand for $2,000, explaining that Mannella's haste had cost him his job.

Today in Central Police Court Pietro was held for court on a charge of extortion and faces the prospect of another kind of stretch.

W. Chambers By Robert

non, the metal on horse, saddle and uniform striking fire in the rays of the sun. A little way behind him two more lancers walked their horses out across the grass; then in column of fours, led by their officers, a squadron of lancers moved out into the meadow, forming a long single line facing the skeleton hayrick, about two hundred yards from it.

In her happy relief and excitement the girl began to quiver all over; was on the point of springing to her feet, when an ominous sound came from the depths of the gorgeous grove below—the low wail of fifes and the thudding of muffled drums. Gailliard lifted his head, sat up and looked down at the meadow.

Vespasian Chancellor, too, had heard the mournful sound. He rose and came over to kneel down beside Gailliard.

Nobody spoke. Nearer and nearer sounded the whine of the fifes and the deadened rhythm of the drums, still distant among the flaming maples.

Suddenly an entire regiment of cavalry in sky-blue overcoats trotted out of the woods, maneuvered smartly and halted in single rank, forming, with the lancers, the three remaining sides of a square with the hayrick in the center.

After them rattled a light buggy driven by two civilians. The face and hands of one of the men were blackened.

The buggy stopped beside the hayrick; both men got out and climbed to the platform, dragging with them a short ladder and a noosed rope. This latter they adjusted to the long beam between the two uprights, jerking it about, raising and lowering it until finally satisfied—they slid the ladder to the grass and sat down on the platform.

The ghastly thumping and squealing of the Dead March filled the sunset silence now, as a battalion of infantry marched out of the sugar bush behind the fifers and drummers, followed by a farm wagon guarded by dragoons.

In the wagon sat a man and a Catholic priest. The man, wearing only a collarless shirt, dark trousers and shoes, sat looking straight in front of him. The priest was whispering in his ear.

Now, in the red blaze of sunset, the wagon halted at the hayrick; the priest and the man with him got out and ascended the short ladder. A cavalry officer and two troopers also climbed up.

Immediately the man with the blackened face rose and came close beside the priest — the whole forming a dark group on the hayrick platform.

When the little crowd parted, a far tenor command rang out along the ranks of halted horsemen: "Draw sabers!" The thin, whistling swish of steel whipped the silence like a wind.

Ghastly Moment

Now, under the crossbeam the figure in collarless shirt and black trousers stood alone. A strip of cotton sealed his eyes; his colorless hands were bound behind his back.

The next instant he shot up into the air, then dropped, landing with a jerk.

On the floor of the hayrick the red sunshine set the shadows of his twitching feet dancing a silent shadow dance.

The jolly drums and fifes in the meadow were playing "When Johnny Comes Marching Home." Long lines of lances aglitter, pennons flickering like tongues of flame, were moving off at a canter. Blue-cloaked dragoons formed fours and followed. Some infantry soldiers were digging a hole beside the hayrick. A long pine box stood near them on the grass. The setting sun's red blaze swept field and forest.

Now it was time for Operator 13 to join her own people in the fields below. She started to rise, but stumbled, and would have fallen had not Chancellor caught her and lifted her to her feet.

"It was too much for a lady to look upon, ma'am," he said soothingly. "I reckon we all need a little of that peach brandy before we are ready to go on."

into your saddle and ride away."

"Ma'am?"

"Don't you understand?" she sobbed. "I give you back your parole. Get away from here! Quick!"

The girl turned from him sharply, blind with tears, and stood swaying, sickened, faint. In her throbbing ears sounded the merry rattle of drums and skirling of fifes; and there was a noise of hammering, too, as a man with blackened face and hands drove nails into the cover of a long wooden box.

Operator 13 made her way slowly to her horse, laid her quivering face against Skylark's saddle and wept in silence. When at last she lifted her head she saw Jack Gailliard standing beside his horse, waiting,

Returns Parole

"Get onto your horse," she said in a strangled voice. "Get and her eyes flew wide with fright.

"Have you gone mad?" she whispered. "What are you lingering here for?"

"You did not return my parole to me."

Incensed, inarticulate in her rage and terror, the girl advanced toward him, her small hands clenched, her lovely mouth distorted. "Get onto your horse and go!" she gasped, beating at his breast with frantic little fists, "go home and mind your d-damn b-business."

He took her futile hands into both of his; kissed them again and again; raised her hot, wet face and kissed the whimpering red lips—until no sound came from them, only the hot fragrance of her awakened soul and body.

And at last the girl put her trembling arms around his neck and kissed him.

The zenith was afire in the crimson afterglow when Operator 13, riding Skylark, and leading Lady Margrave, rode into Emmettsburg, and wearily asked the way to the quarters of the provost guard.

COUGHLIN HAILS RETIREMENT OF WOODIN

DETROIT, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—The Rev. Father Charles E. Coughlin, pastor of the Shrine of the Little Flower, said in a speech yesterday that "the malevolent influence of the Morgans" passed with the retirement of Secretary William H. Woodin and Undersecretary Dean Acheson from the Treasury Departmnet.

Asserting that the President's plans and promises to the nation will be kept, Father Coughlin said:

"Two weeks ago this afternoon I informed you that the money changers were already out of the temple. Today you know this to be a fact. Mr. Woodin and Mr. Acheson are dismissed in no impolite but uncertain manner from the Treasury. With their departure passes the malevolent influence of the Morgans. With their departure there comes an end to one of the chief obstructions to our financial emancipation.

"With the appointment of Mr. Morgenthau (Henry Morgenthau, Jr.) the price of our gold ounce will not lag behind the price placed upon gold by the British government.

"In other words it will be possible for us with safety and security to issue more currency dollars against this revaluated gold."

Fr. Coughlin reiterated previous predictions that silver would be remonetized, but added that "by this there is no implication that the Bryan theory of silver will be put into practice."

"And finally, you can expect the Constitution of the United States will also be restored—a Constitution that was scrapped like paper by the international bankers while they abrogated to themselves the right of coining currency, of possessing and abusing the gold that belongs to this nation."

Europe Fears Roosevelt 'Money Dictatorship'

LONDON, Nov. 20.—President Roosevelt's apparent aim to establish a world monetary dictatorship alarms Europe just as the United States veered away from Woodrow Wilson's League of Nations proposal.

The British public, like the French, showed signs of restiveness last week when the precipitous collapse of the dollar threatened British and Empire trade.

The City is impressed at the growing indication that the United States, too, has its doubts. Sir Percival Phillips cables the Daily Mail, after a seven-week tour of the United States:

"It is believed in some quarters the government is tending towards a ruthless dictatorship to cover the failure of its pet, NRA."

PARIS, Nov. 20.—Though the fog of political oratory disguises the fact for the public, it is none the less privately and openly recognized by high government and financial men that a historic battle to keep France on the gold standard begins today.

Premier Sarraut will go before the Chamber of Deputies to beg for a majority vote on his financial reforms, which the finance committee of the chamber has viewed unfavorably. An adverse vote on this question would end the political life of the Sarraut ministry.

U. S. CHAMBER BEGINS PROBE OF NRA

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Investigation of the NRA program by a special committee of the United States Chamber of Commerce was under way today following the chamber's attack upon President Roosevelt's fiscal policy, the public works administration as well as the national recovery program.

The committee was named at a secret meeting which instructed the group of seven to study the NRA and authorized recommendation of code changes. Present codes were termed "unenforceable and leading to chiseling," working against honest conduct of business.

The committee was instructed to explore the entire field of codes with the purpose of formulating a program to take from the government policing powers and place them under unified trade associations.

Members of the committee are: Chairman, David H. Edwards, president Saco-Lowell shops, Boston; Silas H. Strawn, Chicago attorney and former president of the U. S. Chamber; Julius H. Barnes, New York, former president of the chamber and Assistant Secretary of Commerce under Herbert Hoover; Henry I. Harriman, president of the chamber; Lewis E. Pierson, Irving Trust Company, New York and former president; Fred H. Clausen, president Van Brundt Manufacturing Company, Horicon, Wis., and John Law, president Saxon Mills, Spartansburg, S. C.

Discussing the chamber's proposal, Strawn said:

"There is not enough money or enough man power to put a straight-jacket on American business."

Chunk of Mineral Recalls Harvard Murder Case

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—A hunk of vesuvianite—relic of the famous Webster murder case of 1849—was found today tucked away in a desk drawer at the Natural History Museum.

Prof. John W. Webster, of Harvard, killed Dr. Joseph Parkman, of Boston, in November, 1849, for possession of the bit of vesuvianite and other chunks of minerals.

The relic's identity was disclosed by Herbert P. Whitlock, curator of gems and minerals at the museum. He discovered a yellow note about the size of a quarter, on which was written:

"Vesuvianite — Sanford, Me. From the cabinet of Prof. John W. Webster, of Harvard College. It was a contention over this cabinet that led to the murder of Dr. Joseph Parkman by Prof. Webster, for which the latter was hanged in 1850."

Pattern 1652

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

Gay, young, dashing, smart, exciting'—just a few of the adjectives that tumbled from our mouth when we saw this cape frock made up by our designer. It was of sheer wool, with the pert bengaline collar touched off by a few hand stitches—and she said it was the easiest thing in the world to cut and sew together. Now doesn't that sound very inviting to the younger set? There is an illustrated sewing instructor with the pattern, too. Either cape or collar may be omitted as shown in the tiny views. Jersey, crepe or novelty cottons would also be appropriate to use.

Pattern 1652 is available in sizes 10, 12, 14, 16 and 18. Size 14 takes 2⅜ yards 54-inch fabric and ⅜ yard 36-inch contrasting.

GET THAT COLD OUT— ROOTS AND ALL!

Give it No Chance to Sprout Anew!

A half-cured cold is a cold never cured! And once a cold gains foothold in your system it can make serious trouble for you. Many remedies merely suppress a cold only to have it pop out again. A cold, being an internal infection, requires internal treatment. And it requires a remedy that is distinctly a cold remedy and not good for half a dozen other things too.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is what a cold calls for. It is expressly a cold remedy. It is internal and direct. It is complete in effect. It does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, gently but thoroughly. It combats the cold germs in the system and reduces the fever. It relieves the headache and grippy feeling. It tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine contains nothing harmful and is absolutely safe to take. For more than forty years it has been the standard cold and grippe tablet of the world, the formula always keeping pace with Modern Medicine. Every druggist sells Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine, 30c and 50c. Good druggists will not try to talk you into a substitute for the sake of a little more profit.

When a cold threatens, don't wait or delay, but go right to your druggist for Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. Always ask for it by the full name and look for the letters L B Q stamped on every tablet.

Psychology Classes Study Activity Of Rodent

In a practical demonstration of the "cyclical activity" urge, experimental psychology classes at the University of Pittsburgh have been observing a white rat, running within a wire wheel for the past 42 days, according to Dr. Norman L. Munn, of the psychology department.

A cyclometer attached to the wheel measures the distance it turns. For four or five days, the little animal will spin the wheel only four or five miles; the fifth day, it will step up the speed until it is turning from 10 to 16 miles.

The wheel is attached to a small cage, where the rat can rest and eat and drink. But whenever it feels like it, it can "stretch its legs" in the wheel. To date, it has run a total distance of more than 280 miles.

Such "activity cycles" exist in every living creature, Dr. Munn states. Psychology students study the rat "cycles" because they are more exaggerated and therefore more easily observed. In human beings such cycles are restrained, and seem to become lost in the complexity of every day life. Dr. Munn says:

"The object of the experiment is to verify for our students the experiments conducted by Richter at Johns Hopkins University."

Miss Moilie resides in Bridgeville.

Local Trio Not Matched. High Value of Danowski. Pitt Looks Equal to Best. Age of Lucas No Bar. Longest Scoring Passes. Equipoise to Race Again.

PITTSBURGH RANKS AS ALL-AMERICA CITY

Probably there will be the usual difference of opinion this year on all-America player selections, but there can't be any doubt about the all-America football city. If the all-national picking were narrowed down to naming the town that has earned the right to the most prominent place on the pigskin map, by reason of number and quality of college teams produced, Pittsburgh would walk away with the honors. Few other cities can boast even of having three major elevens, and certainly none can point to a trio holding such a combined record as Pitt, Carnegie Tech and Duquesne.

Howdy O'Dell

In a total of 24 games, each has been defeated only once, and one of the three defeats was a purely local one, a game in which one of the home teams had to be beaten. Notre Dame was defeated twice in eight days by Pittsburgh teams, and the vanquished list also includes Nebraska, Navy, Detroit, Bucknell, Temple, and others, not to mention such district victories as two over W. & J. and two over West Virginia. Any other city with three teams able to match the record of the Pititsburgh elevens is invited to step forward.

PANTHERS RANK WITH BEST AT PRESENT

And in the matter of a single team, fans who saw the superiority of Pitt over previously unbeaten Nebraska demonstrated by a far wider margin than the score of 6 to 0 would indicate, in an exhibition marred only by a couple of errors of judgment, including a kick out of bounds instead of a run that should have been used on fourth down with only a few seconds to go to end the game without giving Nebraska the ball, are convinced that the Panthers right now are equal to any eleven in the land.

Howdy O'Dell, Frank Walton and Bob Hogan are in their best form of the season. Mike Sebastian was brilliant during his stay Saturday in spite of injuries that would have kept many a player out of uniform. Izzy Weinstock, Joe Skladany and Doc Hartwig are keeping up the great work that has won them all-America mention. Tar Onder, George Shotwell, Nick Kliskey and the rest are consistently dependable, and the caliber of the reserves was shown when a couple of them, Leon Shedlosky and Mike Nicksick, put over the winning touchdown against the Huskers. Regardless of that Minnesota defeat in October, it is doubtful if there is a team better than Pitt wearing spikes at the moment.

RUN OF 88 YARDS TOPS PASSING PLAYS

After delving into the football dope, the record hunters have come up with the discovery that the longest run for a touchdown on a completed forward pass in the history of college competition was made by the Marquette team of 1926. Trailing Auburn, 3 to 0, in the final quarter of a game in Birmingham, Ala., the Milwaukee gridders engineered a daring and unexpected play that brought them victory.

Joe Leary, Marquette's punter, went into his end zone, as if to kick. Instead, he passed to Rupert O'Keefe on the 12-yard line, and the little quarterback ran 88 yards for a touchdown. The sprint was one yard longer than the supposed record run of John Schneider for St. Louis against Kansas in 1906, and three yards longer than the famous Forbes Field dash of 85 yards, which Bob Higgins made for Penn State against Pitt in 1919 on a 25-yard pass from Bill Hess.

DANOWSKI HELD EQUAL TO COACH ON FIELD

No football player in the college ranks this year has received a higher tribute from his coach than that paid by Jimmy Crowley, Fordham mentor, to Ed Danowski, captain and left halfback of the Rams. Referring to Danowski enthusiastically with "There's a football player for you," Crowley does not stop at praising the player's mechanical excellence but declares that having a man like the Fordham star in the backfield is like having a coach on there directing the team.

Ed Danowski

Danowski does not call the signals for the Rams, but Crowley says his smart and dependable play is a steadying and inspiring influence on all the rest of the players. Danowski has a football mind, as well as a rare physical and mechanical equipment. Critics who have talked football with him agree that his insight into the game is extraordinarily keen and that he has a thorough and intelligent comprehension of its every detail. In a playing sense Danowski is admitted to rank with the best backs in the country. Quick at leaving his stance, he picks up speed faster than most big men, and runs with a powerful and elusive stride.

MANY OLDER THAN LUCAS STILL STARRING

The fact that Red Lucas will be 32 years old next April 28 does not mean, as some fans seem to fear, that the new Pirate pitcher will not be useful to the local club for a long time to come. Burleigh Grimes was almost 35 when the Bucs obtained him in 1928, but had two fine seasons here and was still a great pitcher until a year ago.

Many moundsmen older than Lucas still are starring in the big leagues. To mention the approximate ages of a few of them, omitting the real oldsters, such as Vance, Jones, Rixey and more, Huck Betts is 36; Charley Root, 35; Lefty Grove, George Earnshaw, Fred Marberry, Rube Walberg and Earl Whitehill, 34; Alvin Crowder, Fred Fitzsimmons, Walter Stewart, Ted Lyons, Jim Elliott and Edgar Holley, 33, and Ben Cantwell and Ray Benge, 32.

EQUIPOISE MAY RETURN; WINOOKA TO STAY

The turf may not have seen the last of Equipoise in competition after all. There is a chance that Cornelius V. Whitney's famous horse will return to the running tracks for some stake races next year. Whitney recently retired Equipoise to the breeding farm, with the intention of keeping him there, but Trainer Tom Healy and Maj. Beard, farm manager, are trying to persuade the owner to put the champion back in training next spring and are reported to have him wavering.

C. V. Whitney

The return of Equipoise may bring about in 1934 that often discussed test of speed between the great American horse and Winooka, the Australian champion, not in a match race, as that is definitely out, but in a stake race in which both thoroughbreds will be among the entries. For Winooka is to remain in this country over the winter for another American campaign. Manager Rule Naylor and Jockey Edgar Britt will sail this week for Australia, but the horse will be sent to a farm in Kentucky or Virginia with Trainer Mike Polson in charge.

Sebastian Sure of Place Among Panther Heroes

By JESS CARVER

This is a tale, not of a Pitt victory nor a Nebraska defeat, but a tale of heroism—a tale of the heroism of Michael John Sebastian.

Character is courage, and that exemplifies an undeniably all America halfback who "laughed off" one of football's most painful injuries to soften up a rugged Cornhusker defense that seemed the last word in impregnability.

Mike Sebastian's left side was bruised, battered and rubbed to the raw-meat stage. Every move he made was painful to the point of excruciation. He had to be revived three times on the field and finally was carried off, but before that he paved the way to a glorious 6 to 0 triumph for the Panthers.

If Mike Sebastian does not make a single all-America team; if he doesn't do another thing this season, he need not worry. He gave one of the gamest exhibitions of play last Saturday ever witnessed on any gridiron, and deserves to go down in history as one of Pitt's great.

Bravo, Rose of Sharon . . . bravo!

LEADERS UPSET

And that victory Saturday was only one of a series of headaches for undefeated and untied football teams this country over.

Michigan, the apparently untouchable, was held to a pointless tie by Minnesota; Pitt's only conqueror; proud Georgia gave up its perfect record, bowing to Auburn (Alabama Poly to you); Princeton eked out a win over Navy after being kicked all over the lot; the University of Oregon slumped out of the unbeaten category, giving its all to Southern California. El Trogan coming back nobly after the Stanford defeat to crush the Webfoots (well, Webfeet), 26 to 0.

All these developments came under the head of upsettedness, but out of the week-end nothing came quite so much in the nature of surprise as Notre Dame's scoring of a touchdown, much less winning over the Purple of Northwestern.

And another thing don't forget that West Virginia, after eight attempts, finally won a ball game. To say anything more would be gilding the lily. The victim, and this tells the story, was West Virginia Wesleyan, a hapless wayfarer along the gridiron trail.

SKLADANY STARS

Returning, for a paragraph or two, to the Pitt-Nebraska game. It is written not only in the do-or-die play of Sebastian and Skladany, but also in the full-backing of the two "W's"—Weinstock and Weisenbaugh, and that now famous pass Shedlosky to Nicksick.

Pitt had obtained the ball on Sauer's punt (and there's a ball player for you) on Nebraska's 43-yard line. Shedlosky, who, at the start of the season, had entertained hopes only of getting into some of the fourth-quarter soirees of the Panthers, struck the Huskers' right tackle for two yards. On the next play the Flying Dutchman (Weisenbaugh) broke through his own right guard on a spinner and scampered 31 yards to the 10-yard line. The young man smacked the center of the line on two occasions for two and a half yards each time. Then Shedlosky rammed the left side of the line for two more. Soo-oo-oo—it was fourth down, goal to go, and the Huskers looming tougher than tough.

Pitt had been inside the five-yard line before, and, thanks to the Husker defense and the colossal boner of the arbiters, had failed to score. But this time those third-string halfbacks, Shedlosky and Nicksick, got together in the huddle, and the conversation went something like this:

Weisenbaugh—Nerts.

Shedlosky—Hey, let me throw a pass to Nicksick. They'll never expect that guy to catch a pass. How about it?

Munjas—O. K. with me. It's you guys' funerals. Let's go.

And that's how it all happened, and victory came to Pitt. It was, as a matter of fact, a well-earned triumph, inasmuch the Panthers dominated the play except for few moments in the second period when the redoubtable Sauer punted and ran and passed in truly all-American fashion.

Perhaps the rest of the game is written in the sterling play of another All-American aspirant, Muggsy (23) Skladany, about whose end progress is virtually impossible. Three times Nebraska tried to negotiate that flank, and each time, the Huskers were turned back. For the afternoon, they wound up with a net loss of some three yards against Muggsy.

TECH IN RIOT

Carnegie Tech got something beside a train ride and a victory for invading Washington and taking on Georgetown Saturday. The Tartans found themselves squarely in the center of a man-sized riot after the game, were kicked and punched around by the players and fans alike and it now appears as if athletic relations between the Skibos and Hoyas would be broken off.

There has been no greater boner in the length and breadth of the land this season than the one the officials pulled in the Pitt-Nebraska game, when they gave the Panthers only three downs to

One of the most pleasing of the district boxers, Charley Burns, of Johnstown, boxes a local favorite, Mose Butch, of Oakland, in the 10-round main bout at the Moose Temple, downtown, tonight. They are featherweights.

Burns is a good boxer who does not hesitate to slug it out with his opponents on occasion. He is very fast with both feet and hands. Butch is a southpaw, which may handicap the visitor a bit.

Two Negro middleweights, Billy Holt, of Homewood, and Anson Green, of Homestead, box in another 10-rounder, which gives promise of being a punchfest between hard hitters.

BLOZEVICH BOXES DURSO

Charley Blozevich, of St. Michael's, boxes Johnny Durso, local lightweight, in the second six-rounder, and Jack Dalcherone, Springdale middleweight, takes on Whiz Lazor, of St. Michael's, in the opener, at 8:30.

This is the first professional boxing show in two weeks at the Moose, which was dark last week.

Gino Garibaldi, of Italy, 218-pounder, and Vanka Zelezniak, of Russia, who scales 222 in condition, meet in the main bout of the wrestling revival at Motor Square Garden Thursday night. All of the contestants on the card scale more than 200 pounds.

HEAVY WRESTLERS CARDED

Milo Steinborn, 225-pound German strong man, is pitted against Floyd Marshall, 223-pound Californian, in the second bout, and Karl Davis, formerly of Ohio State, 210, takes on Cliff Olsen, of Minnesota, 205, in the opener. The preliminary bouts will be limited to 30 minutes.

A card of six amateur bouts is scheduled at the Pittsburgh Lyceum tomorrow night.

All-America Blanket Contest Under Way

This is the day the field gets away in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's All-America Football Team contest.

The idea of the contest is to try to match the team to be selected at the end of the season by the All-America Board of Football.

Making matters easy for the contestants is the fact that the selections will be limited to players named in the weekly ratings of the board appearing every Saturday in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Beautiful all-America blankets will be awarded the winners. There will be 10 of these. All the contestants have to do is to name 11 players on a blank which will be provided in later issues and attach a letter giving their reasons for picking the players selected. In the event of ties, a committee to be announced will select the winners, on a basis of the best reasons advanced, in line with the board's reasons for naming the players who make up the team.

The team will be announced on Sunday, December 16. No entries in the contest will be received after Wednesday, December 13, to give the fans a chance to check the last of the all-America weekly ratings, which will be published on Saturday, December 9. Entries must be addressed to the All-America Contest Editor, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. Employes of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and members of their families are not eligible to compete.

Following are the players who have made the ratings so far; watch for the additions up to and including December 9:

HARRIERS MEET IN TITLE RUN

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—With four brilliant mile runners to set the pace, a field of 130 runners, representing 20 colleges, will compete in the twenty-fourth annual intercollegiate A. A. A. A. cross-country championship over the rugged six-mile course in Van Cortlandt Park today.

Gene Venzke, the brilliant Pennsylvania sophomore, who holds the indoor mile record; Joe Mangan, of Cornell; Frank Crowley, of Manhattan, and Frank Nordell, of New York University, all have run the mile in 4:14 or better, and all except Venzke have won their spurs over the longer hill and dale courses. Venzke started his career as a distance runner, but hasn't had any competition in that line for several years.

The University of Pittsburgh has entered a full team.

MUNDY WINS TITLE

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 20.—(INS.)—Joe Mundy, Philadelphia, today is the national junior cross-country champion. Mundy took the lead at the start of the 6¼-mile course yesterday and never relinquished it until he had crossed the tape in 35:32. H. Trefferson, of the Meadowbrook A. C., was second, 200 yards back, and Fred Titzell, of the Millrose A. C., a close third.

CUE TOURNEY OPENS

Louis Hogan and Larry Mitchell meet tonight in the opening match of the city championship pocket billiard tournament to be held in the Roosevelt parlors, 130 Sixth street. Matches will continue nightly for a period of four weeks. Eight players are entered.

GAMES SHIFT ADVISABILITY DISCUSSED

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The big issue of the annual convention of the Amateur Athletic Union at the William Penn Hotel as it moved into its first afternoon session today was whether or not it approves of holding the 1936 Olympic Games in Berlin, Germany, in view of the anti-Jewish situation there.

Charles L. Ornstein, of New York, representing the Jewish Welfare Board, was prepared to lead a strong fight on the convention floor. A long committee session was held on the matter throughout last night in an attempt to bring the matter before the delegates in an orderly and dignified manner. Just how much success was attained remained to be seen when the matter was brought on the floor of the conclave.

DELEGATES WELCOMES

The convention was brought to order at 9 o'clock this morning and received a greeting of welcome from Councilman Harry Little, appearing for Mayor John S. Herron.

The first business was consideration of the track and field committee's approval of the metric system for meets, as agreed upon last night.

Records in various sports were considered, and to the credit of Miss Lenore Kight, of the Carnegie Library, of Homestead, were placed five new world marks, as follows:

200 yards, 2.20.5; 250 yards, 3.02; 300 yards, 3.28.4; 400 yards, 5.02.2; 440 yards, 5.33.6.

A record of 11.10 for the 880-yard relay swim, set by the Homestead team of Louise Clark, Johanna and Anna Mae Gorman and Miss Kight, was referred to the International Union for recognition. A mark of 4.23.2 for the 400-yard distance by the same team was approved as a National A. A. U. standard.

HURDLE MARK ACCEPTED

Johnny Morriss' 110-meter hurdle mark of 14.6, the only disputed record in the track and field events, was accepted by the convention.

The paving of the way for the retention of the metric system and the listing of Miss Kight as one of the 10 athletes eligible to receive the Sullivan Memorial Award featured yesterday's opening session. In addition to Miss Kight, those whose names were turned over to a jury of 600 sports leaders for final selection were: Glenn Cunningham, William R. Bonthron, Ralph Metcalfe, Keith Brown, Pat McDonald, Johnny Morriss, Clarence DeMar, Glenn Hardin and Alfred Joachim.

A hot fight developed at the outset of today's session over the right of the Indiana-Kentucky Association delegates, led by Paul R. Jordan, to be certified, but a

NEW YORKERS LEAD IN SKATE MARATHON

ENDURANCE ACE ON ICE AFTER 36 HOURS

Having skated continuously for 36 hours, Carl Bartholomew, of St. Paul, had stolen the show from Bobby Lamb and Al Krux, pace-setters representing New York City, in the Duquesne Garden seven-day skating marathon at the Garden at noon today.

Already far beyond the previous world record for continuous skating—a mark of 19 hours set by Pop Bodreau, of Montreal, also in the local event—Bartholomew struggled on in the hope that Everett MacGowan, his injured partner, would be able to provide relief before he collapsed. MacGowan was injured in the sprints which preceded the opening of the marathon Saturday night. Bartholomew recently won a marathon event at Providence, R. I.

There was no sprinting during today's early hours, and there were no changes in the standings from dawn until noon. Leonard Cleveland and Harold Ake, representing Pittsburgh, clung to fourth place, behind New York, Boston and Detroit, in that order. The standings at noon today were as follows:

Team.	Laps.	Points.
New York	2724	450
Boston	2724	310
Detroit	2724	300
PITTSBURGH	2723	130
Syracus	2724	130

MORGAN TIES HEIDELBERG

By TOM BIRKS

Morgan and Heidelberg battled to a 1-all tie in the national challenge cup competition yesterday afternoon at Morgan. The teams will meet in the replay at Heidelberg next Sunday.

One of the greatest games of the season, played on a heavy field with snow falling throughout, drew a great crowd, and it must be said that the Green and Gold clad aggregation from Heidelberg had plenty the best of the game.

Morgan, starting with the usual dash that is typical of Millers Run teams, scored in the first five minutes of play, Mitchell taking the ball well in and beating Ramons with a well placed ball.

The joy was short lived. A smart movement on the part of the Heidelberg front line 10 minutes later put McElwee in position to score, and the little outside right made no mistake, beating Dresmich easily. That finished the scoring, the defense of Dante Villani and Dave Matthews, opposed to Bobish and Kuten, stopped all efforts on the part of the attacking lines to tally.

The big upset of the day was at Coraopolis, with the undefeated Arsenal eleven, of the Central League, losing to Coraopolis, 3 to 1; Gallatin won a terrific struggle from Old Carnegie in the West Penn cup, 3 to 2, and Moon Run easily stopped Ambridge by a 3-0 score in the same tourney.

Plenty of trouble marked the playing of the Shannon-Reihls game at Glendale, the referee reported intimidation on the part of the home crowd as Glendale won, 4 to 3. The National Cup lineup:

make a first and 10 in the second period with the ball on the two-yard line. The rules, you know, call for four tries. Of course you know, we just were reminding you.

Of course, Pitt should be blamed for not scoring in three tries. Certainly it was not Sebastian's fault. The Rose of Sharon was hitting like a fullback as he slashed at the Husker tackles and rambled against the ends, but Nebraska's seven-man line defense, with a diamond secondary, was too tough.

D.-E.VICTOR

The games went about according to dope throughout the district on Saturday, except that Thiel rather upset things by beating Waynesburg, 6 to 0. Slippery Rock kept its record intact by beating Clarion, 12 to 0. Geneva nosed out Grove City, 6 to 0; Davis-Elkins had a field day at the expense of Albright, a school which has defeated the Hurricane two years in a row; Penn State played nobly in tying Penn; St. Vincent beat LaSalle, 12 to 7, in a great game, and Wash-Jeff lost another one, this time to Temple, 13 to 0.

The East's slender list of undefeated and untied teams held firm during the past week, Bluefield College, Army, Princeton and St. Thomas all hanging up victories. Davis and Elkins, tied but unbeaten, walloped Albright, 53-0

Davis and Elkins virtually clinched scoring honors as the Scarlet Hurricane ran its total points for the season to 372 Bluefield stands second at 282 Army third at 203, Canisius fourth at 198, Fordham fifth at 195 and Villanova sixth at 192.

HOYA ALUMNI IN DENIAL

Georgetown alumni in the Pittsburgh district today took exception to charges of unfair conduct by members of the Washington team and its supporters in connection with the football game with Carnegie Tech last Saturday.

Denial was made of some of the printed reports, and it was said an investigation would be conducted leading to a presentation of Georgetown's side of the story.

At Carnegie Tech is was said Clarence Overend, graduate manager of athletics, had not yet returned from Washington.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Last Saturday's football game in Washington between Carnegie Tech and Georgetown University probably brought an end to athletic relations between the two institutions . . . Not only did Tech return with stories of unbecoming conduct on the part of the Hoya players and an attack on the Tartan players by the spectators at the finish, but one of the Washington newspapers in reporting the game branded the Tech players as "hard-bitten section hands," and deplored the "slaughter" of the Georgetown innocents in a game in which Tech, sensing a chance to rest the regulars for the first time this season, started its reserves and kept them in the game most of way, to win by only 19-0 as against the 51-0 score of last year. . . . Tech was well fed up on the incident and it will be a long time, if ever, before it agrees to match its footballers against the Georgetown hosts again, it was said.

That was a pretty tough Nebraska football team that Pitt nosed out, 6-0, at the Stadium on Saturday. . . .Few teams could have taken the Huskers, who were fighting all of the way with the thought of getting the Rose Bowl invitation uppermost in their minds. . . . But for the run of Weisenbaugh to the 10-yard line, which set the stage for the only scoring play, a forward pass, in the final quarter, all of Pitt's driving efforts were unavailing. . . . The Panthers ate up much yardage, only to find the Nebraska defense unyielding in the scoring zone. . . .That Pitt won at all is a tribute to its fine team play and lack of discouragement in the face of an immovable object.

The game did much to cause the Panthers' stock to soar, as on the same day Minnesota, the only team to beat Pitt, 7-3, was outplaying the admittedly great Michigan eleven in a scoreless tie. . . . Pitt again has one of its traditionally powerful November teams, and, barring the possibility of a post-season game, now has only one more contest on its schedule, with Carnegie Tech on Thanksgiving Day. . . . The Tartans play New York University at New York while Pitt rests next Saturday.

E. L. Blystone (Bly, the Rice Writer), of Ardara, Pa., who was one of the featured performers in Ripley's Believe It Or Not show at the World Fair in Chicago, is in Cleveland with the Ripley show and will appear with it here next week . . . He tells a good story of a Believe It Or Not experience in Chicago . . . One of his best friends there is Al Behrendt, secretary of the American Racing Pigeon Union, and he expected Behrendt to be one of his first visitors . . . Imagine his surprise when Behrendt did not appear on the scene until just two minutes before the show closed, after a run of months!

Max Elling, local welterweight, now boxing in Syracuse, had an odd experience while fighting there the other night . . . A section of the ring collapsed, and Max and his foe had to confine their battling to one side of the ring while carpenters made the necessary repairs. . . . Three Pittsburgh district boys, Howard Dowhey, of Bellevue; Parks Hutcheson, Dormont, and Jack Patterson, Wilkinsburg, are members of the freshman cross-country team which competed for Penn State in the IC4A meet in New York today.—HARRY KECK.

special committee reported they had been elected under the proper procedure and the convention voted to seat them.

All but Miss Kight and Joachin, the national gymnastics champion, are track and field stars. In the preliminary voting, Cunningham, of the University of Kansas, and Bonthron, of Princeton, ran far ahead of the field. They are middle distance runners but have never met in competition.

GARLAND HONORED

The first Sullivan Memorial medal awarded for "outstanding service to sports" was awarded today to William May Garland, of Los Angeles, president of the organization committee which handled the highly successful Olympic games of 1932.

The service medal is a companion piece to the outstanding amateur athlete.

It was announced that hereafter golf and tennis players will not be eligible to the Sullivan Memorial medals. Bobby Jones was awarded the first one in 1930.

Five collegiate track and field coaches were on hand to boost the metric system. The list included George Bresnahan, of Iowa; Henry Schulte, of Nebraska; Frank Castleman, of Ohio State; Johnny Magee, of Bowdin, and Ward Haylett, of Kansas State.

RACE SUBSTITUTED

In connection with the approval of the international standards for future competition, the committee voted to substitute the 1,600-meter run for the 1,500-meter run, the latter being the distance observed in Europe. The A. A. U. men wished to keep the various distances in even multiples when they took this action. An amendment was tacked on, which makes it possible for the A. A. U. to reconsider this single change, in the event that the International Federation refuses to go along with this proposal.

The Allegheny Mountain Association—which means Pittsburgh—was awarded three events by the national organization. This city will stage the 220 and 500-yard junior outdoor swimming meets and the senior outdoor volley ball championship.

Pittsburgh also was in the foreground as a standard set of rules was adopted for handball. Led by Chairman J. Rogers Flannery one of the kingpin players of this district, the handball committee, after a hot session, voted to adopt a single standard. Heretofore play has been divided between A. A. U. and Y. M. C. A. rules. The double plan had caused no end of confusion, locally, as well as in other warm centers of the in door game. This committee also was in session for almost 12 hours.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 20.—The Philadelphia Eagles, probably the most vastly improved eleven in the National Professional Football League, today were celebrating a triumph scored at the expense of the Pittsburgh Pirates here yesterday.

Using a diversified attack, the Eagles defeated the Pirates, 25 to 6.

Held to a lone touchdown in the first half, the Eagles opened up in the last half to sweep the Pittsburgh team off its feet and score their most impressive victory of the season before 7,000 fans.

Joe Carter, brilliant end of the Eagles, twice crossed the Pittsburgh goal line. Carter was on the receiving end of two forwards, tossed by Roger (Red) Kirkman, formerly of Washington and Jefferson College, and each resulted in a tally. Swede Hansen, one-time Temple University ace, made spectacular dashes along the sidelines and once crossed for a touchdown on a cleverly executed play.

With a lead of 19 to 0 at the end of the third period, a reserve team was sent in for Philadelphia and for a time they were baffled by the Pirates' aerial attack. Before the startled reserves could check Pittsburgh's drive, the ball was down on the 15-yard line. It was given to Angel Brovelli, famed half-back from St. Mary's, and he went around the end for the lone Pirate touchdown. The lineup:

BEARS HOLD LEAD

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Chicago's Bears, champions of the National Professional Football League, returned home today just barely clinging to the lead in the Western Division.

The Bruins left several weeks ago with a good margin over the pack, but wound up a disastrous road trip yesterday by losing to the New York Giants, 3 to 0. The Portsmouth Spartans blew a great chance of gaining first place by taking a 10-to-7 beating from the Cincinnati Reds.

The Giants held the leadership of the Eastern Division when Ken Strong, place-kicked a field goal from the 15-yard line in the second period, to down the Bears.

Other games yesterday resulted in the once mighty Green Bay Packers taking a 20-to-7 licking from the Boston Redskins, and the Chicago Cardinals taking it on the chin, 3 to 0, from the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Michigan, Jackets To Meet in '34

ATLANTA, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—A return to intersectional football, after a two-year layoff, is slated for Georgia Tech in 1934 as the result of acceptance of an invitation from the University of Michigan to play a game at Ann Arbor next October 20.

In announcing the first game arranged for the 1934 schedule, Dr. A. H. Armstrong, faculty chairman of athletics at Tech, said it had been necessary to obtain a release of contract from the University of Kentucky, which originally had been listed to meet the Yellow Jackets October 20.

Convention Notes

Cincinnati scored a moral victory in the first day of the A. A. U. convention by landing the 50,000-meter walk. The Reds of the same city have been finishing in a walk for five years.

Joseph L. (Ziggy) Kahn, a prominent basketball star of this city years ago, was instrumental in getting the senior volley ball meet for Pittsburgh. Henry Heinline, of the Connelly volley ball club, also pulled an oar in this action. The latter is chairman of the volley ball committee.

Joe Donnelly was on hand to take care of the visiting firemen. Joe seemed to know nearly every one of the 100 odd delegates.

Kansas City again was awarded the men's national basketball championship. Dr. J. A. Reilly, of the Kansas City A. C., was largely responsible for this perennial move. The doctor is one of the most popular delegates to the convention.

The women's national basketball championship was awarded Wichita, Kan. New York City drew the 15-kilometer walk. The gymnastic committee selected Baltimore for the next meet.

The track and field committee, headed by the famous Lawson Robertson, approved a large list of new records without any black marks.

The Ohio Association landed two of the big swimming meets. It was awarded the men's national indoor championships and the national intercollegiate event. There were no bids for the national outdoor swimming meet.

The awarding of the men's track and field events was held in abeyance. It is slated to be decided on the convention floor today.

The boxing code was gone over with a fine-tooth comb and at the finish of the committee's ponderings the result was just about nil. The proposal to change from the three three-minute rounds to five two-minute rounds floundered with the fight ending in a deadlock.

Most of the swimming events will be continued under the yardage system, according to the findings of this committee. The style of construction of most of the tanks makes it feasible to stay with the old plan.

Georgetown's Rough Grid Play Assailed

By Howard Harpster

Carnegie Tech Football Coach. All-America Quarterback, 1928.

At Washington on Saturday, Carnegie Tech won the football game by a 19-0 score, but Georgetown University won the fight.

According to several of the Washington accounts after the game, the 19-0 score was a moral victory for the home eleven, and, although this probably is the first time a three-touchdown victory, scored entirely by a substitute team, has been considered a moral victory for the loser, so many things happened in Saturday's game that almost anything is within the realm of possibility.

Howard Harpster

When I say Georgetown stuck in the game and "fought" all the way, I am not speaking figuratively. I have played with and coached teams which have played in some pretty rough football games, but I have to give the palm to Coach Hagerty's Georgetown eleven for having the "prize" fighters of them all.

PLAYERS ARE BATTERED

Our team, which had not had a single injury in any of its other games this season and had played Temple, Xavier, Notre Dame, W. & J., Purdue and Michigan State, suddenly had its good fortune come to an end. We had two boys knocked unconscious for 15 minutes each, a shoulder dislocated, a couple of hands stepped on, several noses swollen, and Steve Terebus had a finger stuck in his eye several seconds after he had thrown a forward pass, so that he was unable to see out of it and was forced to leave the game.

Of course, these many injuries easily might have been accidental, and I would be inclined to give our opponents the benefit of the doubt if it were not for three reasons:

1—Our scouts had told us to expect just such a game.

2—Our players said it was the dirtiest game they had ever played in.

3—(This is the reason which plainly showed the attitude of the Georgetown players and which made me wonder if they were going to start working out on the coaches next). One of our ball carriers was tackled out of bounds just in front of our bench, and No. 44 for Georgetown, a big tackle, came running over and said:

"Why didn't you knock that blankety-blank-blank into the coach's lap?"

The feeling of our rivals evidently was general throughout the entire home team rooting section, for every time we had the ball the cheer leaders would start everyone yelling, with the result that our players were not able to hear the numbers as the quarterback called them out.

To climax the nightmare, the student body came filing onto the field in a mass as our players started to leave the field after the game. It is customary for the winning eleven to take the game ball, and, when one of our players started toward the dressing room with it in his possession, he and several other members of the Tech squad were given a good beating by the mob as it proceeded to take the ball away from our weary gridders.

The anti-climax came as we were riding back to the hotel after the game. Within a block of the Stadium our bus was bombarded with rotten eggs by some unidentified person or persons.

SCORE HELD DOWN

Last week, following our game with Michigan State, the Georgetown coach came up to me and talked about shortening the time of the quarters for our contest. He said he sincerely hoped there wouldn't be a repetition of last year's game, which ended in Tech's favor by a 51-to-0 score. The following day I saw Saul Mielziner when he was here with the Brooklyn professional team, and he asked us to ease up on Georgetown, as a repetition of last year's score might cost Coach Hagerty his job.

Although this was the only game on our schedule in which we could have piled up a large score, we played a substitute team almost the entire game and held the score to three touchdowns. What gratitude did we receive? The worst treatment any Tech team ever was accorded, and one of the most disgraceful scenes ever enacted on a gridiron in recent years.

The saving feature of the battle was the fine work of our second-string players. We got some consolation out of their display of ability. In this connection, I want to stress particularly the efforts of Dreshar, Forsman and Burns. Bunny Burzio, our star guard, was not used at any time. We rested him up for the game with New York University in New York next Saturday.

Cambridge Bans U. S. Sports Stars

CAMBRIDGE, England, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Following its track and field meet with Oxford next spring, Cambridge University will bar from competition in intervarsity sports trained athletes from universities of the dominions and the United States.

This step was revealed last night in a statement from the president of the university athletic committee, which said the committee had decided to award blues, half blues and relay colors only to those who have made Cambridge their choice as a university. Any athletes who have completed a year or more at another university will be barred unless they are under the age of 19 on October first of the year they join the university.

RANGERS WIN GRID BATTLE

The Rox Rangers won their second title in Section I of the lightweight football conference yesterday afternoon, defeatifg the Scott Morgan gridders, of Homewood, 6 to 0, at Forbes Field.

The Morgans announced, following the game, that they have dropped out of the league and will finish the season playing independent ball.

Playing on a heavy field, the Rangers still remained a jinx to the Morgans. The only touchdown of the game came in the second period.

ANTONELLI STARS

Antonelli was the big gun in the drive for the tally that gave his team the title. With the Rangers in possession of the ball on the Morgan 38-yard line, he tossed a pass to Zyroll, who was brought down after a 13-yard gain. Antonelli made another first down on the next line play, and with the ball on the Morgan four-yard marker, Rodgers hit the line without gain, but the big fullback went over on the next play. The extra point was missed.

Hooks Carroll, the Morgan ace, flashed into the picture in the opening play in the second half, returning a punt 52 yards. But the rally died on the Ranger four-yard stripe. The lineup:

Rangers—6.		Scott Morgans—0.
Zyroll	E. E.	Reddick
F. Kolinsky	L. T.	Kelly
J. Mikovitz	L. G.	Dye
Pavkovich	C.	Durzo
Spistk	R. G.	Mainelti
Delvecchio	R. T.	Alig
Lufrano	R. E.	Scheltonbrand
Peri	Q.	Hussey
Karkoski	L. H.	Carroll
Rodgers	R. H.	McDowell
Antonelli	F.	Bert

Score by quarters:

Rangers	0	6	0	0	6

Substitutions—Morgans: Sullivan, Mayberry, Snyder, Goeddell, Dallas, Rangers, Bushik. Touchdown—Antonelli. Referee—Cavanaugh. Umpire—Carl Rebele. Linesman—Horne. Time of quarters—15 minutes.

MOUNTS TIED

The Broadway Mounts and the Sto-Rox Alumni battled to a 6-6 tie at Greenlee Field, the game being played on a slippery gridiron.

In other games yesterday, the Rooney Reds beat the Oakland Ramblers, 8 to 0; Aliquippa Indians were held to a tie by Midland; the J. J. Doyles tied St. John, 0-0; Monessen walloped the Pitcairn Mohawks, 19-0; Goose Goslins and Snees fought to a scoreless deadlock; Paramount crushed the Soho Oakleafs, 26-7, and the Brookline Merchants downed the Knapils, 18-0.

Fist Fights Mark Gael-Broncho Fray

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—With half a dozen or more fist fights climaxing the game, St. Mary's Gaels and Santa Clara's Bronchos battled to a 6-6 tie here yesterday in their annual football contest.

An argument between rival players developed into nearly a mob fight before police could clear the field. Many of the 55,000 spectators swarmed onto the gridiron after the game and slugging broke out all over the place.

The football players themselves soon retired to respective dressing rooms, but the belligerent fans, many of whom apparently didn't know what it was all about, tossed punches anyway.

PITTSBURGH BUYER'S GUIDE AND BUSINESS REVIEW

STABILIZATION TALK AIDS BONDS

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Dollar weakness, with its inflationary symptoms, brought additional liquidation of prime investment bonds during the past week but there were some late recoveries which followed reports that monetary stabilization was imminent.

The loans market generally ignored industrial developments as the American currency gyrated wildly in terms of leading foreign exchanges. Notwithstanding the fact that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation held its gold price unchanged for several days, apparently with the view of steadying the unit, the dollar dropped to its lowest level in more than 60 years in relation to gold exchanges. United States government securities led the market down and also were in the forefront of a rally on Friday as foreign currencies reacted sharply. They dipped slightly again on Saturday. In addition to stabilization possibilities, this list also probably reflected indications that Washington was taking steps to stem the flight of capital by tightening the restrictions on exchange transactions.

RESERVE NOT FACTOR

The federal section came back moderately early in the week and the belief was widespread that the reserve system had come to its support. The financial district was surprised, however, when the weekly figures of the reserve banks disclosed they had purchased only $1,500,000 or government obligations, the smallest aggregate in several months. Institutional and public buying, it was understood, was largely responsible for the resistance.

Banking quarters were much disturbed by the recent decline of the governments. It was known that on December 15 the Treasury has a $750,000,000 refunding operation and must borrow many millions more before the end of the month. There were conjectures as to whether interest rates, under the circumstances, might not be prohibitive and rumors appeared of a possible issue of "greenbacks" to tide over the emergency.

FOREIGNS YIELD

Friday's reversal in the foreign exchange trend resulted in losses of 2 to as much as 13 points in obligations of France, Dutch East Indies, Switzerland, Poland and the United Kingdom. Most bonds suffered net declines on the week despite their earlier bouyancy.

Highest grade corporation maturities were the principal sufferers, although they followed the federals in the belated rally. The secondary group were highly irregular. The rails showed the greatest recessions, with the utilities a close second. The industrials, as a whole, were not unusually heavy.

Reserve City Bankers Oppose Permanent Insurance

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

SHALL GOOD BANKING be penalized to pay for the mistakes of bad banking? In answer to this question the Association of Reserve City Bankers recognizes the desirability of support of bank deposit insurance as a temporary measure to assist in the President's program for general business recovery, but it is opposed to the insurance plan as a permanent institution.

The association's committee on banking law and practice in a report on the guaranty of bank deposits urges bankers to cooperate with the administration recovery plans in two ways. These are in participation in the temporary deposit insurance plan and in full co-operation with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation plan to strengthen the banking structure through the injection of new capital. In speaking of these proposals the committee said:

"We believe strongly, however, that these are but temporary measures and that the real objective is a sounder banking system. We join heartily with the public demand for safety of bank deposits. We believe that Congress did the best it could under extreme pressure to give the public that safety to which it was entitled, but after mature deliberation we conclude that the way to assure bank depositors of true safety lies in so improving the banking system that losses to depositors cannot occur, rather than adopting some plan of spreading the losses after they have occurred."

Two Deposit Plans Found in Glass Bill

THE REPORT points out that it is not commonly known that there are two deposit insurance plans included in the Glass-Steagall bill passed by the last session of Congress. The temporary insurance plan, which goes into effect on January 1, insures all bank deposits up to $2,500, which means that 97 per cent of all bank depositors in the country can be fully protected under this plan. It is not government insurance. The government merely supervises the administration of the provisions of the law. This law provides for one limited assessment on the participating banks, and, as an emergency measure to restore public confidence, the committee belives that every bank should apply immediately for adminstration.

The permanent plan which will go into effect on July 1, 1934, is far different. It provides for unlimited assessments for an indefinite period on solvent banks to pay losses of closed banks. The committee insists that the law ignores the causes of bank failures and deals only with consequences. In doing this, in a period of stress, it might weaken the entire banking system since assessments against even strong banks might imperil them.

Similar State Plans Failed

SIMILAR PLANS have failed in the seven states where they have been tried and in each case the law has been repealed, according to the report. These states are Kansas, Mississippi, Nebraska, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Dakota and Texas.

In summarizing its finidings, the report said:

"The plan, instead of placing a premium on good bank management, puts a penalty upon it to cover the losses incurred by bad bank management. This is un-American, unfair and unsound.

"While the law is known as deposit insurance, it violates many of the principles of insurance. Assessments are not levied in proportion to the risks and there is no provision for the steady accumulation of reserves during good times to take care of losses during bad times."

Carnegie Metals Gets Mine Title

The Carnegie Metals Company, whose stock was listed during the past week on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange, yesterday made the initial payment on the Bote mine, its gold-silver property in the State of Zacatecas, Mexico. Title to the Bote property is now held by the Carnegie Metals Company. Formerly operated on a lease, purchase has eliminated royalty obligations. This mine is about five miles from the Veta Grande mine of Carnegie Metals, one of the oldest silver producers of Mexico. It has been mined since the conquest of Mexico by Cortez.

STEEL MARKET BROADENING

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Broadening interest in structural material, progress with the railroad program, prospects for automotive buying, and reappearance of larger miscellaneous requirements have lifted sentiment in the iron and steel industry, the magazine Steel said today, despite the handicaps of the downward seasonal trend which is normal for November and December. The review said: "Steelmakers believe that before the first of the year, there will be a substantial revival in buying, if not in actual production of steel. Opinion is more general that if inflation does not stimulate conversion of money into commodities, including steel, stabilization of the dollar should restore confidence by eliminating many uncertain factors."

Steel consumption in the automobile industry is over the low point for the year, the summary continued, and while inventories at Detroit militate against volume purchasing, steelworks operations expanded four points to 28 per cent last week, mainly by releases for a number of lines whose full requirements could not be anticipated.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Bituminous coal production increased to 7,110,000 tons the week ending November 11.

Output for the week exceeded that for the corresponding period last year for the first time since the industry's code of fair competition became effective. It compared with 7,015,000 tons the previous week and 6,626,000 tons the corresponding week in 1932.

Anthracite production was 849,000 tons, as compared with 726,000 tons the previous week and 833,000 tons the corresponding week last year.

D. & H. Requests O.K. On $12,500,000 Notes

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—The Delaware and Hudson Railway Company has requested authorization from the Interstate Commerce Commission to issue $12,500,000 of short-term notes to provide funds for general corporate purposes. The notes will be issued from time to time, and $9,599,151 will be in renewal of outstanding paper.

PLANE DEVICES REMOVE FOG DANGER

Air pilots soon will have little fear of cloudy weather or fog, in the opinion of F. R. Crawford, managing director of the Penn School of Aviation. Winter air traffic, he says, is rapidly increasing as science eliminates, one by one, the hazards that night flights and bad weather flying once presented.

Mr. Crawford describes two planes used by his school as being equipped with artificial horizons which show whether the ship is level, climbing, or diving; a directional gyro which indicates when the plane is turning, an air speed indicator, and a special aitimeter.

A radio receiver, he says, will pick up radio beams from the airport which permit the pilot to determine exactly the location of his landing field. Students learning "instrument" flying are in a hooded cockpit, according to Mr. Crawford, although the instructor, not enclosed, can take the controls in an emergency.

All pilots of the Pennsylvania Air Line have taken the "blind" flying course, and Mr. Crawford says that he has more students enrolled in his air school now than at any previous date.

SPEAKERS MADE NOT BORN

Speakers are made not born, according to Elbert R. Moses, president of the Pittsburgh School of Speech, in an address to his students at the advanced class term banquet held in the Congress of Women's Clubs. Public speaking, he believes, is a developed art which becomes amazingly effective in the hands of a skilled speaker. He divides the speakers that appear before the public today into two classes, "Those who want to say something" and "Those who have something to say."

Mr. Moses

In his work with his 200 students, both from his downtown and Westinghouse classes, Mr. Moses has found that the art of effective speaking embraces much more than a mere mastery of rules; that it must be backed by thought and purpose.

Reading a speech, except where the speaker wishes to eliminate all dangers of being misquoted, is a bad policy, Mr. Moses asserts. By this he does not mean to say that preparation is bad, but that reading from a written sheet or memorizing an address word for word will in almost all cases detract from the effect desired.

SPRING WHEAT LOAN RULING

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Announcement that a requisite to federal loans for 1934 spring wheat production will be an agreement to reduce the seeded acreage 15 per cent was issued today by the farm credit administration.

If the applicant planted spring wheat on his land in the 1930, 1931, 1932 and 1933 crop years, he may not plant more than 85 per cent of the average for those four years to obtain a loan. If he planted only three, two or one of those crop years, the average acreage for that period must be reduced 15 per cent.

Farmers who had an average of 80 acres or less are not affected; those with more than 80 but less than 95 must agree not to plant more than 80 acres; those with 95 or more must agree to the full 15 per cent reduction.

U. S. to Centralize Federal Statistics

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—An arrangement has been effected whereby all government statistics will clear through the central statistical agency headed by Winfield Riefler. The purpose of the new move is to bring the various sets of government figures into harmony to prevent duplication of effort and to bring all statistical information into a related picture.

Farm Price Index Shows Rising Trend

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Prices and purchasing power of farm products were unchanged in the first week of November, but market prices indicate that farm prices advanced during the second week of November, according to the Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Farm prices at the beginning of November averaged 70 per cent of pre-war, as against 49 per cent in February and 54 per cent a year ago. Prices farmers have had to pay for what they buy have remained quite stable during recent weeks.

PWA Plans Loans For Rail Repairs

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—The transportation loan division of the Public Works Administration is planning to extend loans to railroads for repair work on motive power and rolling stock. The loans would be in the category of so-called work loans, which were proposed by the RFC in an earlier effort to expand employment by making up deferred repair work on engines and cars.

STOCKS FAIRLY STEADY AT ADVANCE

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Stocks and staples were fairly steady, but unenthusiastic, today as the R. F. C. boosted the domestic price of gold 10 cents to $33.66 an ounce and the dollar dropped in foreign exchange dealings.

After a dull opening, there was a rally of 1 to 2 or more points in equities, but the ticker tape was not pressed at any time. The activity dwindled appreciably following the moderate half-hour spurt. Most buyers and sellers then adjourned to the sidelines to wait for further developments in the monetary situation. Sterling, at $5.32, was up 7¼ cents and French francs advanced .05½ of a cent to 6.42 cents. Grains lost their early gains and were little better than even. Cotton did little. United States government securities again pointed downward.

Shares of American Can were up more than 2 and advances of fractions to around a point were recorded by United States Steel preferred and common, American Tobacco B, Liggett & Myers B, Chrysler, General Motors, Western Union, Du Pont, Consolidated Gas, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Baltimore and Ohio, United States Smelting and Alaska Juneau. The old National Distillers stock was superceded by the new issue which was off about a point.

Announcement of Chairman Jesse Jones, of the R. F. C., that the corporation had purchased only 265,000 ounces of domestically produced gold since it started operating in the metal, at an approximate total cost of $7,500,000, caused some surprise in financial circles. It had been generally expected that, with the price above $33 an ounce, compared with the statutory rate of $20.67, the aggregate bought would have been several times greater. There were many conjectures as to just how much gold had been bought abroad, but the chairman was silent on foreign purchases.

The declaration of an extra dividend of 75 cents a share by Du Pont was a cheerful straw in the Wall street wind. In addition to the improvement in its own business, Du Pont's large ownership of General Motors shares helped to augment the company's income because of the recent General Motors extra of 25 cents a share.

Wall street opinion, while optimistic on the whole, was still of the restrained variety. Of 17 brokers' letters, nine were found to be bullish, none bearish and eight non-commital. Lack of public participation on an extensive scale continued to puzzle commission houses, which have been strong proponents of the advance.

While the financial district was watching the administration's gold program and dollar depreciation policy almost to the exclusion of the usual market factors, industrial commentators seeking to chart the trade situation were inclined to be encouraged by the recent retail pickup and other indications of a broadening of purchasing psychology.

Standard Trade and Securities said:

"Return of average industrial operating rates to the basis of last spring is believed to indicate that the bulk of necessary readjustments, necessitated by the summer rise, has been completed and that a period of temporary stability is in immediate prospect. Conditions would, therefore, appear to be approaching a stage where a normal revival, under new year influences, could occur, barring the possibility of unexpectedly adverse monetary developments."

GRAINS SCORE EARLY GAINS

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—Grain values scored quick early upturns today. A new high for the Washington official quotations on gold was the chief stimulating factor. Opening ⅞-1½ cents up, wheat afterward underwent some recession. Corn started at ⅜-⅞ gain, and subsequently turned easier.

Downturns later carried wheat prices 1 cent under Saturday's finish, but renewed firmness developed in the wheat market whenever pronounced selling pressure abated. Corn and oats paralleled the course of wheat prices and provisions went lower.

'SOUND MONEY' DRIVE LED BY CHAMBERS

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

BOSTON, Nov. 20.—The resolution of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States characterizing the administration's monetary policy as a breeder of "widespread confusion and discredit" brings to a focus a drive for stabilization.

Mr. Rukeyser

In the campaign of organized business in behalf of "sound money," the New York Chamber of Commerce sounded the first gun. This was followed by similar declarations in New England, Cleveland and elsewhere.

When technicians met quietly here under the auspices of the Harvard Economic Society, monetary questions overshadowed all other topics. Critics of the Washington policy emphasized the point that business hesitation, growing out of monetary uncertainty, had become a vast deflationary influence, and that the decline in velocity of turnover of funds had offset the directly inflationary maneuvers taken.

WAGES BUSINESS AID

One monetary specialist, with important first-hand inflation experience in Germany, said the stage here is now ripe for the administration to encourage business expansion. He proposed stabilizing the dollar on a devalued gold basis somewhat below the current market value, arguing that by doing so the government would give a temporary fillup to the price structure which would offset any stabilization crisis.

Then he indicated that the return of confidence in the business community would act as a factor making for expansion, quickening velocity, and thus achieving more effectively the objectives of the moderate inflationists.

The technicians recognize that, unless the dollar is stabilized in the reasonably near future, France, on account of budgetary troubles, may find it inexpedient to remain on a gold basis. Certainly continuation of the present dollar policy is likely to result on a ban of free gold exports from France, and other countries in the gold bloc. Likewise, it is recognized that, if Hitler rearms Germany, Germany will doubtless be forced off gold.

COULD DRIVE BARGAIN

If the United States were disposed to consider stabilization by international understanding, it is now in better position to drive home a bargain than in July when the London economic conference was in session.

The ratio of dollars to pounds and francs is at present giving much more concern to the British and the French than it was earlier in the summer. Likewise, the flight of the dollar has resulted in the accumulation of huge foreign balance which will want to return whenever a definitive money policy is formulated.

In its monetary policy, the United States has been moving along much more swiftly than European countries customarily did. Accordingly, the climax may be much nearer than is commonly supposed.

The failure of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to change its bid for gold for five days was interpreted as a possible clue to a shift in monetary policy.

The cessation of the six months' campaign of buying government bonds by the Federal Reserve System was also considered significant.

In post-war France, the first signal for unbridled inflation came with a poor reception of a government bond issue.

The lack of enthusiasm for the conversion feature of the recent government bond offering is therefore considered of some significance.

ROOSEVELT AIDS GIRL SUFFERER

WORCESTER, Mass., Nov. 20.—(AP.)—Little Catherine Murphy, 9-year-old sufferer from infantile paralysis, is going to have her chance. And all because of the interest of President Roosevelt.

Tomorrow morning she leaves Worcester for Warm Springs, Ga., where she will receive treatment for three months at the same institution which cared for President Roosevelt. The treatment was made available through the Georgia Warm Springs Foundation and the generosity of 100 Worcester residents who are contributing toward the cost of the trip.

Among those who waited in the rain was Catherine. The brief interview was not forgotten, either by Mr. Roosevelt or Catherine. Mr. Roosevelt sent Catherine a picture of himself and a note of encouragement, and finally arranged the trip which begins so hopefully Tuesday.

DEATH WITNESS KEEPS TO STORY

SPOKANE, Wash., Nov. 20.—(AP.)—The state's attempt to convict Lily Bangka Gaines, 27, of the murder of her husband, Dr. James I. Gaines, neared an end today with Willis Garrett, a prosecution witness, on the stand for cross-examination.

Garrett, an unemployed railroad worker, told an amazing story of attempting to commit suicide after Mrs. Gaines had offered him $5,000 to help her dispose of her husband, and then admitted under cross-examination the suicide attempt was faked.

Edward W. Robertson, chief defense counsel, was unable to force Garrett to change his story of Mrs. Gaines' purported offer in grilling cross-examination Friday and Saturday. He was on the stand at adjournment Saturday.

Mrs. Gaines, a former stenographer, is accused of shooting her husband three times as he stepped from his automobile in the driveway of his home shortly after midnight August 15.

KAMONS TRIAL HEARS EXPERT

CLEVELAND, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—The state was expected to rest its case today against Louis J. Kamons, of Pittsburgh, charged with first degree murder as an outgrowth of the Ellington Apartments fire here last year in which 12 lives were lost.

One of two experts on chemicals which the state called to testify Saturday told the jury that he believed the fire was started by a gasoline explosion. The state contends Kamons was head of a Pittsburgh arson ring that conspired with Ray I. Turk to burn Turk's store for the insurance.

Turk, now serving a life sentence for murder in connection with the fire, owned a shop in the apartment building which burned.

Expert testimony was given by Carl E. Betz, of Pittsburgh. Another expert is to be called.

TORCH MURDER QUIZ LAUNCHED

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 20.—(AP.)—The woman found in a field 15 miles north of Philadelphia, the apparent victim of a "torch" murder, was identified today as Tanka Hetman, of this city, who worked at odd jobs of general housekeeping.

As police were making the identification certain, detectives were searching for John Zowcoski or Zowroski, a former window cleaner, for questioning.

Stewart Nase, district attorney of Montgomery County, said he is convinced the woman was beaten and strangled to death in Philadelphia and the body taken to the lonely suburban site near Dreshertown and set on fire.

There were two theories advanced by the authorities. One was that the slayer had some financial dealing with the woman and she wanted her money back; the other, that there was a love affair.

6 Rescued at Sea From Sinking Skiff

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 20.—(INS.)—Six Philadelphians were saved from death in a sinking motor skiff early today after drifting more than eight hours in the Atlantic Ocean off Tuckerton.

The skiff put out from here on a hunting trip in Barnegat Bay. Seams in the boat were opened by heavy seas and the engine, soaked with water, ceased functioning.

The Girl Who Won

By MAY CHRISTIE

CHAPTER XXXVI.

They played three-handed bridge that evening. They cut for the odd partner, Rhoda drew Tony. Mrs. Judson played with dummy. Nollie was watching. The hostess insisted she must try to learn. Nollie would have been glad to escape to the privacy of her own bedroom.

"I am in love with him," she told herself, her heart sinking.

What chance had she against this Rhoda Vane? Rhoda had beauty, clothes and money—everything.

But Tony's handsome Irish eyes would stray to Nollie's face, as though with a question in them.

And when he spoke to Rhoda, the beguiling note the other girl had heard just wasn't there. Neither was the warm and shiny look in them.

Tony and Rhoda won the first rubber.

Then Tony drew Mrs. Judson as his partner.

"You sit by me. You bring me luck." He flashed a bright glance at Nollie.

"That's because she's a nice, good girl with a wonderful disposition," remarked her employer.

"Really? I thought that 'nice good girls' were hopelessly out of date—Miss Day must be a relic of the Victoria era."

NOLLIE EMBARRASSED

This was from Rhoda Vane. She drew a long puff from her blue enamel cigarette-holder.

She smiled sweetly, patronizingly as she said these words. Nollie flushed scarlet.

Tony rushed to her defense at once.

"I say Miss Day is as modern as anyone I know—in the right sense. And with brains as well as beauty."

"Spoken like an Irishman," said Rhoda tartly. "Now, suppose you put your mind on the game, because I can assure you I'm a devilish opponent."

"In more ways than one," said Mrs. Judson cryptically, "so my advice to Mr. O'Brien is to watch out for his skin."

Rhoda was annoyed. In a conversation of this kind, she liked more subtlety.

She applied herself to the game. She won the second rubber.

"A drink, for the love of Pete!" she cried. "Miss Day, if you're not too saint-like, won't you mix me a highball!"

As Nollie went over to a table bearing a bottle or two, uncertain what to do, Tony followed her.

"Here, let me do that." He lowered his voice to add: "I haven't had a chance to have a word with you."

She smiled up at him. Suddenly the world seemed brighter.

But all she said was—"I'll run and get some ice——"

MASTERFUL YOUTH

Tony said: "I'll come with you."

"Oh, no. You stay. I'll go to the pantry."

But Tony was a masterful young man. He seized this opportunity.

The moment they were in the passage leading to the kitchen quarters, he caught her by the arm and swung her about.

"Look here, what's the matter? Don't you think I was disappointed enough about this afternoon without being put at such a distance tonight?"

"I don't know what you mean. Let go my arm, Mrs. Judson or someone may see you."

"I don't care if they do. Nollie—listen—what time will you meet me tomorrow by the lake?"

Her heart rose then. He hadn't changed. He hadn't really been thrilled by the advent of Rhoda.

But hide that feeling from him. She could see how women spoiled him. She mustn't be too "easy."

"It's impossible to say when I can get away. Mrs. Judson's starting a book, you know. I'm to transcribe it. It's kind of a secret."

"But she can't work you the whole day long. Look here, I'll tackle her myself. I'll tell her you and I have a date."

"Oh, don't." Nollie halted near the butler's pantry. "I came here to work. Although Mrs. Judson is kind enough to call me one, I'm not really a guest, I'm her secretary."

Tony O'Brien looked down on her. How sweet she was, with her concerned air, the shy and fragile beauty of her!

So different from the other type. Such an utter contrast to egotistic Rhoda!

He had come here for peace—and because an urge had been on him to meet again the lovely vision of the theater.

This girl had occupied a large portion of his thoughts these last few weeks. In a sense he was relieved to find that she wasn't Mrs. Jinny Judson, after all, but that good lady's secretary.

And no matter how she argued the impossibility of making a definite engagement with him, see her again—alone he would, and must.

TO MEET TONY

"Look here, I'll be fishing in the little creek below my shack all morning. And if you can't break away—although I'll be disappointed, naturally — we'll meet in the afternoon, positively."

Nollie said: "Oh, I can't promise definitely." She felt a little giddy, for the nearness of this Tony was so thrilling.

"You've simply GOT to come, or I swear I'll walk right up to the house and tackle Mrs. Judson myself, and kidnap you."

She laughed happily, uncertainly.

"Right after lunch she has a nap," she volunteered, "if the rain clears, maybe I could take a little ramble."

"That's a promise, now?" At the end of the creek, on the same side as my shack, there's a tiny canoe house. You meet me there. I'll wait from two o'clock on."

She looked up at him with the blue, blue eyes that had captivated him so. He said softly: "Why, Nollie, you're the most hauntingly lovely thing I've ever seen. Your eyes are like pools where a man could drown himself for love of you—they're as blue as the ocean."

She lay taut, awake that night, while the rain pattered on the trees outside her room.

A heady scent of pine and fir and green and growing things came up, to mingle with intoxicating thoughts of Tony.

Nollie was in love. The misery of the evening had given place to ecstasy.

Forgotten was the predatory Rhoda Vane . . . the card game in which she had had no place . . . her long-drawn-out anxiety.

Oh, love bridged everything. She had seen his feeling for her in his handsome Irish eyes. It echoed in his voice

Tomorrow she would meet him. God had been good to her!

Now Go On

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

You desire to appear well poised, sensible and sedate, but if this nose is not a natural one, you will have a hard time of it.

Poise of manner comes from what is within and under control.

You cannot fake the balance that makes for poise.

Sometimes you are sure to revert to type and when you least expect it.

The camouflage is easily detected and does not increase your standing.

You are not fooling those you meet.

Even in your play spells you have an unnatural manner.

You do not have a good time yourself because you are afraid you will do something to upset the pattern you are trying to imitate.

Some people take themselves too seriously.

They may have achieved something more than a local reputation in a certain line and so they believe they have a part to play that should bring them more than ordinary attention. Don't be that sort.

When you set out to win attention you are farthest from getting it.

When you have to be so self-contained that you never dare laugh aloud, and must repress every desire to indulge in small talk in order to appear a little more intellectual than those around you, you achieve the opposite result.

BETSY ROSS MAKING THE FIRST AMERICAN FLAG (1777)

The nationalistic movement of the 13 colonies was expressed also in a standard bearing a rattlesnake, cut in 13 pieces meaning "Join or Die." The design was changed later to rattlesnake, coiled to strike: "Don't Tread on Me." The American flag as we know it was created by the Continental Congress, upon whose order Mrs. Betsy Ross, Philadelphia, made the first one. It showed 13 stripes and 13 stars, representing the colonies. According to Congressional Act (1818), for each newly admitted state a new star is added the following July 4. There are now 48 stars. Every American citizen should honor, protect the "Stars and Stripes" and display the flag on appropriate occasions. (U. S History)

Emperor Galba, successor of Nero (68-69) was assassinated, Otho proclaimed emperor in Rome, while Vitellius was acclaimed as emperor by the legions in the German provinces and Vespasianus—engaged with his son Titus in the war against the Jews—by his soldiers in the East. Vespasianus' rivals perished, he became sole ruler (69), later giving a share in the government to Titus, his successor (79-81).

The final conquest of Britain by Agricola and the start of construction of the Coliseum in Rome are memorable events under Vespasian's reign. The purifying effect of spreading Christianity became perceptible. (World History)

FIRST STEPS IN AERONAUTICS (Transportation)

Man's desire to fly is as old as man himself. Lacking muscular energy, he succeeded by mental power.

Above: The hot air balloon, invention (1782) of Joseph Mongolfier, French papermaker. It was an open silk bag, under which a fire was built. Hot air and combustion gases—lighter than atmosphere — filled and lifted the bag.

Left: Francois Pilatre de Rosier, French scientist, who (1783) first made an ascent in a similar balloon. He stood on a platform, attached to the balloon, and maintained a straw fire inside the balloon's neck.

Below: Vincent Lunardi, an Italian, ascending from London in a hydrogen-filled balloon of 33 feet diam. (1784; hydrogen gas had been discovered by Cavendish in 1776). He tried vainly to direct the flight by a pair of oars.

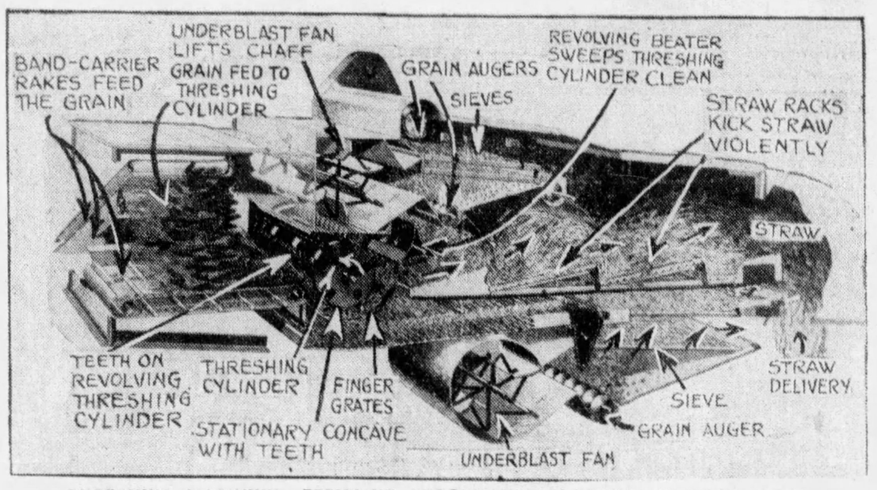
EMULSIONS—A CHAPTER IN COLLOID CHEMISTRY

Immiscible liquids (not soluble in each other) may be dispersed in small drops by stirring or shaking them together, giving emulsions which are colloidal suspensions (above). The dispersed drops have great surface; the surface tension, a property of each liquid, tends to reduce it, pulling the drops together and dividing the emulsion into the original liquids. E. g. Cream separates from milk, oil from water, etc.

By adding an emulsifying agent, which forms a film around the colloidal drops, the surface tension is reduced and the emulsion made stable. E.g. Mayonnaise is an emulsion of vegetable oil in vinegar with the colloidal albumen of the egg as emulsifying agent.

THE LADY OF THE LAMP

Florence Nightingale (1820-1910) elevated the nursing profession by her services and teachings, saving the lives of thousands. She exemplifies that knowledge combined with love to humanity result in greatest service. (Character Building)



THRESHING MACHINES—EFFICIENT PROCESSING APPARATUS OF FIELD CROPS

Threshing—loosening of kernels from the head—is done by the teeth of the revolving threshing cylinder traveling 60 miles an hour, striking swift blows to the heads of the grain retained by the stationary teeth of the concave. Chaff is lifted out by underblast fans, weed screened out and the grain delivered by an elevator to the bin or into sacks; the straw and chaff are discharged into the straw stack. The process takes about a half minute. (General Science)

The All-American Acre

Football scrimmages are cooling off. But we still have some great inter-fractional contests left.

The headliners are still the three-threat men who can't be stopped because they ain't using the U. S. mails.

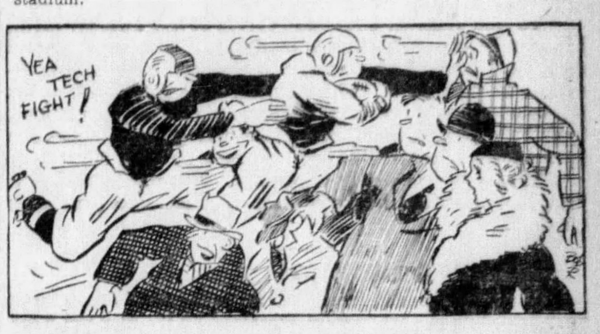
Michigan has one of the best of the tri-menacers. He can pass, run and kick and is dangerous until the doctor slams the door.

They've got some boys out in Minnesota who can sure plow rival crops under on that collegiate acre.

Southern California is ladling out some corrugated chiropractics to the visiting teams. The Arabs learned to fold their tents silently when they discovered California on their next day's schedule.

West Point tacticians have specialized in highly condensed ware in 25,000 square yards. That's not including the end zones which are also government reservations. Our advice to young men about to go to college is to tip your hat to the dean and then step out of bounds.

There are no neutral zones at Tulane, Carnegie Tech, Pitt or Colgate. Those boys chase you right up into the best seats in the stadium.



They only differ from the Northwest mounted in one detail. They get their man. And leave him where they get him.

After that the next voice you hear will be an ambulance gong. Times have certainly blinked rapidly since Harvard, Yale and Princeton were the Big Three of outdoor violence.

In those days well-coached danger lurked in Boston, New Haven and Princeton only.

Now, you can step into any town in America and get a trimming, shellacking and stucco finishing that will weather-proof you against the turmoils and buffetings of after years.

Any boy who goes through a collegiate football season is a man. Your western student is no tougher than your Alabama boy. The north and the east have no chartered monopoly on wide end runs with the elbows arched like crown fenders and the knees working like your feet were chewing gum.

Pop Warner seems to have the right slant on the game. His Temple University team plays at night. Pop leads the searching parties out the next morning and gathers up the last messages to the folks.

That's what we call undiluted football. You triple-threat 'em in the afternoon and sneak up on 'em under the kindly mantle of darkness.

At Variance With Facts

Winston Churchill's Navy Speech Creates an Erroneous Impression.

What is the matter with Winston Churchill and the big-navy advocates in England such as Sir Bolton M. Eyres-Monsell, first lord of the admiralty, and other government figures? They persist in imputing to the United States and our tardy resumption of naval building, responsibility for the enlargement of Britain's navy program which they advocate and thus seek to defend.

To read Winston Churchill's speech of last Tuesday night, in which he said, "The United States made the most beautiful speeches (about disarmament) and also made the largest increases in their naval and air forces," one would think that this country was proceeding, in disregard of treaty limitations, to outbuild Great Britain, thus necessitating new construction by a reluctant England in order to keep up with us.

This is so completely at variance with the facts that it brings in question the good faith of these men and their utterances.

WHAT ARE THE FACTS?

Under the London treaty certain ratios of naval strength were agreed upon. They were expressed by the numeral 5 for Great Britain and the United States, respectively, and the numeral 3 for Japan. In other words, our strength was to equal that of Great Britain, and to bear a ratio of 5 to 3 with Japan.

At the end of 1933, counting all types of naval vessels, the standing of these three powers will be as follows:

	No. of Ships.	Total Tonnage.
United States	84	708,550
Great Britain	134	966,379
Japan	164	653,389

It will be seen that we are far below the quota agreed upon for us, and beneath the parity with Great Britain which was accepted as the basic principle of the London treaty.

All that the United States is attempting in the new program for construction recently announced by the Secretary of the Navy is to rouse itself from its inexcusable lethargy and indifference, and belatedly to narrow the gap between this country and Great Britain, which has resulted from our neglect.

Even with the completion of our program, we shall still be below England's strength and still under our quota as defined by the London treaty. If our program is fully carried out, the situation at the end of 1936, when the treaty expires, will be as follows:

	No. of Ships.	Total Tonnage.
United States	108	941,420
Great Britain	161	999,373
Japan	183	772,487

NOW, WHY ALL THE SHOUTING?

Is the opposition of the British people to further expenditure on their navy so rooted and obstinate that British politicians must falsify the facts with reference to what the United States is doing or proposes to do, in order to silence that opposition?

Such tactics reflect little credit upon British statesmanship and none whatever upon the reputation of British politicians for candor and truthfulness in dealing with facts.

McNair and the Ladder

Some Queer Ideas Are Still Held as to What Is Respectable and Dignified.

Because Mayor-elect W. N. McNair climbed a ladder in the City-County Building the other day to learn something about the heating fixtures a number of persons are very much concerned over his "sacrifice of dignity."

Though they may not be aware of it, the real basis of their concern, we believe, is this: Carpenters, painters, paperhangers and certain others who work with their hands climb ladders in the course of their work; and so McNair, in climbing the ladder, acted like a workingman.

Now there seems to be still prevalent a snobbish idea, dating back, no doubt, to feudal times, that a gentleman should not work with his hands, that people will not respect him if he does.

You find the idea in the Army, where young officers are cautioned by older ones not to let themselves be seen in public carrying parcels or handbags, lest it detract from their dignity and cause them to lose the respect of the privates.

In China the mandarins used to let their fingernails grow to inordinate lengths to show the world they were not manual workers.

A Good Man for the Job

Commander Pennington Is Well Fitted to Head a State Liquor Control Board.

Gov. Pinchot's liquor control plan has been criticized because the plan would be administered by the State Alcohol Permit Board, a partisan body. Liquor control should be in the hands of a nonpartisan or at least a bipartisan body, it is held.

Word comes from Harrisburg that the Governor will not insist on putting the Alcohol Permit Board in charge.

If a new liquor control body is formed, we know of nobody who is better fitted to head it than Commander John D. Pennington, federal prohibition administrator. No one is better acquainted than he with what the job requires.

Pennington's honesty has been subjected to the strictest tests and has come through untarnished. His efficiency and intelligence are of a high order.

A Chance Yet

Science Holds Out Encouragement for Wallflowers.

Young men seeking brides or dancing partners have generally shown a preference for the prettier girl, and the less attractive maiden has consoled herself from her own private stock of flattery with the balm, "but I am smarter."

And now science, personified by a woman professor, cruelly takes away that jar of ointment, saying that beauty and brains go together.

But, little Wallflower, doesn't that give you cheer? It is axiomatic that no man wants a wife smarter than he is, and the men have just been marrying the handsome girls because they thought the beautiful were dumb. Now they'll turn to the others. Wait and see—but don't wait too inactively.

The Haunted Man

By Nelson Harding

How the killer must be haunted
By that ever-present specter
Pointing an accusing finger
And pursuing like a shadow!

Waking, sleeping, it is with him
Bringing fear of retribution
For a cruel deed, and whisp'ring
In the still, small voice of Conscience.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Diary of a modern Pepys: A note from Gertrude Atherton. Also a call from Lincoln Steffens. With my lady to a furrier and bought her a tippet with fair grace. Then to the Waldorf for a fin-jan of coffee and a cutting of apple-cake. And talked to Oscar and Ted Saucier.

Working but flittered by a beggar troubadour playing a sackdoodle beneath my window. So out and stopped in to see George and Colette Armsby, but they away. And so to see the John Ringlings, and John chipper convalescing from a tedious illness.

Hattie Bell Johnston, whom I greatly love, to dinner, and with her to a play and talked to George and Gracie Allen. Paul Block and Wellington Cross. Afterward to the house warming at Steve and Buff Cobb Brody's new penthouse. And almost everybody in town there.

Jack Johnson, black ex-champion, has returned to Harlem to bask in a glory never dimmed. He remains a hero. A bit flabby now, his gold-toothed smile has not lost its dazzle. And his flair for flashy clothes is pronounced as ever. One of his minor affectations is a tan vest with red lapels and on special occasions he sports a gray derby with a heliotrope band.

The theatrical set is beginning to wonder what will happen to their favorite hang-outs with repeal. No. 21, a private residence with a high iron fence in the 50's, has long been the luncheon rendezvous. So strong is its tug that although Libby Holman was courted there, after the tragedy, she is still a frequent visitor. The zippiest after-theater speak is Tony's. Heywood Broun's and also Tallulah Bankhead's favorite bistro, near Sixth avenue. Devotees believe the two will remain as they are—peek holes and all.

I have a cop phobia amounting to stark terror. When a policeman hails me I expect him to begin bending a club over my head and send in a riot call. Crossing a Central Park meadow today I heard a shrill whistle and ominous "Hey you!" I affected not to hear and clipped at leaves with my cane in faked nonchalance. Then a touch on the shoulder. "Your gloves," he said. He'll never know how near he came to being hugged and swung off in a waltz.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Love Is a Hard, New Habit

Her husband has been unfaithful to her. After all these years of hard work and sacrifice—just when things might be a little easier—he has spoiled everything by a cheap affair with another woman. Her heart's broken. She never wants to see him again!

The man doesn't deny it. But can't she understand? Frantically, furiously—sulkily—he tries to make her understand. He "doesn't really love the other woman." He only loves her, his wife—always has, always will.

Then why did he do it? He can't tell. A sort of craziness came over him. Maybe he'd been working too hard. Things had been dreary for so long.

But hadn't they been dreary for her, too? she demands, shrill with anger, self-pity and pain. Hadn't she worked as hard as he had?

Yes, yes, he knows she has. But that isn't the point. He didn't forget all she'd done. He wasn't ungrateful—wasn't thinking of hurting her—wasn't thinking of anything. It was just one of those things. All of a sudden he didn't care what he did. Oh, can't you see?

But she can't. He's been "unfaithful," that's all. If he'd really loved her he couldn't have been unfaithful.

Sob stuff? No, the stuff that life is made of. Not a scandal-sheet story, but the story of the human soul. The story of love—of our poor understanding of love—poor, pitiful failure of those we love.

Why do we fail?

WE FAIL BECAUSE LOVE IS A HARD, NEW HUMAN HABIT WHICH WE HAVE, AS YET, LEARNED BUT IMPERFECTLY.

Love isn't natural. It isn't a spontaneous miracle which "just happens." Desire is natural—passion "just happens." But passion isn't love. Love is an acquired habit—as "unnatural" as wearing clothes, living in houses or paying taxes.* And inevitably as tiresome!

LOVE IS PART OF THAT SLOW PROCESS WHICH WE CALL CIVILIZATION, BY WHICH MAN IS TRYING TO CHANGE HIMSELF FROM A BRUTE INTO A HUMAN BEING; FROM A HUMAN BEING INTO A GOD.

I say "I love." What does that mean? Does that mean that my heart is perfectly loyal to another heart—that it has left its wildness behind it and found a lasting home in that other heart?

No. I wish it meant that, but it doesn't. When I say "I love," I merely mean that I have a dream, a gleam toward which I am struggling. But that dream, that gleam, is housed in stupid, savage flesh which rebels against continued discipline.

As long as the attraction is new and exciting, there is no trouble. But when I try to turn an exciting adventure into an established, civilized habit, then the inevitable conflict begins, and I fumble and falter—and am faithless!

EVERYONE WHO LOVES, FAILS LOVE. EVERYONE WHO LOVES IS FAITHLESS!

For faithlessness is not merely a wallowing of the flesh. It is a faltering of the spirit. Physical faithlessness is only one way by which we betray love, and those we love. There are scores of other ways, equally vicious.

A NAGGING, NIGGARDLY, JEALOUS WIFE IS AS TRULY FAITHLESS AS A PHILANDERING HUSBAND—AND AS RESPONSIBLE FOR THE WRECKAGE OF HER HOME.

Yet who has a right to judge her—or him? Love is the most beautiful habit on earth. It is the thing we wall want; the thing we are all striving to attain. But we all fall short of it in some way.

And sometimes those who reach the highest, fall the lowest through sudden weariness and bewilderment. Then who shall condemn or punish—when we all have failed?

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

The Heart-Balm Racket

No man who has reached the Indian Summer of life and has more than 75 cents to his name, should be permitted to carry a fountain pen or to keep an inkwell in his room.

I do not care to make my country's laws—I am content to make its wisecracks. But, for my life, I cannot understand why that obsolete law, which permits a woman to collect "heart-balm" because a man has changed his mind, has not been junked long ago, with steel corsets and high bicycles.

Why on earth can't a man CHANGE HIS MIND about whether or not he wants to marry a woman? And why can't a woman change hers about marrying a man?

We can break our dinner dates at the last moment; we can break our solemn promise to play golf or join a bridge party. We can order things sent C. O. D.—and promptly send them back to the shop if we don't like them. We can promise to vote for a political candidate—and change our minds on election day. We can hire a man—and fire him next day, if he doesn't make good. But we've got only ONE GUESS in the most important decision of our lives!

* * *

How does a man KNOW, in the first flush and glamor of romance, when his head is swimming and his eyes are full of stardust, whether it's really love or only dalliance or springtime or wine that's "making the world go 'round?"

How does he KNOW, until after he's engaged to a girl, whether or not there is a vitriolic temper under those silky waves of innocent gold hair? Or whether or not there is a cold calculating glint behind those limpid brown eyes?

He doesn't! Because a man never uses his mind when he falls in love—he waits until he loses it. But, if there is a law prohibiting the sale of firearms to minors, there really ought to be a law to prohibit selling fountain-pens to middle-aged gentlemen Because, as somebody has said, "the thing that a gold-digger always saves up for a rainy day is some man's love-letters."

Text for Today

I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day: and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing.—II. Timothy, iv:7, 8.

Why States Can't Pay Back Their Federal Loans

By James T. Williams, Jr.

BECAUSE he made the mistake of lapsing into prophecy, instead of sticking to engineering, Harry S. Berry has been relieved by the Secretary of the Interior as state engineer for Tennessee of the Public Works Administration.

In an effort to accelerate applications from Tennessee for federal loans for public works, Mr. Berry addressed a circular letter to all the civic organizations in that state, in which he made in effect the prediction that municipalities asking for loans will not be expected to repay them.

"We have seen," said this engineer turned prophet, "what the Tennessee Legislature did with reference to relieving the counties of their road bonds, and we may judge the future by the past."

Tennessee is only one of many states now borrowing from various agencies of the federal government which may not pay its loans, be they municipal, county or state, unless what President Roosevelt rightly describes as "an outworn system of government built in the days of the ox cart" is modernized to meet the needs of the days of the automobile.

Why should the people of Tennessee be taxed to support the maintenance of 95 county governments when the tax burden involved is distressing the people of the state, causing thousands to lose their homes and depriving many children of the schooling to which they are entitled?

Needless Officials Eat Up Funds

ONE of the reasons why the states of South Carolina, Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas are now wholly dependent upon the federal government for the relief of their destitute unemployed is because they have failed to modernize the machinery of their state and local governments. A horde of unnecessary state and local officials are eating up the public money that ought to go for schools, constabulary, public works and other useful state services.

Florida does not require 67 county governments. Arkansas has been practically bankrupted by the burden of supporting 75 county governments, each with its flock of political locusts feeding upon the people.

A scientific survey of government in Mississippi has demonstrated the stupid waste involved in continuing all of its 82 county governments.

The 65 parishes, each with its group of tax-eating officials, into which the state of Louisiana is divided, and the 46 county governments that dig into the pockets of the people who make up the citizenship of the tax-ridden state of South Carolina, are two more flagrant examples of obsolete government in this country that ought to have been dispensed with long ago.

The time was when the squandering of the people's money upon the support of more than 3,000 county governments, 25,000 townships, and additional thousands of smaller subdivisions of government was a matter of main concern to the several states. If any substanial amount of the hundreds of millions of dollars which the federal government is lending to state and local governments today is ever to be repaid, their governmental hand-me-downs from ox cart days must be transformed into strong and simplified state governments designed to serve a modern American state.

Two States Are Modernized

ON his way from the federal city to spend his Thanksgiving holiday at Warm Springs, Ga., President Roosevelt's train will pass through two states which have faced the facts presented by obsolete government and followed where the facts led.

These are the states of North Carolina and Virginia. The one under the administration of Gov. O. Max Gardner, and the other under the administration of Gov. Harry Flood Byrd, now a United States Senator from Virginia, reorganized state and local governments to meet the challenge and supply the needs of the day of the automobile.

The first step taken by Gov. Gardner and Gov. Byrd was to call in the institute for government research of the Brookings Institution at Washington. Its experts made an independent and thoroughly scientific survey of the organization and administration of state and county government. In the light of the facts adduced by this survey, the governments of North Carolina and Virginia were modernized and simplified to the tremendous benefit of the people of those states.

Mississippi, Alabama, New Hampshire and Iowa have been similarly surveyed, and reorganization is under way. What these states have done the other states of the union can do. In fact they should be encouraged, if not required, to provide for such a survey if the Federal government is to continue to go to their relief upon the theory that they are good financial risks.

Human Side of the News

A Strange Case of Double Personality—Col. Fawcett Again Reported to Be Alive

By Edwin C. Hill

A STEAMER from Genoa entered the glorious harbor of Rio de Janeiro the other day and down the gangplank came a bearded, middle-aged man, leaving behind him a weird, tragic past to begin life anew in a strange land. His passport bore the name Mario Bruneri. But with him was a woman whom he called his wife, who insisted that she was his wife, and she described herself as Mrs. Giulio Cannella and her companion as Prof. Giulio Cannella. And therein lies a story of dual identity which can be matched only in fiction by such as Robert Louis Stevenson's "Doctor Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

Many a man disappeared in the World War and among them was Prof. Cannella, wealthy and reputable soldier who had been gassed. Ten years later a bearded stranger was picked up as he wandered about a graveyard in Turin. He could not identify himself and claimed to be a victim of aphasia. He could not remember his name or his past.

To establish his identity the police had him photographed and placarded the town and newspapers with the picture. Two women came forward to claim him as their husband, the one Signora Cannella, the other Signora Bruneri. Confronted by the women, there came to Italy's Enoch Arden a flash of recollection, so he said, and he remembered that he was the professor.

However, Mrs. Bruneri insisted that he was her husband, a thief and a fugitive from justice. Mrs. Cannella was equally positive that he was the professor, and just as the two women of the Bible took the baby to Solomon, so did these two take their man to the courts of Il Duce. Back and forth into one court and then another went the disputants. Fingerprints marked the man as Bruneri, but the Cannellas insisted the fingerprints had erred.

Finally, after several more years it was definitely and irrevocably written into the record that this man from the cemetery of Turin was Mario Bruneri, the swindler. And he was made to stand trial, convicted and sent to prison. Faithful to the end and waiting for the prison gates to open was Mrs. Cannella. And waiting for both of them was South America.

Fawcett Reported A Prisoner

ONCE more the report has filtered into civilization from the trackless Matto Grosso Plateau of Brazil that Col. P. H. Fawcett is not dead, but is a captive of one of the primitive Indian tribes which alone live in the region. At the same time the American explorer, Albert Winton, writes back from Brazil that he is exploring the River of the Dead in Matto Grosso, and that he will institute a search for the British colonel who, with his son Jack and a companion, Raleigh Rimmell, fared forth in 1925 into the wilderness to seek a lost civilization.

Dismissing their guides and taking few arms and but little food, they crossed their Rubicon. Beyond was high adventure. The lore of the natives told of gold mines, buried cities and fair-skinned tribes. Legend even had placed the lost continent Atlantis in this heart of Brazil. They never came back. In the eight years that have followed, expeditions and individual scientists and adventurers have sought them in vain.

Matto Grosso Mostly Unexplored

THEIR disappearance is fading into the legends of Matto Grosso, an immense state as large as France, Spain and Germany combined, most of it wild and still untrodden by the white man. It is not exactly a jungle, rather, wide open grassland with countless rivers which are bordered with trees. Time and again trappers have returned with tales of seeing or being told of a white-bearded white man among the savages. Only recently Dr. Borges, a prominent mineralogist, reported that several of his men, spying on a hostile tribe, had seen two white captives in their midst.

But the weight of what meagre evidence there is, is that Fawcett and his companions are dead, having been killed by the Parajas or the Guaypos, who are the fiercest of Brazil's Indians. The chief of frontier, Gen. Candido Rondon, is convinced that they have perished, basing his conviction on the word of a trusted Indian chief.

Commander Dyott, celebrated English explorer, who led a relief expedition into Matto Grosso, reported definitely that the three had met death at the hands of the hostiles. Dyott followed the trail of Fawcett into the Indian country, convinced himself that the three had met death and then had to retreat hurriedly and craftily to save his own force from a deadly encounter.

Yet the stories continue that Fawcett is alive, and so long as there are adventurers they will have an eye out for a white-bearded patriarch among the little brown killers of Matto Grosso.
